opportunity would

1 in general terms, de a few years, now favorable as others, he story of what is Inited States to-day, in the last decades; comfort have grown, ndard of excellence he first rank of the of success has de-I higher praise, can rtunity has declined ant? Living in bigever, America needs ever and more of ay, big in their caon;, big in their will I with great matters es of them. One can ive no Washingtons , and the land piopassed. Washington bewildered to underover's job. We omit agricultural problem. This country is an endous field to stir the young and int, in numberless fine they need not fear 1 roof holding them s penning them in. ome obstacles in the ere always have been

LD'S GREEN.

ise opportunity would

tizens of Bloomfield poiling of the village sible a through traffic ierits public approval igh the disclaimer of department of any indicates that agitaat the moment. The ters of New England reatly to their attracrability as places of fficult to conceive of intruding upon them. ight-line highway in ns is not so essential athless disregard of tions. There has been that the state highis rather callous to preserving the beauvillages. We believe ust and the abandonomfield plan by 'the 1 opposition developed confidence is not mis-MacDonald likes to ys in straight lines, inconsiderate person. physical beauty. The did not find his ears towns will likely find help preserve, rather stroy the beauty of ission has been caretter columns of the recently between an director of a museum lustry. They disagree s to the usefulness of ws, but on one point accord, namely, that icretal possibilities of ay lie outside the foron which patent rights ew device. The busiicturing necessity for ments in machinery

IS NECESSARY?

Tramp-Have you a piece of cake lady, to give to a poor man who hasn't had a bite to eat for two days? Lady-Cake? Isn't bread good enough for you? Tramp-Ordinarily, yes, ma'am, but this is my birthday.-Pitt Panther. * * *

How the Iceman Made a Find,

Or, the further tales of a wayside village, from the Noank correspondence in the Norwich Bulletin:

A cake of ice that came all the way from New Hampshire in a freight car with brother cakes to a local ice dealer was 24 inches thick, clear as a lake, you could shave in it. The iceman, Jake DeBerry, saw something that looked like a gold watch chain in the middle of the cake. Out came the pick an Jake started to work on the mystery. Picking away like a woodpecker at a school house door the happy iceman was near his find at last he came to it, after working on the New Hampshire ice for 52 minutes. He found it was a solid gold watch chain, the letters were H. D. P. on the charm of the end of a log also the date, 1885, making it 45 years old. By the looks, some old woodchopper was cutting ice when work got slack and lost his chain that he must have carried for many years. It was worth a good piece of change for it was in good shape for its long ride, about 980 miles. Jake DeBerry was all smiles over the gold chain and showed it to every one he met on his route and told the story of the huge piece of frozen water that came a long way to this village and believe me, with that chain across my vest, and all dressed up, bound to Taftville, to see his sweetheart and tell her that a cake of New Hampshire ice had brought him luck. It was bright gold, hand-made, each link and some day will be worth money.

The gang at the gas station was kidding him over it and said, "Well, Jake, did you find a car in that cake of ice? or a horse and wagon?" William Franklin, dry as a herring in a meat market, said "You might find Capt. Kidd's tea-kettle of gold if you look in another cake of that ice!"

DeBerry was asked would he tell all about the cake of ice with chain in it for the Lions' club in Worcester, Mass.

The trip was made by auto. It was a snowy evening and all the Lion members with their tall hats came to hear the young fellow talk. "This is my first time to speak before a crowd and it makes my legs shake like a jazz dancer; but, as I came a long way and was asked by the president of the Lions, I am here! It was in the village of Noank and my job is that of in iceman-ice make people cold for Suafirst time to speak before a crowd and large as a musk melon that had grown in the ice cake. I got out the pick and worked about 45 minutes before reaching the monster potato. I weighed it on the scales that George Washington weighed his riding boots on, never told a lie and the three-in-one potato weighed three pounds-enough for a Terrance avenue beef stew." The crowd gave him a cheer that shook the hands on the city clock. A Massachusetts lunch was passed around the crowd with sponge cake and coffee that touched the spot. The floor was soon ready for an old-timers' dance. Six old-time fiddlers around the age of 81 kept the comers swinging and many lost their third wind and how the old fiddlers could play! In one evening they wore out many lovers! At a lite hour Iceman DeBerry was ready to set sail for the fishing village, after a real evening of fun among the members of the Lions' club.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Communications publication in this column must be signed by the writer and ad-dress given. Anonymous letters will not be printed.

