As Buildings Become Taller . . .

Sawdust floats in the air while hammers, saws, and bulldozers sweat to make buildings grow taller. Hammers, saws, bulldozers—these are the things which transform small colleges into larger colleges. The year 1966 has already seen the opening of many new buildings.

Hopper Hall, a two story structure costing $800,000, has made room for two hundred girls. Lowndes Hall, the new men's dormitory provides housing for over two hundred men. This $750,000 structure is beautifully located in Drexel Park. VSC's newest pride is the $1,050,000 Nevins Hall, a three story building containing the administrative offices and the departments of Chemistry, Physics, Biology, and Math. It is equipped with the most modern conveniences including a telescope and an observatory. Taking the place of the old Student Center is the sparkling new $409,575 College Union offering a snack bar, meeting rooms, post office, and bookstore.

These new buildings meet the present demands at VSC, but the college is growing still. Construction is now under way for a $1,500,000 fine arts building and a new dormitory to house two hundred women.

The administration has projected plans providing for several more buildings during the next ten years. This progress will be expensive, but progress is necessary; education is a must. So the sound of the hammer and the saw will be heard at VSC for many years to come. Just as it is necessary that students grow wiser, so it is necessary that buildings grow taller.

. . . the Faculty and Staff Reaches Higher . . .

Recognizing and appreciating the maturity of the young men and women they teach, the faculty of Valdosta State College are constantly adapting their methods of instruction to the high intellectual plane of their students.

Professors in the various departments try to stimulate creativity in the student rather than having him do the largely mechanical "busy-work" characteristic of his pre-college school days.

Several teachers outline the material they intend to cover in order to give their students a framework upon which to build. In all they do, the professors strive to give order and relation to what could otherwise be a confusing mass of facts and information.

. . . for New and Exciting Teaching Methods . . .