Agrees With Will Rogers' Critics.

To the Editor of The Times. The letter of disapproval of Will Rogers' dispatch concerning the Lon-don conference, signed "Reader," ex-pressed my sentiment. My sister and brother-in-law said theirs also. Doublies is environment of Doubtless it expressed the sentiment of very many. A. G. W.

Wethersfield, January 28.

A Word for Late-Comers.

To the Editor of The Times. To the Editor of The Times. It was certainly consoling to come upon the enclosed paragraph in The Times of January 23, and realize that in the "big city" the public is being told that it cannot be regardlessly discourteous and get away with it. Would there were a few Stowkowskis to read the riot act to Hartford audi-ences, for they need it with a ven-geance, as demonstrated by the recent Bushnell Memorial dedication exercises, and everything else of its order that I and everything else of its order that I have attended in Hartford in several It is almost insolent (to my years. way of thinking) to treat live artists as if they were just so many yards of movie film, and it is high time that somebody protested.

ETHEL L. STANNARD. Wethersfield, January 27.

The paragraph follows:

Music lovers arriving late for con-certs are being forced to cool their heels in the foyers. They are not admitted until after the first intermission. Leo-pold Stowkowski, who is touchy about audience disturbances, inaugurated the stern measure at Carnegie hall and the plan is followed at other concerts.

Comfort for Nervous Ills.

To the Editor of The Times. A fifteen years' struggle with sick nerves has made me a post-graduate in the school of nervous suffering. In my opinion, the diseases of the nervous system are the most appalling of any to which human flesh is heir. For not only are the physical and mental or-gans attacked, but the moral and spiritual forces are even more disas-trously affected; in fact, at times the entire personality of the individual is so changed that it bears little resem-blance to its original self. In certain of the more serious forms of nervous illness the patient neither to which human flesh is heir. For not

In certain of the more serious forms of nervous illness the patient neither sees. nor hears, nor knows the normal world. To him, the past, the present and the future, alike are hopeless. His thoughts ever evolve in a circle of worry, despondency and doubt, and turn which way he will, everything looks black. Sensitive, high strung beings, more or less broken in soul, mind and body, not knowing where to seek help, not knowing how to help themselves. Oftentimes, such patients realize that their trouble is largely within them-selves and that their recovery depends to a great extent upon their own ef-forts, but they are also keenly alive to the fact that they might do their share the fact that they might do their share of the world's work, and enjoy their share of the world's blessings, if they were given the understanding sym-pathy and the intelligent care to which they are entitled and which is accorded persons handicapped by phy-sical illness sical illness or roank and my job is that of fn iceman, to make people cold for Sun-day dinner.... The crowd cheered happy-go-lucky DeBerry till he told an-other ice story. "When I was in Chicago, about 20 years ago selling ice, I looked in one cake of ice and saw a triple-potato.

Letters of General Joseph R. Hawley Hero of the Civil War, Hartford Editor, Governor of Connecticut, Congressman and United States Senator.

Written to CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER

Copyright, 1929, by The Hartford Times, Inc., Trustee.

appointed ex-Governor English, the outstanding man of the Connecticut

In the April election of 1874 Governor Ingersoll swept the state, winning by more than 7,000 plurality over

Henry B. Harrison of New Haven. Not only did the democrats elect a governor and state officers but they gained control of both houses of the legislature. There was, therefore, no doubt that the United States senator to be chosen that year to succeed Buckingham whose term was to expire would

There was the same lively contest for the office to which the state had been treated when the republicans were in power. Eaton and Barnum were hot rivals. The articles written by "Al" Hotchkiss, political reporter of the Courant, were full of the contest. Hotchkiss heard that in 1872, two years before, Barnum had told

A. E. Burr of The Hartford Times he would make his usual contribution to the campaign, and more, if Eaton would keep out of the senatorial contest.