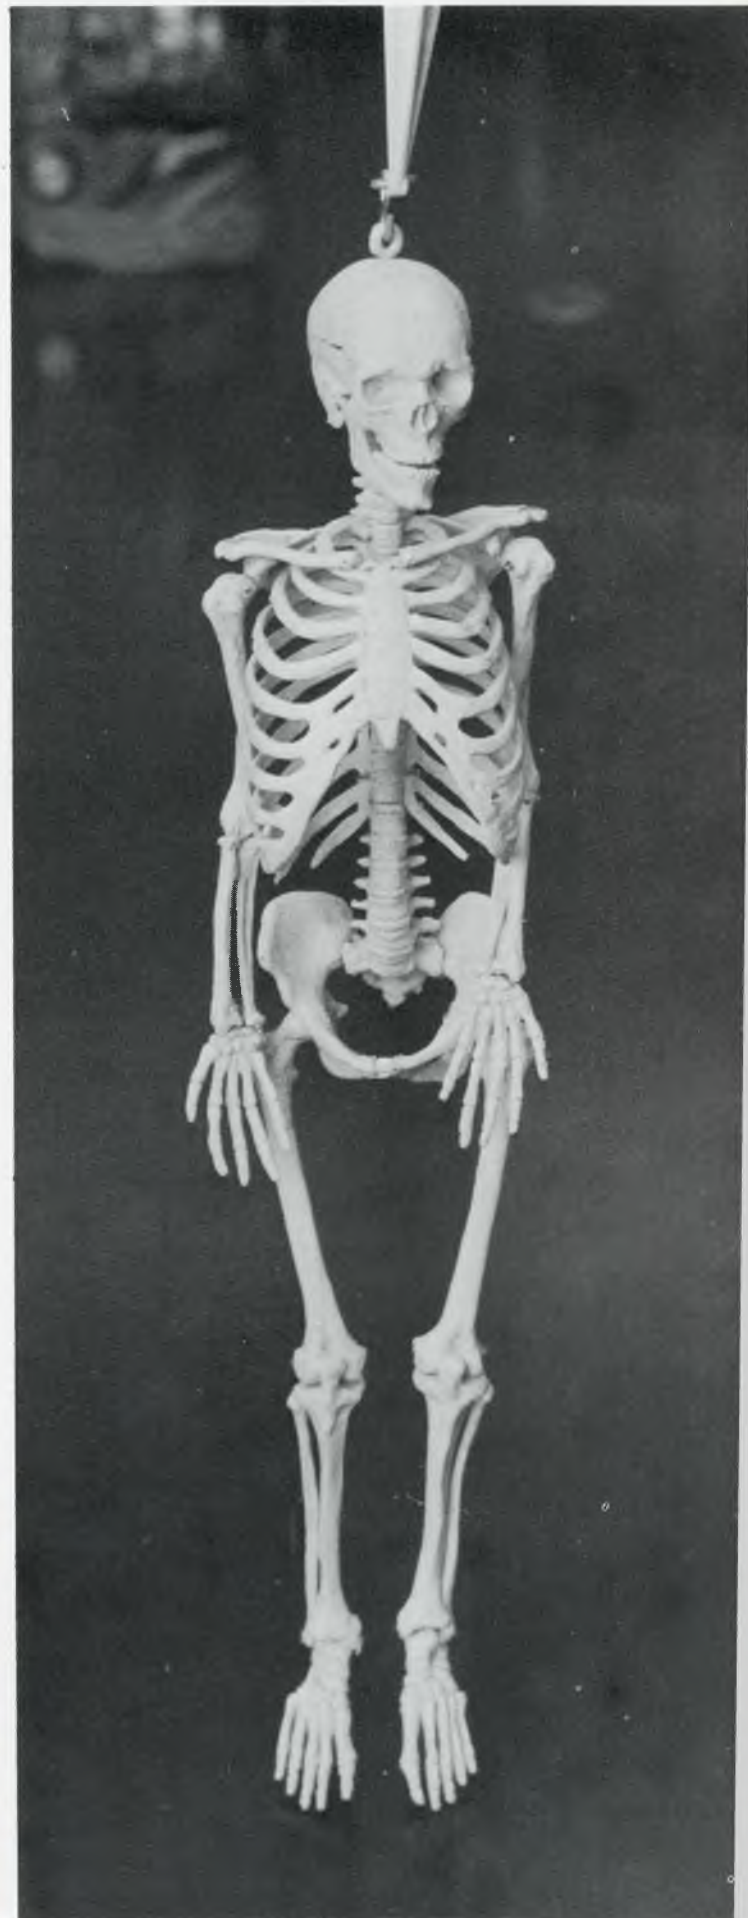

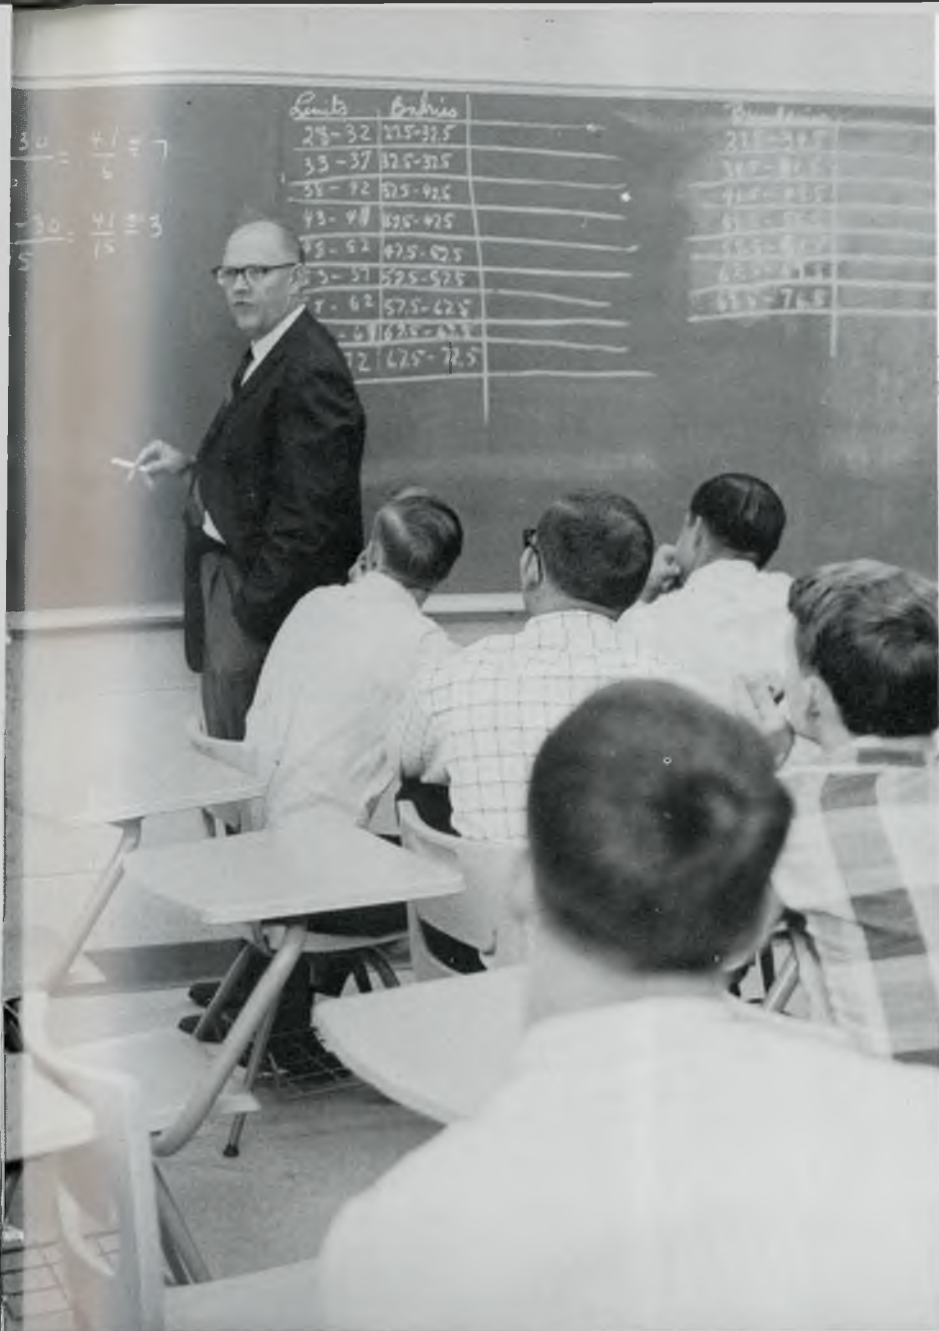

Modern equipment and a new building contribute to the teacher's efforts to stimulate the students. Nevins Hall is more than an administration building—it contains the Math, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics departments. For the first time this year improved facilities allowed the Biology Department to offer freshman biology as a lab course. Modern physics and chemistry experimental equipment permits a wider variety of experiments. In addition, Valdosta State now boasts an observatory and a planetarium, both of which are located in Nevins Hall.

Students in the art department built their own outdoor kiln—a project which helped them to appreciate the equipment they use in developing and expressing their talent.

Competent instructors coupled with new and modern equipment place Valdosta State's curriculum among the most advanced colleges and universities in the South.

An Atmosphere for Learning Is Created . . .

At desks, on beds, in study parlors, in the library—wherever a bit of seclusion, a moment of time can be found, students are studying, trying to learn, to understand, to expand.

VSC strives to incite an atmosphere for learning, to promote the desire for knowledge and for growth. Students make the choice, but opportunities are ever-present. In several dorms there are study parlors in which one can find quiet comfort any time he wishes. The 56,000 volume library contains desks, tables, reference rooms, conference rooms—facilities for every student's needs. The dormitory rooms also are equipped with a desk for each inhabitant.

In groups, in pairs, and alone, the VSC student is seen desperately concentrating, hurriedly writing, wondering why, finding out how—growing more aware, and finding himself.

The Challenge Is Social, Cultural, and Spiritual . . .

VSC's social year began the first week of school with the Freshman Tea, the dances, and sorority and fraternity rush. It continued throughout the seasons in a blaze of activities that helped to complete that "other side" of education. Social highlights of the year included the dedication of new buildings, the inauguration of Dr. Martin, the Christmas Formal, Homecoming, and May Day.

Much was done throughout the year to further the cultural interests of students at VSC. Projects such as visiting lecturers, art productions, concerts, plays, and speech forums bring greater opportunities and increased interests for a broader cultural outlook.

The year's challenges were not only social and cultural but spiritual also. The various religious organizations on campus and churches in the area offer great opportunities in the fulfillment of spiritual needs.

. . . Pride and Loyalty Naturally Follow . . .

Learning by association is a guiding principle of Valdosta State College. From September until May the days and weeks are filled with the projects and programs of countless clubs, organizations, and athletics. Through active membership, students strive to identify themselves and their aspirations, and to reach common goals, while they also find individual fulfillment in the friendly warmth of group activity.

Beginning with the election of class, club, and dorm officers, extracurricular activities at VSC continue dynamically throughout the year. At VSC—for VSC—there are a million things to be done, but the labor is light because it is shared by all the students with laughter and loyalty.

As the success or failure of any organized society is dependent on the effort of each individual, so the comprehensive effectiveness of a school depends on the worthwhile contribution of each student. The college is the aggregate product of the men and women who attend it. Therefore, each student makes the alma mater what it is, so that in turn, this annual is only a reflection of parts of each student. It is packed with memories, love, laughter, loyalty, and all the good and bad of a year's experience.

Tradition Completes the Vibrancy of VSC

Tradition is the sketch of years, the preservation of our heritage. We, as students of Valdosta State College find that we have been richly blessed with tradition.

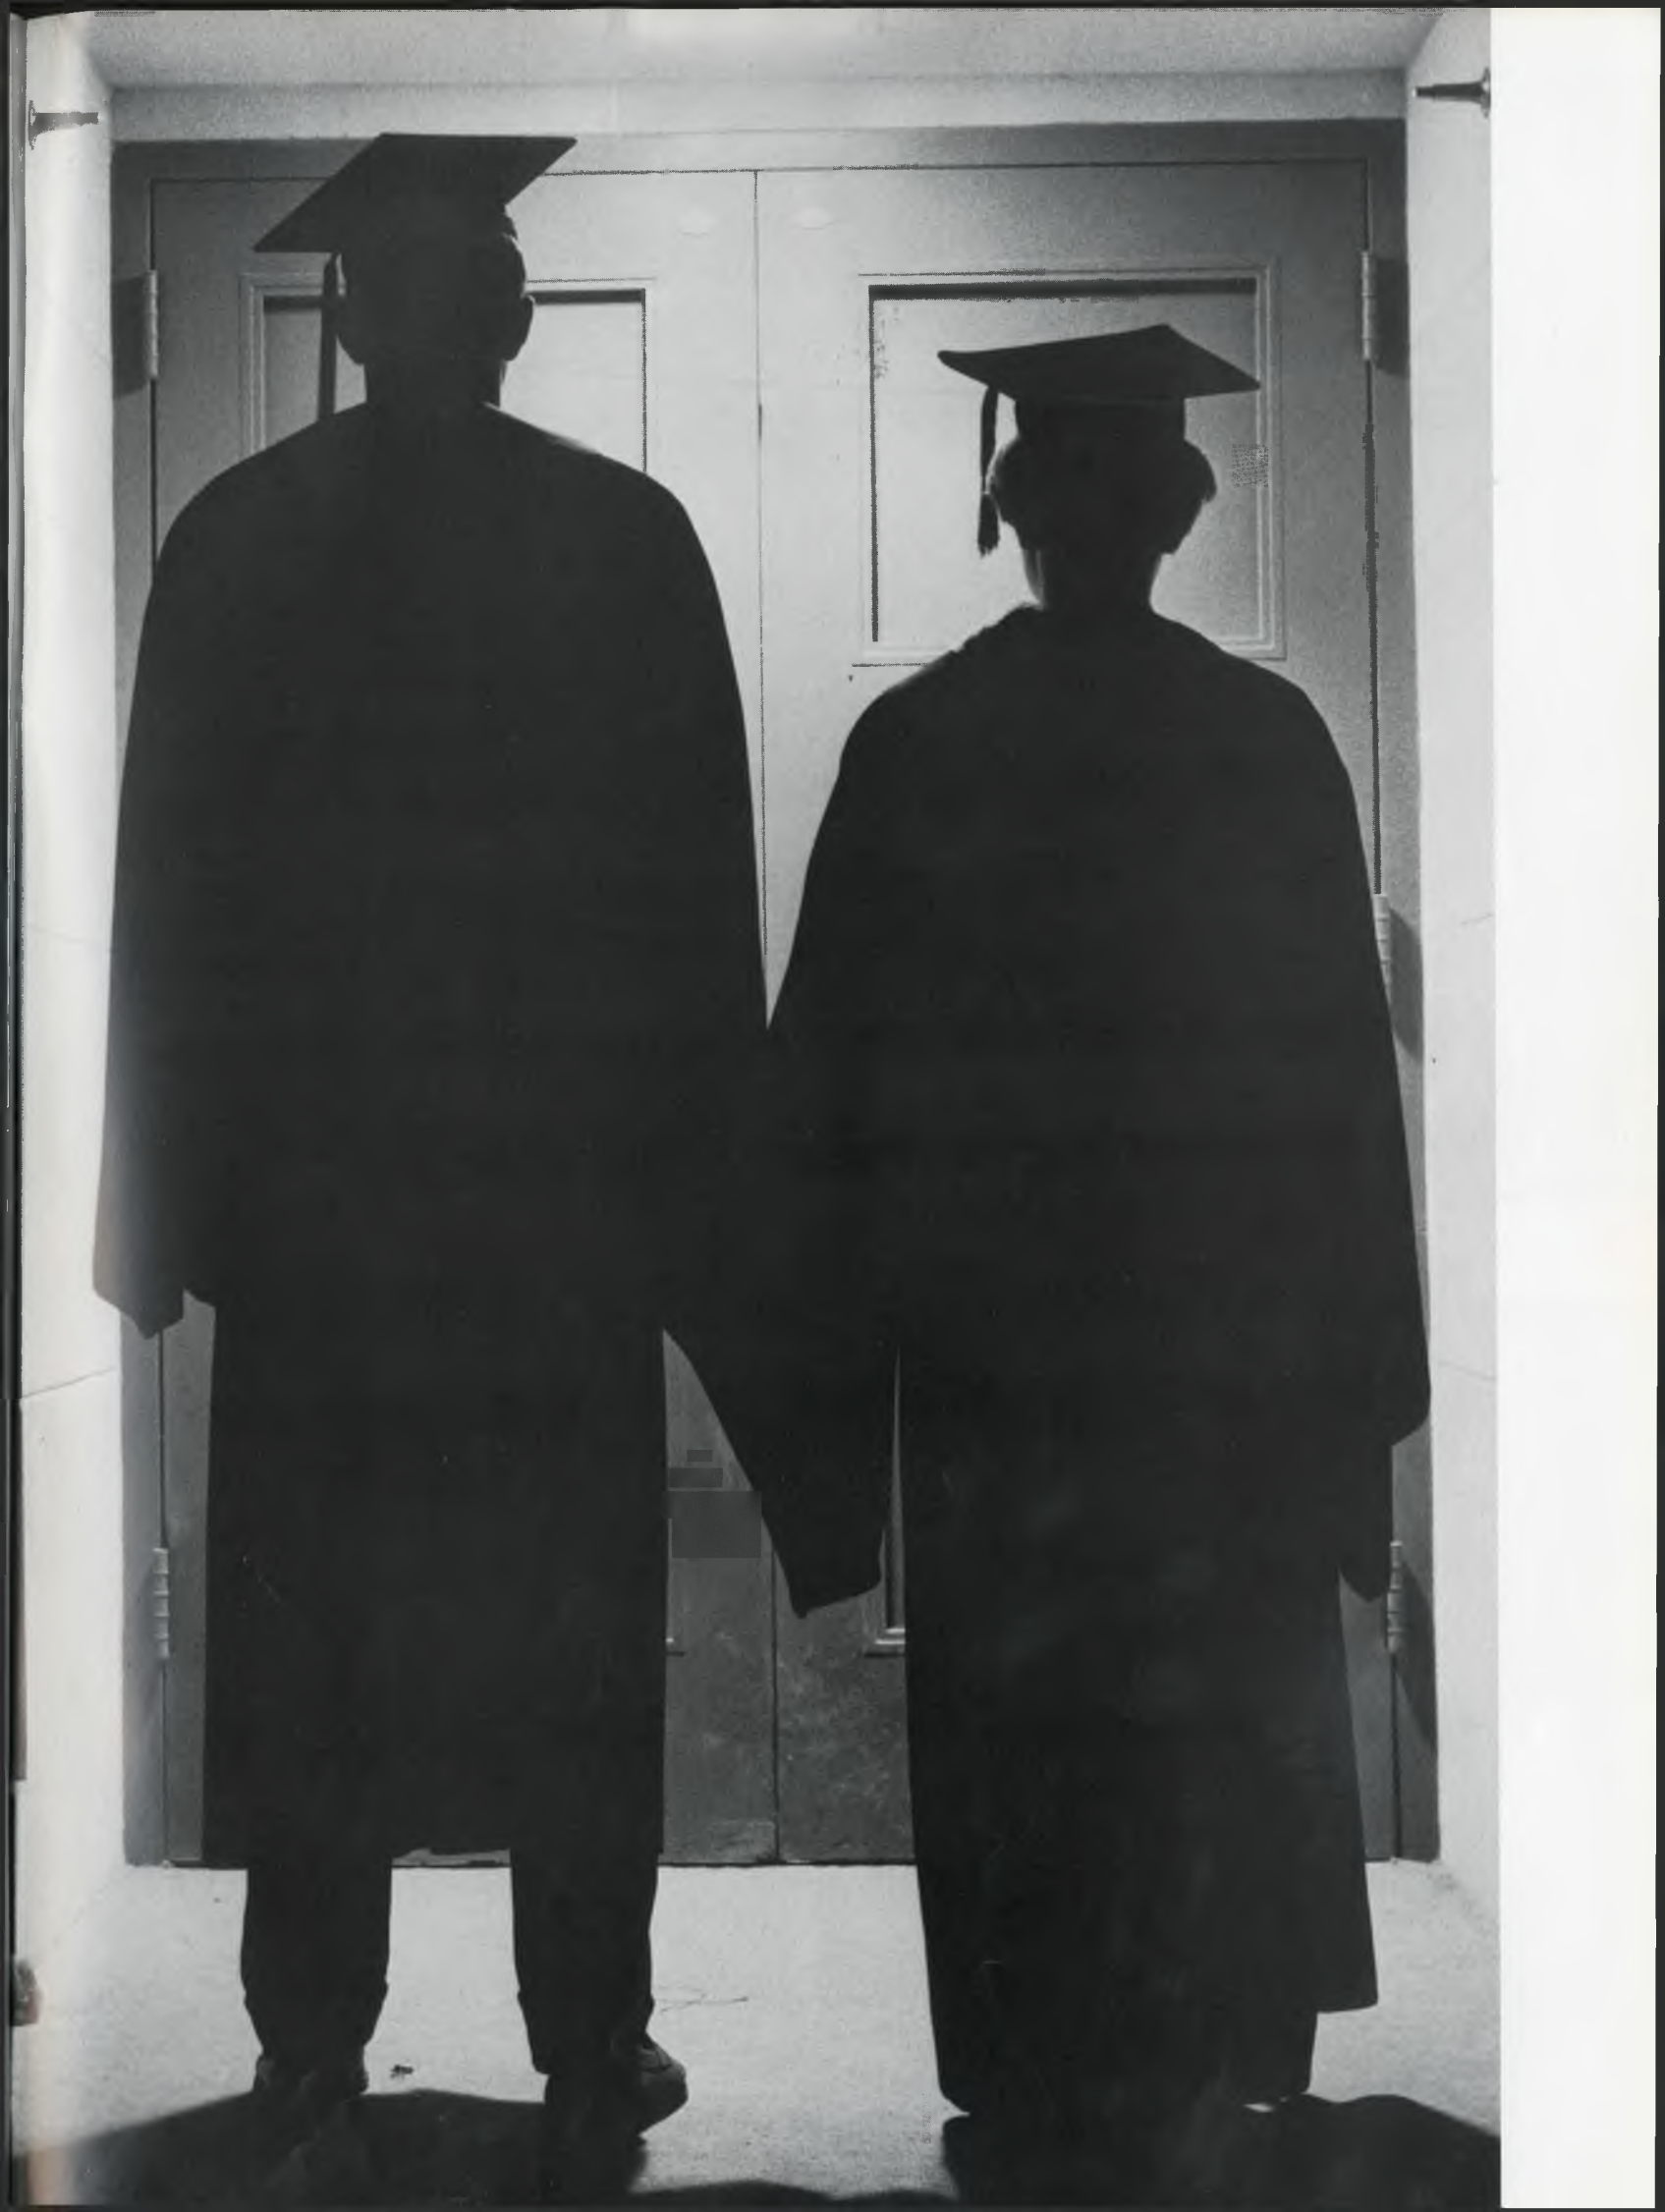

The old chimney that stands as a monument to GSWC; the House in the Woods that has long been a favorite meeting place; the cheerleaders who yell their teams to victory; the Christmas activities; Homecoming with its floats—these are only a few of the traditions that VSC students have with them.

However, this tradition is sometimes forgotten or taken for granted. Only if a change is made do some students realize what they had. Yet it goes on and on—never to be destroyed, and to those who recognize it, tradition is a priceless treasure. You've got it here at VSC—be proud of it!

College Freshmen Arrive at VSC

Dazed freshmen stumble wide-eyed and bewildered into a whirling world of changing classes and impossible exams. Gradually, however, the atmosphere changes. The work seems lightened, the seniors and teachers become people, and the inexplicable maze becomes merely a science building.

Who says a freshman cannot bring an accumulation of eighteen years to school? It only takes three weeks of planning and two weeks of actual packing. The freshmen try to pack all of their old life in fifteen suitcases to bring into their new life, and to make a dormitory a home becomes a warm challenge. With determination, they set to work, pausing to linger over the memories involved in each item that is unpacked.

A social function draws the freshmen from the dorm room as President and Mrs. Martin have planned a tea to welcome the freshmen and their parents. Serving as an introduction to college life and showing that there is a relationship between faculty and students, the tea gives both parents and students a glimpse of college hospitality.

Variety Show Brings Relaxation

In the beginning there might be a bit of confusion. Assemblies and lectures are arranged to acquaint the freshmen with the rules and regulations of the school. Already they feel a sense of belonging, yet the assemblies can get a bit tiresome.

A break, Hallelujah! The SGA announces that they are going to put on a variety show for the students. This is just what the freshmen need; a chance to relax. However, all good things must come to an end, and so it was time to leave. Tomorrow the students must go to see their advisors and schedule their classes. By now they are ready to get down to business. It's a long day ahead.

Freshmen Become Acquainted with VSC

No freshman can live through the Orientation Week at VSC without feeling some sort of excitement. It casts a bigger shadow, demands more self-control, causes more confusion, and lasts longer than any other single event in the freshman's year.