Eaton, so the story went, was amazed at the request, but agreed to be quiescent, although he would not consent to go to the legislature and thus have to help elect Barnum. Then there was a rumor, Hotchkiss wrote, that Eaton had put Marshall Jewell in possession of facts which beat the democrats and thus killed Barnum's ambitions for the time. So Barnum had a grudge against Eaton when 1874 rolled around with its

The Eaton men accused Barnum of having spent $40,000 to $50,000 to bring about the election to the 1874

Hawley himself, head of the Courant, had not been beaten six years before by the use of money by the Buckingham men.

Eston to 76

been spent in certain districts.

senatorial contest looming.

democracy, as his successor.

be a democrat.

LXVII.

Difficulties of the Centennial. General Hawley was chairman of the commission which was to stage the Philadelphia Centennial exposition of 1876, America's first world's fair. It was with great difficulty that the government's financial aid was enlisted for the project. The Centennial commission was created by congress, to be composed of members appointed by the governors of the several states. Hawley represented Connecticut and was elected chairman.

The original plan contemplated private financing, the sale of stock to those who would value the handsomely printed certificates as mementoes of their assistance in the great undertaking. It became apparent that this method of financing would hardly do so it was decided to seek a federal appropriation. There was much opposition to it, and in spite of a spirited speech by Hawley the house once rejected the appropriation bill and referred it back to the committee.

Hawley was greatly concerned over the reluctance of congress to appropriate money which would make the exposition possible. Assuming that there was to be a fair several foreign nations already had given notice of their purpose to have exhibits, and Hawley felt that it would be humiliating for the nation to decide against the project so late in the day.

So he wrote on February 27:

Washington, D. C. Feb. 27, 1874.

Feb. 27, 1874. Dear Charles: Before this reaches you, the senate will have voted upon the question of perfecting the invitation to foreign powers to send commissioners to the Centennial. I believe the senate will pass the resolution, but if not now it will have to do so. I send you two pamphlets, and should be greatly pleased to have you read them, that there may be some one in the office who knows a little on the subject: The nation cannot retreat without a disgrace that will last a century. There is no need of retreat. We can beat any exhibition the world has had—not in fine buildings, but in the variety and importance of the exhibition. Our plans are well in hand, and most re-sponsible parties are bidding. The op-position is fomented by three or four parties, two of whom are about the style of Sperry. The Springfield Republi-can and Courant have appeared to me in this matter about as if they had concluded to sustain Sperry and Ben Eutler as the representatives of New Dear Charles: in this matter about as if they had concluded to sustain Sperry and Ben Eutler as the representatives of New England. (Sperry was N. D. Sperry of New Haven, later congressman.—Ed.) Please read the proclamation on Page 18, (Pamphlet No. 2) Fish's note p. 20 with the regulation p. 21 that were handed to the diplomats, and page 22 and tell me how the nation can escape handed to the diplomats, and page 22 and tell me how the nation can escape with decency. The most shameful chapter is not published—Fish's private circular of last November, warning our representatives that the president had no authority to directly "invite." I think I never saw a case so muddled by newspaper misapprehension nor a case where the pres so easily followed two where the press so easily followed two or three personal energies of a cause without investigating their charges. Our enterprise is in splendid condition in all but the funds, and would have been well off in those, but for the crists (the panic of 1873-Ed.)

Yours, J. R. HAWLEY.

NEW Y DAY BY

New York. Jan. fabled Four Hundred Flfteen Thousand. the number of names Register—the official the swells. No one Those who seem to b filed applications.

filed applications. Many names in 1 actually in society. I as wives or husband Col. Charles Lindbe habit of landing in landed in the Registi-attained, without ef vainly sought for ye: The only person c drawal was a celebri objected to the advert pearance in it man pearance in it inspi with the social urge r tion, but having it thing else again. There is an advisor.

decides upon the fitt tlous. The personn body is shrouded in though it is reputed bers. When they to plication, there is no So eager are some achieve the illustrious one enthuisiast is sa $100,000 to the p secure him the recog is sold for $6 and an;

a copy. The Social Register the mauve decade kr This was prepared in Maurice V. Mintern visiting list and w vately. There were qualified.

The biggest sale of puted among broker houses which found vestment promotion outside of New York Social Registers, chi lack of interest.