To tired teachers and advisors, it means the scheduling of classes, the beginning of a new quarter's work. It means rushing around for registration, ID pictures, annual pictures, the paying of fees, and a million other small, but important, things that must be done in a few days' time. It means standing in line for hours in hopes of securing a place in a certain class, walking on sore feet to another meeting, learning some of the many rules which must be memorized thoroughly. After the fees have been paid and the classes have been assigned, it means standing in more lines—this time in the book store to buy the books that go with the class, in Nevins Hall to associate the teacher with the class, and in the Post Office to get a box, so that when the mail comes, there will be some place to pick it up.

Soon they learn that this is not the average day—that college is not one grand "line" stretching from the freshman year to the senior graduation. Life goes back to normal, classes start, and registration day is forgotten until next quarter.

Dance Highlights Orientation Week

The hectic week of Orientation was highlighted by a gala affair on Saturday, September 24. The SGA sponsored a dance that night for all the students, seniors and freshmen alike. The students were urged to wear casual clothes and bring a date. Since it was the first time the freshmen had been allowed dates, they were excited for more than one reason.

The first school dance began with shoes off, a circle with a few boys dancing, a long line of girls and boys with arms clasped around each other's waist swinging along as the leader danced from one end of the gym to the other, and it ended a grand success.

Nightfall Brings Change of Tempo to VSC

The night life of Valdosta State College begins as the twilight of the evening gently closes in. Perhaps it is a night for study, for relaxation, or for romance. Whatever the case may be, nightfall emphasizes a change of tempo and mood of the activity on campus. As the evening draws to an end, Pop is seen making his nightly rounds, checking to be sure that all is safe.

November 14— The Dedication

Educational progress at Valdosta State College and in the state of Georgia was the keynote of the dedication speech delivered by the Honorable Governor Carl Sanders to the rows of invited guests and crowds of VSC students. Following the ceremony, a reception honoring Governor and Mrs. Sanders was held in the new College Union with all guests and students cordially invited. Closing the events of the first big day was an exciting art exhibition given by Lamar Dodd from the University of Georgia.

November 15— The Inauguration

The City Auditorium was filled with invited guests and students attending the inauguration of Sidney Walter Martin. The processional march made elegant by the multi-colored robes of the educators formed the greatest event in the history of Valdosta State College.

The Inaugural Convocation was presided over by George L. Simpson, Jr., Chancellor of the University System of Georgia. Dr. Ward Pafford, Dean of the College, VSC, followed with the recognition of guests and brought greetings to delegates and other honored guests. Greetings to the President were then delivered on behalf of the students of the college, the alumni, the faculty, the assembled delegates, and the Board of Regents.

Sidney Walter Martin: Fifth President of VSC

In a challenging speech emphasizing the need for rapid growth in the quality of southern education, Dr. Fletcher M. Green, Keenan Professor of History, University of North Carolina, delivered the Inaugural Address. James A. Dunlap, Chairman of the Board of Regents, then gave the induction of the President after which Dr. Martin accepted his position with a confident optimism.

Following the recessional a gracious luncheon and reception were held in the Valdosta State College cafeteria for the official delegates and invited guests.

After two rewarding days of dedication and inauguration, Valdosta State College looks forward with pride and enthusiasm to the success of its fifth president, Dr. S. Walter Martin.

Christmas Events End Fall Quarter

Sparkling trees and flickering lights, quiet carols and giggles of anticipation; real Christmas Spirit comes in with the flash of an eye or the warmth of the crackling fire and brings old traditions to VSC. The Hanging of the Greens in Ashley Hall links women students of past and present. The annual Christmas Ball marks the end of fall quarter with the elegance of a formal dance graced by the presentation of a beautiful queen and her court.

Rebels Win Title 6 Out of 7 Years

“Let’s take things in their proper order,” says Coach Colson to his boys who are now recognized as one of the top small college basketball powers in the nation and are ranked 17th in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. Having now captured the GIAC crown, only the district play-off remains in the Rebel’s way of the NAIA’s national tournament in Kansas City. The Rebs have come close in the past, but have never quite made it to Kansas City. This time they will and you can be sure of one thing—when they get there they’ll give a Rebel yell.

Hootenanny Sparks Homecoming Spirit

It was that time of year again—Homecoming. “Doing it up proud” from the beginning this year, it began with a bang—VSC’s first Hootenanny. The Student Union was packed with tired but eager “hooters” to cheer on and be cheered.

Later that night, glamour and excitement took the scene as the students attended the formal dance of the weekend. The lovely Homecoming Court walked through an aisle of watching students and awaited with anticipation the announcement of the Queen. Miss Ricki Cox, last year’s queen, then crowned the stunning Miss Elaine Noble of Vienna as 1966-67 Homecoming Queen.

Floats, Displays, Rain Stimulate Homecoming

Homecoming weekend dawned cloudy and damp but never drowned out the spirit on campus. The dorms were decorated in arrays of flashing colors, and sorority and fraternity floats were created to carry out the theme, "Under the Sea."

After the excitement of the night before, the parade literally swam through the streets of Valdosta creating just the right atmosphere for the pink octopus which won "Most Beautiful" award for Alpha Xi Delta and Moby Dick which won "Most Appropriate award for Sigma Phi Epsilon. Adding a modern touch was the yellow submarine which won "Most Original" award and the "President's" award for Tau Kappa Epsilon.

No one can live through a Homecoming at VSC without feeling excitement. It casts a bigger shadow, demands more work, causes more confusion, last longer, and leaves more fun and memories than other single event.

New Christy Minstrels Visit VSC

With warm greetings to all visiting personalities, VSC receives a wide variety of entertainment. The pounding beat of the Madallions produced a very successful dance. No less enjoyable was the quieter, more dignified style of Dean Hudson and his orchestra at the annual Christmas Ball. Presenting a medley of hit tunes were the lively Georgia Singers of the University of Georgia. The hit of the year came with The New Christy Minstrels, brought up by the SGA, and their energetic performance of America's folk songs.

In Dedication

There is a vacant office in Ashley Hall—The key collection is gone, and so are the history books. But, one needs only to step over to West Hall to see the newly panelled walls, the modern furniture, and the old key collection. Occupying this office is Miss Fredeva Ogletree, Dean of Women at Valdosta State College, whom no new office can alter in influence or admiration.

Since 1960, Miss Ogletree has watched and helped in the growth and development of V.S.C. Miss Ogletree left a teaching position at Valdosta High School to come to V.S.C. Having degrees in history from Agnes Scott and the University of Georgia, she has taught Georgia History for many years.

Miss Ogletree has been valuable to the Greeks on campus by advising the Panhellenic organization. She also finds time for membership in the National Association of Women Deans and Counselors and Kappa Gamma, the national honor society for teachers.

Because of her immeasurable service to V.S.C. and of the respect and admiration of the whole student body, we proudly dedicate the 1967 Pine Cone to Miss Fredeva Ogletree.

Academics

Sidney

Dear Students:

Within the next few weeks I will be completing my first academic year as President of Valdosta State College. This has been one of the most enjoyable experiences of my long and happy career in the field of education. To repeat what I said in remarks at my official inauguration last Fall, nothing has offered me more genuine pleasure since arriving in Valdosta than my associations with groups and individual members of our student body. On the basis of informal conferences and discussions with many of you young men and women, I then declared full confidence in our students. This statement, I repeat with added emphasis.

The VSC student body represents a great reservoir of talent and energy, indispensable to the improvement of our society. The student body is bound to increase substantially. But it must never become so large as to render ineffectual our work with the individual. We must hold fast to the belief that the student is an individual person who needs our friendship and serious understanding. We shall endeavor to keep the student at the center of all our efforts.

We will work continuously toward maintaining a faculty-student relation conducive to the development of the best in VSC students. As we grow in numbers, it will be our foremost challenge to increase our effectiveness in providing the kind of education our graduates will need to meet the future. In working together, through a dedicated administration-faculty-student relationship, this will be achieved.

President

Today's Headlines— Tomorrow's History

In a sense, history is not made every day in that our society will be recorded by historians of tomorrow who will choose the events important to them. A more accurate view of history might be the record of man's past.

The History Department of VSC is well equipped to offer the debate on whether men make history or whether history makes men. Courses are offered on world, national, and state level with emphasis on different periods of these times. This includes not only politics and war, but also a recent and active interest in the economic, social, and cultural affairs of the societies studied. Also more and more interest is being given toward the historical development of arts and sciences.

Future Teachers in the Making

A brief glance at the campus of Valdosta State College reveals an enthusiasm that gives great promise to present and future activities. Students and faculty are responsive to the challenge and change presented during this academic year.

Within the Department of Education one finds the increase in personnel, activities in budget planning, and the development of a graduate program are but a few indications of the vigor and purpose that will be projected into the future.

Biology

Curriculum Revision— Progress in Biology

The Biology Department is planning to strengthen the academic major in Biology through addition of Biology course content and subject matter in the areas of Physics, Mathematics, and Chemistry. This is in line with curriculum revision in Biology at other Institutions in the State and Nation. A biology major must be well grounded in related sciences to comprehend current topics in Biology and to gain admission to graduate school. The Biology "Core" consists of courses in Organismic Biology, Cell and Molecular Biology, Morphology and Development, Physiology, Ecology, and Genetics.

Lab Work Expanded by New Equipment

From medieval practices of alchemy to modern chemistry laboratories in which artificial life is created, the science of chemistry has fascinated and stimulated the mind of man. Never becoming stagnant, the chemist is ever striving to better the life of man by finding new solutions to problems as they arise. The student of chemistry can apply his knowledge to many fields—the doctor, the mechanic, the housewife, the restaurateur—these and many others use basic chemical knowledge in their everyday tasks.