In the past two ye have had first books authors were three sa a chorus girl, a spi the proprietress of a washer, a hotel nigh agents, a valet, a ty and a theater ticket legislature of men favorable to him. Hotchkiss' articles in the Courant But the most cons all was that of Ch never written a line turned out "The Spe has passed the mill and Chic's last statement—I saw tl $25,000 named the amounts supposed to have The Hartford Times objected to the Courant insinuation that when democrats sought the senatorship money $25,000. began to fly. It demanded to know if

One of the by-pro authorship is a $6,0 the board of direct manufacturingmanufacturing—we guesses—a certain pi

Barnum men, of course, denied the * improper use of money. As the day of Public eagerness f the legislative caucus approached Barput of untrained scr in a more careful sci scripts in magazine num seemed to have the lead, but later estimates indicated that Eaton was very ciled chirographic 1 both sides of the par tossed aside with a i strong. Some republicans proposed that their party should make no nomination, leaving members free to choose between ceiving several exper

William W. Eaton of Hartford and Na-* * Three gentlemen tional Committeeman William H. Barslapped by ladies re latter felt they had l num of Salisbury, the democratic candidates. Barnum was the father of Two of the gossip. Charles R. Barnum who was prominent the cheek with blu away, but the third : in republican politics some years ago. at a nearby table an Finally a republican caucus was held * * which was slimly attended. There were

In old Martin's c tifully gowned actre table and slapped a who was sitting wi dropped on his knees tables until he reach is my notion of supe senate, while the house stood 132 for "Regarding your Thursday," writes I know who said: 'I Not exactly, but ' was some fool Frenc (Copyright, 1930, M ive of new inventions ipulse to bring someistence. For that reain a tool or machine ther patented or not, to be commercially sionally develop in ; are awarded by the ement of patent rights companies, indicating i use of a device may able to the rightful her hand, it is claimed re greater freedom in new inventions, many · reach the successful n unrestricted market. highly adaptable and larger opportunity is inventions if they are by patent rights and gle manufacturer as is represents the ancient cademic discovery and ess. It is the essential rdry of Edison that he He brings out new he makes them pay. pass the latter has deinventing genius from le fruits of his labors nd others have reaped r patent rights had

Perfect simile: smoke."

Stalemate.

Just as the key-move Solves the problem in chess, So should we move In this wet and dry mess.

Find the key-move first And the rest should be easy, Were it not for a thirst And our wont to speak easy.

helpless attitude would be transformed to a condition of happy, contented use-fulness; and the sum total of human suffering thereby greatly lessened. The normal person of healthy men-tal poise often finds it hard to under-stand nervousness as a disease. He is apt to consider the nervous invalid list-loss invictors and the sum the sum to the sum of the sum o less, indolent, irritable and taciturn, a rather faulty impression, but one to which I clung with tenacity until close observation showed my mistake. It is the tendency of these troubles to

It is the tendency of these troubles to render the victim inert and powerless. The will is frequently weakened or misdirected, exhaustion is a marked symptom and there is difficulty in con-centrating the mind upon either the work or the pleasure at hand. These cases, however, are wonderfully re-sponsive to right influences, and under painstaking direction and judicious encouragement they are often able to do a surprising amount of really excel-lent work. They need most of all, a friend and a refuga. Many of our so-called nervous wrecks have never known a fair chance. Several recent months' observation of the nervous sick has convinced me that prayer. implicit faith in God, and loyal human friendship are powerful healing factors in the cure of this class of sufferers.

class of sufferers.

CLARISSA M. PARKER. Burnside, Conn., Jan. 28.

The Disabled Ex-Serviceman.

To the Editor of The Times:

Too much attention is being given the 18th amendment when there are other subjects of more real interest to society than subjects which should be worked out by congness. There are other amendments that

Death of Charles Sumner.

Charles Sumner, senator from Massachusetts, for whose course Hawley had great admiration in the early abolition days and who was severely beaten in the '50's by Representative Preston Brooks of South Carolina in the senate chamber as result of a violent speech he made, died early in 1874. Hawley was anxious that the Courant should give space to the eulogy by the member from a former slave state, Representative Lamar of Mississippi. He wrote:

Washington, D. C. April 24, 1874.