Dr. Duvall; Maurice W. Lindauer (A.B., A.M., M.Ed.); W. Taylor Summerford (B.S., M.S., Ph.D.)

Physics

Observatory Increases Scope of Physical Science

Physics, says Webster, is the science which studies the facts of matter and motion and includes the subjects of mechanics, heat, light, electricity, and sound. It has been called the universal science because it deals with both the simple and the complex, the living and the non-living, the minutely small and the infinitely great. It comprises some biology, much measurement and graphics, and a great deal of math. Physics attempts to reveal to the student the causes, the effects, and the inter-relationship of physical events of the world in which he lives.

); James E. Martin (A.B., M.S.); Charles M.

A Science of Quantities and Relationships

More than just a jumble of numbers, mathematics offers the student a system of logic which can be applied to the various aspects of his modern environment, from simple algebraic formulas to the complex functions of advanced calculus. The Math students learn to relate certain principles first to numbers, then to events, and finally to total situations, thus increasing his awareness of the ultimate order of the universe and developing his ability to meet rationally and logically the problems of everyday life.

Fine Arts

The Appreciation of Art— Requirement for Life.

The Department of Art is directed toward training students who wish to become artists and designers. A program of studio courses is combined with studies of theoretical functions and historical background of the visual arts.

The Music curriculum provides training in the practice, literature, theory, and history of music for the music major; and it provides courses for the cultural and professional enrichment of students in other departments.

Exercise Develops a Healthy Body and Mind

Aside from the required physical education courses, this department is brimming over with activities for everyone. The only prerequisites are that one is interested, willing to give a few hours, and anxious to feel better physically, maybe even mentally. Fins and Flippers, the WRA, and Intramural sports are only some of the activities evolving from our Physical Education Department.

Psychology and Sociology

The Task of Helping People Aided by Understanding

Psychology is the science of the "whys" of human and animal behavior through an understanding of the whole range of human experience. Sociology is the social science of these human relationships that seeks to solve problems in man's society.

Through constant improvement in faculty and student interest, both of these departments are growing rapidly. Adequate background is provided in each of the various fields of specialization and clubs have been organized to stimulate outside interest.

Homecoming means for a special girl a night to reign and shine. Five girls and their escorts slowly walked across the City Auditorium, each wondering who would be the queen. Names were called, and the girls were introduced. Then—the drums rolled and Elaine Noble was announced as VSC's Homecoming Queen for 1966-67. Her court, Gwen Hart, Susan Leuck, Angie Thompson, and Jackie Bierman gathered around her to be the first to offer her congratulations. Miss Noble reigned over the rest of the Homecoming Dance as VSC students danced to the music of the Classics.

1967 BEST DRESSED

Individuality JUJU Winner

"A girl must have individuality in her dress," says Miss JuJu Hutchinson, a junior from Tifton, Georgia, who carries the 1967 title of "Best Dressed On College Campus" at V.S.C. Judged on a basic understanding of figure type, a well organized clothes budget, good grooming, and correct use of make-up, she was selected by a committee of students, and her pictures will be sent to Glamour magazine's national contest. Other girls selected to V.S.C.'s Ten Best Dressed list were Carolyn Reagan, Peggy Herring, Anne Whiddon, Caroline Bozeman, Patsy Rhodes, Gail Culpepper, Angie Thompson, Lucille Dawson, and Gwen Hiers.

The President's Freshmen Scholars

To recognize outstanding freshmen and to provide an incentive for work and study, President Walter Martin this year designated for the first time eleven freshmen to share honors as the President's Freshmen Scholars. Chosen by the scholarship and honors committee on the basis of their college board scores and high school performance, the group consisted of Diane Burke, Merry Herring, Mac McVey, Richard Webb, Glenda Pyles, Nadeen Watenka, Mary Beth Moore, Thomas Brown, Peggy Riggle and Theresa Cullen.

Dr. Fred C. Davidson, Vice-Chancellor of the University System of Georgia, spoke at a convocation held December 5 in the gym to honor the freshmen scholars. Classes were dismissed and all students were invited to attend.

Pride of V.S.C.

November 28, 1966, a very determined young man looked at his team and said, "Let's Go!" On February 28, 1967, this same determined young man realized that his team had taken him seriously, for they presented him with his sixth GIAC championship in seven years. The "Pride of V.S.C.", led by Co-Captains Gwendall McSwain and Paul Vick ended their season with a 24—7 record.

Achievement is accomplished by team effort. The outstanding defense of Bob "Lamp" Lampier, the ball handling of Ron "Rookie" Fortner, the amazing ability of Bryan "Big Un" Phillips, the consistency of Mike "Snowman"

Terry, and the jumping ability of "Goose, the Rifleman" McSwain, plus the coaching of Gary "Coach of the Year" Colson all added up to a season filled with excitement and pride for V.S.C. students. Paul "the Man" Vick, Ben "the Axe" Bates, Danny, "the Pollock" Petrovich, and Bill "the More" Moore all provided the ability and depth to insure a winning season.

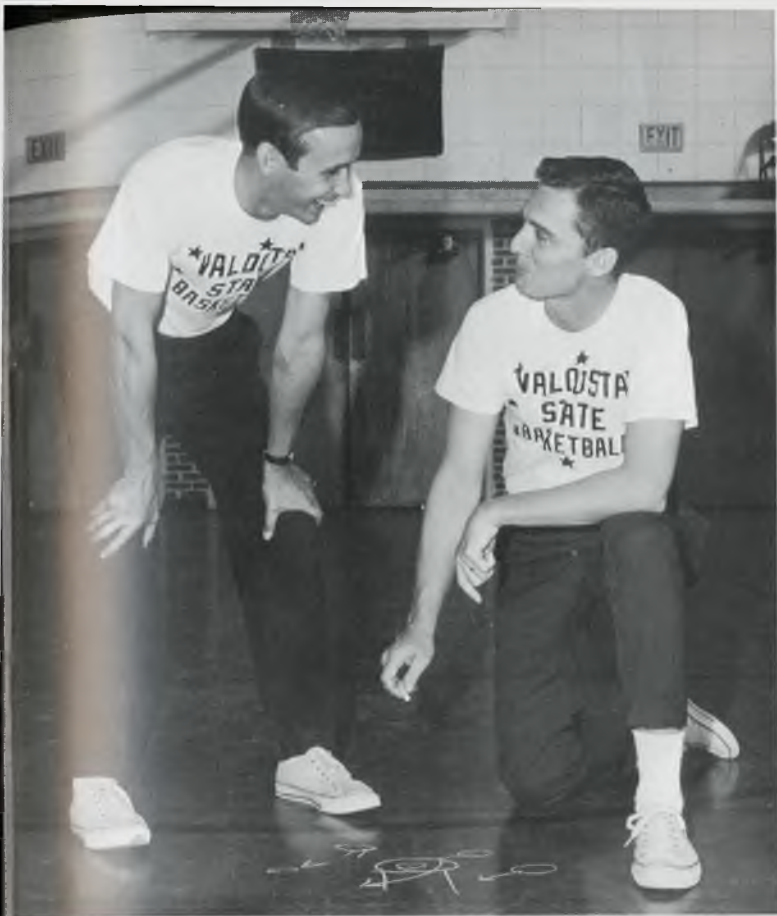

It seemed that with the loss of V.S.C.'s only All-American Bobby Ritch, this year would be a slow one, but with returning players still inspired by the now retired jersey "44" and new additions, the Rebs took their leader's advice and got up and went!

Workshop, elections, dances and concerts, Tuesday night meetings, Homecoming, the Inauguration, committee meetings, long hours and hard work, student leadership and responsibility—all of these and more comprise the Student Government Association—the elected representatives of the student body. Coming from the dorms, town, and from each of the classes, they meet weekly (and often daily) to discuss, plan, and co-ordinate student activities. The SGA provides for campus-wide social events, sets standards of conduct, and works closely with the faculty and administration so that students may voice their opinions.

The SGA is evolving a new image with the growth of the campus. In a spacious new office, the physical improvement of the SGA parallels its new progress in responding to the responsibilities of a capable, organized Student Government Association.

Campus Canopy

The Campus Canopy, in its third year of publication and issued bi-monthly reports college news, interjects humor into the academic routine, and airs student opinion. Having no formal school of journalism to insure its publication, this paper appears periodically with the help of small minority of journalistically inclined fanatics who for unknown motivations care enough to sacrifice time, studies, and sanity to keep the presses rolling.

While this annual will be a source of nostalgia in the future, the Campus Canopy will have long since crumbled into obscurity. The paper tries not to preserve the past but to faithfully report the present. Unlike the annual, a newspaper's significance does not increase with the passing of time; it is soon out-dated. However, regardless of its lack of sentimental value, the newspaper is a vital part of a thriving college and a tradition that is destined to continue as long as news and reporters exists.

The Creative Writing club is the outlet for all writers and would-be writers on the campus. It gives a chance for poets, short-story writers, and any other creative writers to be heard, read, and constructively criticized. The writer develops ideas of technique and historical perspective through the criticism of club members and of a faculty advisor. The club publishes the Pine Branch, the annual literary magazine.

Because progress has been the keyword at Valdosta State College during the year 1966-67, we, the editors of the 1967 Pine Cone, have strived to present to the faculty and students a yearbook which will serve as an everlasting record of this progress. Within these pages, we have endeavored to portray faithfully all the accomplishments, expectations, and triumphs which helped to paint the picture of this school year.