Dear Charles: I send you to-day two copies of the Record of to-day that you may print most or all—it is not very long—of the address of Mr. Lamar of Mississippi. It was delivered in a very impressive manner, with little or no reference to the printed copy which lay before him. Lamar is a good representative of the genuinely chivalrous Southerner; a sin-cere believer in the doctrine of secession, and the good policy if not the divine right of slavery: a brave soldier, and now accepting with manly honor and frankness the full results of the war. He made a profound impression upon the House. I am sorry that no speech I heard on our side seized the occasion to make like progress torough occasion to make like progress toward real reconciliation, and wish that Mr. Lamar's speech could have been sub-mitted in advance to some of our folks. Of course I don't agree with all his proposition, but none the less does he

for Buckingham for Hawley.

13 votes for Buckingham and six for Hawley. The democratic caucus was more spirited. Eaton finally won. He had 91 votes to 46 for Barnum and 20

for Governor Ingersoll anrd was nominated. In the balloting Eaton had 16 votes and Buckingham four in the

There was a republican member of the house in 1874 of whom it is interesting to note that the Courant said he was "a young man of bright talents," He was a lawyer, a nephew of a state senator in Maine and hailed from Stamford. The interest of the Courant in him is worth noting for the man was Samuel Fessenden, who was to become a great factor in Connecticut affairs, to oppose Hawley frequently in attempts to influence Connecticut support in national campaigns, and finally to battle with Hawley as long as the latter lived for the senatorial seat. The Maine background very likely accounts for Fessenden's support of James G. Blaine when the Hawley wing of the party was against the brilliant Maine man. Doubtless it also accounts for the fact that Fessenden stood sturdily by Thomas B. Reed, speaker of the national house, in the presidential campaign of 1896 when the adroit Mark Hanna had weaned even Maine delegates away from Reed and into the. McKinley camp.

It was that desertion of Reed by delegates from his own state which caused Fessenden to hurl at "Joe" Manley, then or later a Maine congressman, that utterance which became a classic: "God Almighty hates a quitter!" The taunt was given prior to the opening of one I wenty-fi Ago T

JANUARY Hundred thousanc Warsaw, Poland, and Lodz in protest again General Kuropatk counter offensive in General Oyama's Ja five miles in first t since crushing defeat Breathitt county, flames anew with Cockrill, one of bes taineers.

Bishop Chauncey 1 address at annual n of the Consumers' L cut. Henry Miller and ) at Parsons' theater tangled." Johnny a the Hartford Opera 1 Pike."

From the clothing Ignatius A. Sullivan Hartford: "Best c $9.50."

Samuel E. Elmore president of William tion of Connecticut isciaimer of ent of any that agitaoment. The w England heir attrac-; places of conceive of upon them. nighway in so essential sregard of e has been state highcallous to r the beau-We believe e abandonan by 'the n developed is not mis-likes to sight lines, ate person. seauty. The nd his ears 1 likely find erve, rather beauty of

SARY?

been car ans of the between an a museum ey disagree efulness of i one point mely, that sibilities of de the foratent rights The busiecessity for machinery inventions ring somer that reaor machine ted or not. mmercially evelop in ied by the itent rights indicating device may ie rightful is claimed freedom in ions, many successful ted market, ptable and ortunity is if they are rights and cturer as is he ancient covery and ne essential son that he s out new them pay. ter has deenius from his labors ave reaped rights had ws help or lines seems ertainty as iers of new recourse to ontrol over surance of or royalties ing one.

IMENT.

) voted the ow wish to party pri-

it 45 years old. By the looks, some old woodchopper was cutting ice when work got slack and lost his chain that he must have carried for many years. It was worth a good piece of change for it was in good shape for its long ride, about 980 miles. Jake DeBerry was all smiles over the gold chain and showed it to every one he met on his route and told the story of the huge piece of frozen water that came a long way to this village and believe me, with that chain across my vest, and all dressed up, bound to Taftville, to see his sweetheart and tell her that a cake of New Hampshire ice had brought him luck. It was bright gold, hand-made, each link and some day will be worth money.

The gang at the gas station was kidding him over it and said, "Well, Jake, did you find a car in that cake of ice? a horse and wagon?" William or Franklin, dry as a herring in a meat market, said "You might find Capt. Kidd's tea-kettle of gold if you look in another cake of that ice!"