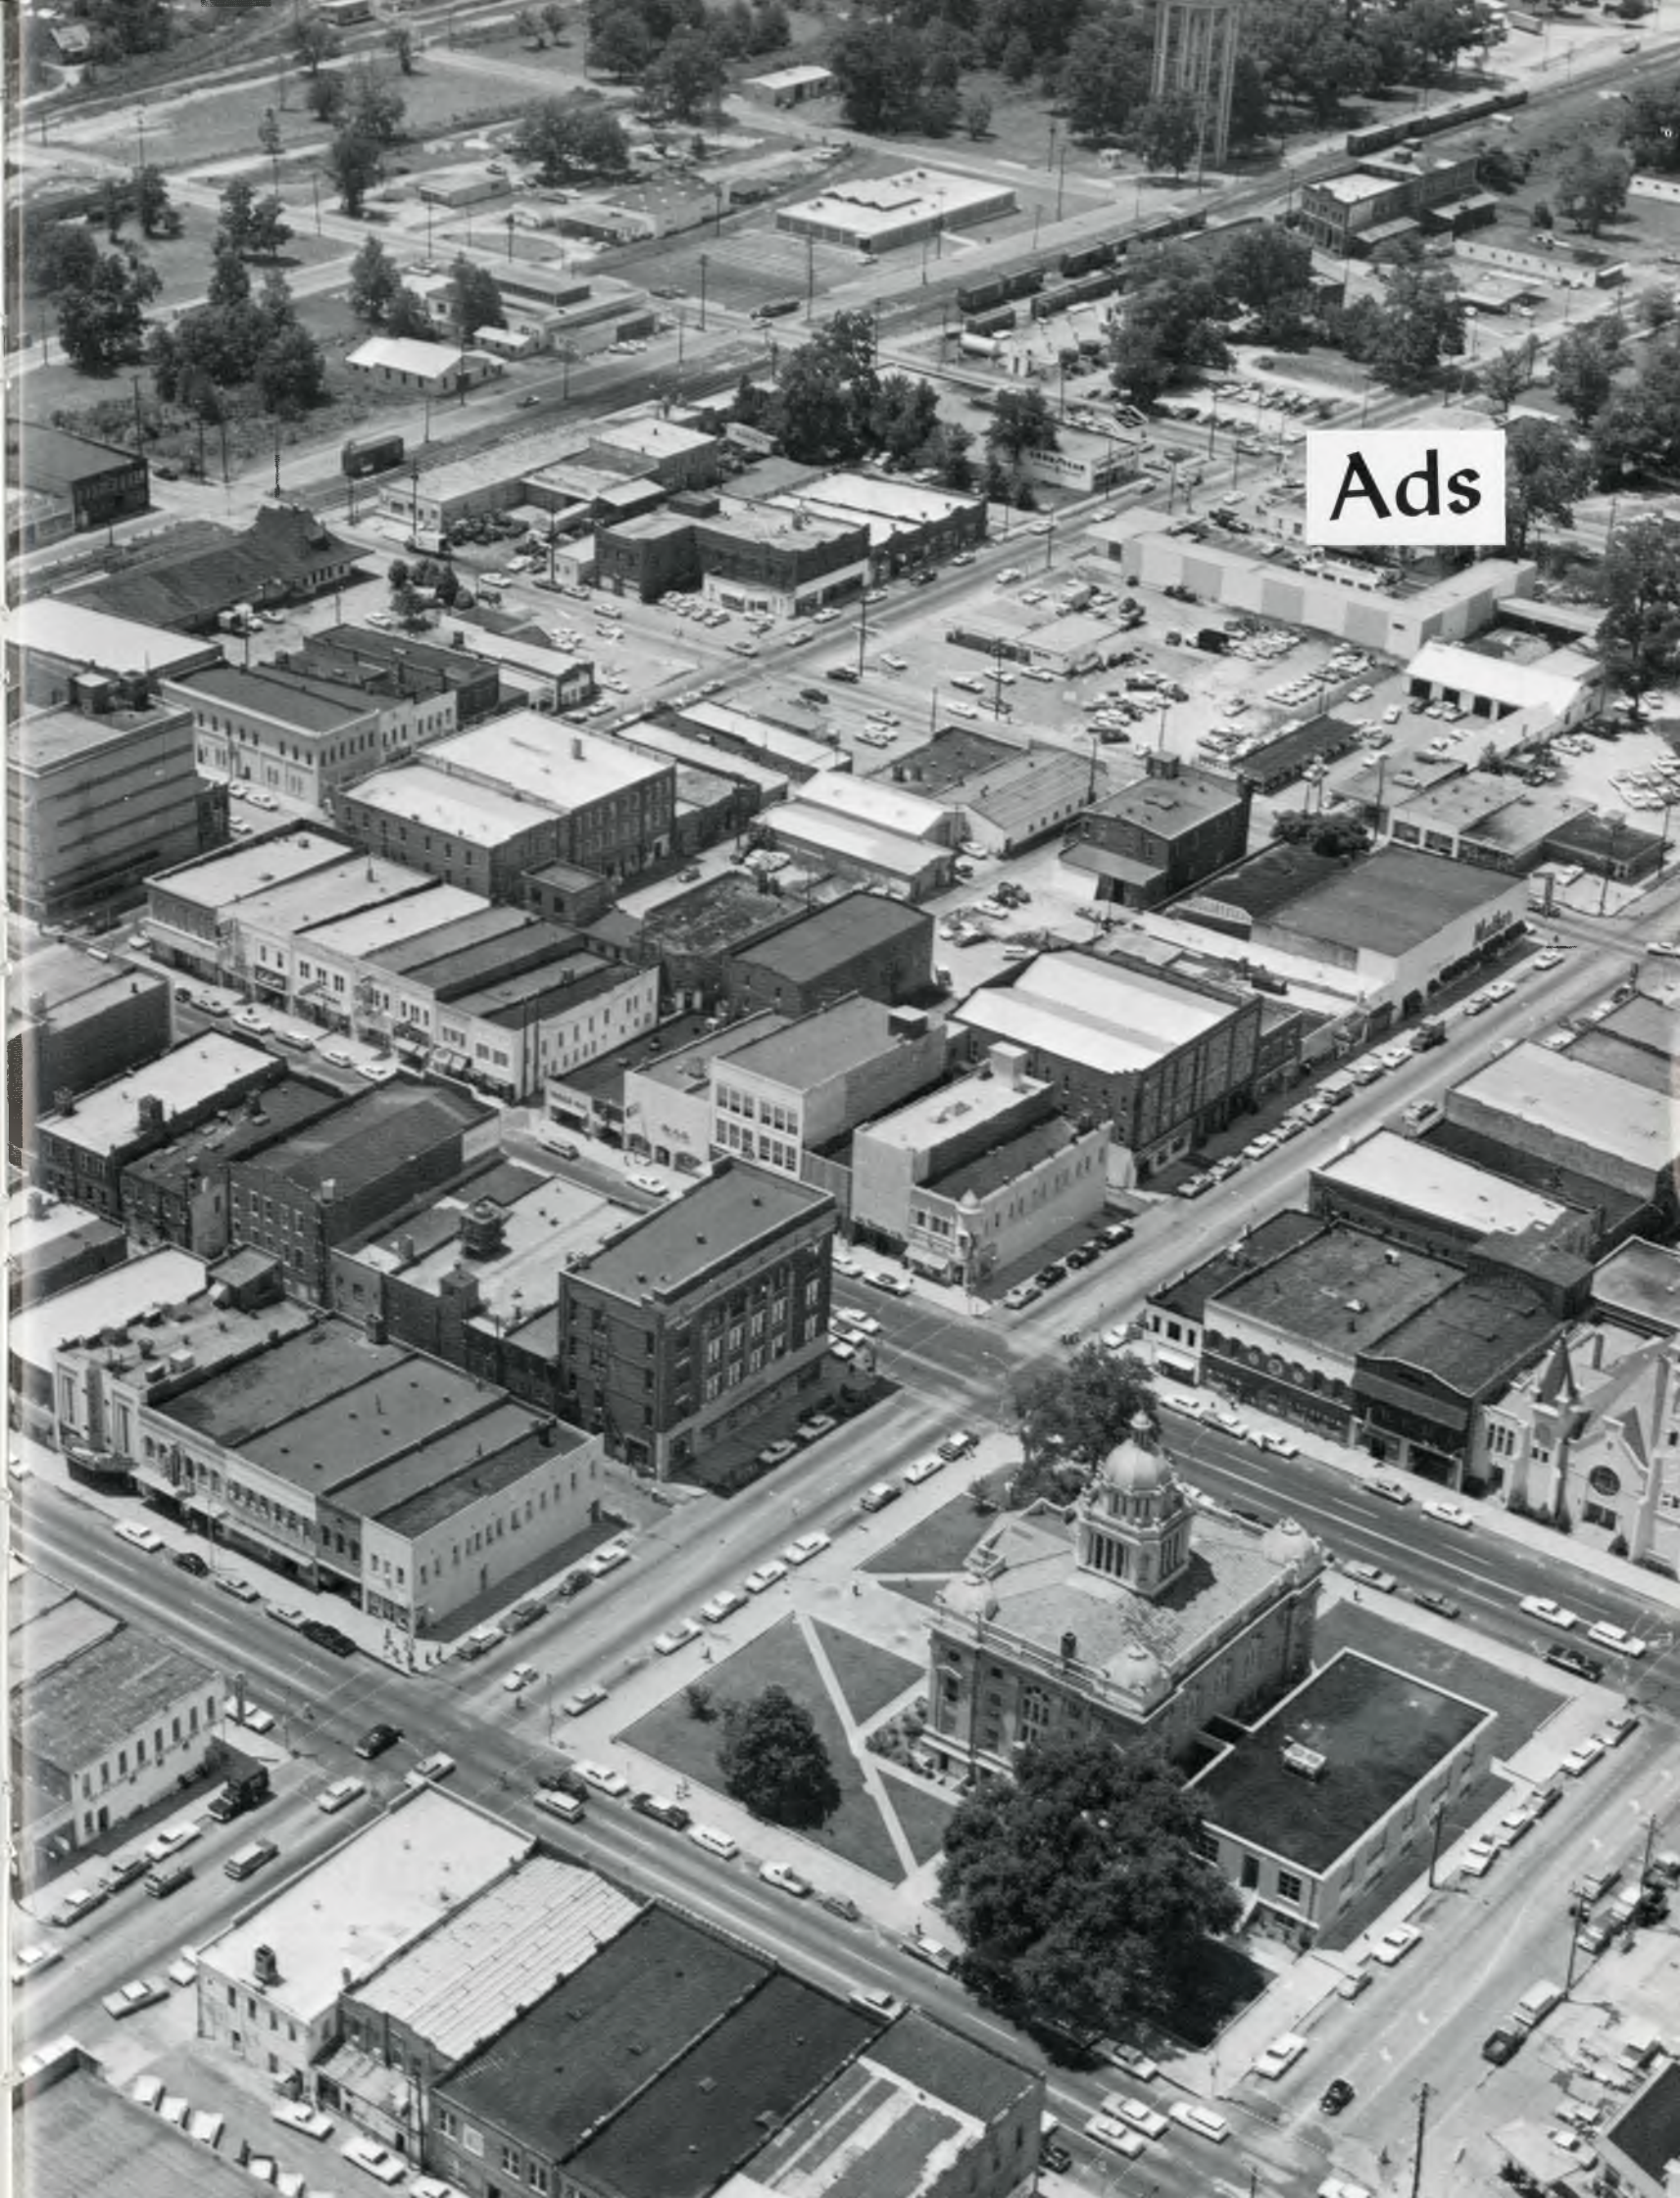

The preparation of this book has required countless hours of planning, writing, arranging for pictures, copy reading, drawing off pages, holding conferences, and the thousand and one details that seemed so never-ending. It has meant nights of staying up late, typing until the wee hours of the morning, and rushing to the post office to be sure that deadline would be met. Yes, it was indeed a big job, but here it is at last—the product of our efforts. Our special thanks go to the representative from American Yearbook Company, Mr. Dan Troy; to our annual advisor, Mr. Fluker G. Stewart; to the Valdosta Times and to a faithful and hardworking staff. The whole-hearted support and enthusiasm of the faculty, staff, and the students on this campus made our work not only a challenge but fun as well.

We present the 1967 Pine Cone to you, the students and faculty of VSC, hoping you will find in it pleasure and satisfaction, now and in later years. Tomorrow, while turning these pages, if you should recall the many smiles, sorrows, and dreams of '67, we shall be content knowing that we have done the thing we were called upon to do.

In closing, we wish to pay tribute to the memory of two fellow students, Lamar Threatt and Joe Buff, who were killed in automobile accidents.