DeBerry was asked would he tell all about the cake of ice with chain in it for the Lions' club in Worcester, Mass. The trip was made by auto. It was a snowy evening and all the Lion members with their tall hats came to hear the young fellow talk. "This is my first time to speak before a crowd and it makes my legs shake like a jazz dancer; but, as I came a long way and was asked by the president of the Lions, I am here! It was in the village of Noank and my job is that of an iceman to make people cold for Sun- A day dinner. . . . The crowd cheered life happy-go-lucky DeBerry till he told another ice story.

"When I was in Chicago, about 20 years ago selling ice, I looked in one cake of ice and saw a triple-potato, large as a musk melon that had grown in the ice cake. I got out the pick and worked about 45 minutes before reaching the monster potato. I weighed it on the scales that George Washington weighed his riding boots on, never told a lie and the three-in-one potato weighed three pounds-enough for a Terrance avenue beef stew."

The crowd gave him a cheer that shook the hands on the city clock. A Massachusetts lunch was passed around the crowd with sponge cake and coffee that touched the spot. The floor was soon ready for an old-timers' dance. Six old-time fiddlers around the age of 81 kept the comers swinging and many lost their third wind and how the old fiddlers could play! In one evening they wore out many lovers! At a late hour Iceman DeBerry was ready to set sail for the fishing village, after a real evening of fun among the members of the Lions' club.

Stalemate.

Just as the key-move Solves the problem in chess, So should we move In this wet and dry mess.

Find the key-move first And the rest should be easy. Were it not for a thirst And our wont to speak easy.

. Chicago politicians balk at contributing to the city's relief fund which has been started to the tune of many millions by the laymen of the town. Chicago politicians may have some faults, but they apparently avoid the inconsistency of emptying one pocket while

-A. M. J.

We have been told that we don't exercise enough to-day; but the informat the daily setting-up exercis filling another.

stern measure at Carnegie hall and the nations already had given notice of plan is followed at other concerts.

Comfort for Nervous Ills. To the Editor of The Times.

A fifteen years' struggle with sick nerves has made me a post-graduate in the school of nervous suffering. opinion, the diseases of the nervous system are the most appalling of any system are the most appalling of any the school of nervous suffering. In my to which human flesh is heir.

system are the the solution of any formation of the solution o looks black. Sensitive, high strung beings. Sensitive, high strung beings, more or less broken in soul, mind and body, not knowing where to seek help, not knowing how to help themselves. Oftentimes, such patients realize that their trouble is largely within them-selves and that their recovery depends to a great extent upon their own ef-forts, but they are also keenly alive to the fact that they might do their share of the world's work and enjoy their more of the world's work, and enjoy their share of the world's blessings, if they were given the understanding sym-pathy and the intelligent care to which they are entitled and which is accorded persons handicapped by phy-sical illness. illness

Robert Louis Stevenson, in defining what is called "The Value of a Friend" has said: "So long as we love, we serve, so long as we are loved by others I would almost say that we are others I would almost say that we are indispensable, and no man is useless while he has a friend." Many times these words have made life for me a finbr, sweeter thing; and particularly has this been the case in my relation and intercourses with the perments call. It is my honast connervous sick. It is my honest con-viction that if every nervous invalid had one true friend, ever able and ready had one true friend, ever able and ready to help him help himself, his hopeless helpless attitude would be transformed to a condition of happy, contented use-fulness; and the sum total of human suffering thereby greatly lessened. The normal person of healthy men-tal poice often finds it hard to undertal poise often finds it hard to under-stand nervousness as a disease. He is apt to consider the nervous invalid listless, indolent, irritable and taciturn, a rather faulty impression, but one to which I clung with tenacity until close observation showed my mistake. It is the tendency of these troubles to render the victim inert and powerless. The will is frequently weakened or misdirected, exhaustion is a marked misurected, exhaustion is a marked symptom and there is difficulty in con-centrating the mind upon either the work or the pleasure at hand. These cases, however, are wonderfully re-sponsive to right influences, and under painstaking direction and judicious encouragement they are often she to sponsive to right influences, and unter painstaking direction and judicious encouragement they are often able to do a surprising amount of really excel-lent work. They need most of all, a friend and a refuga. Many of our so-called nervous wrecks have never known a fair chance known a fair chance. Several recent months' observation of the nervous sick has convinced me that prayer, implicit faith in God, and loyal human friendship are powerful healing factors in the cure of this class of sufferers. class of sufferers.

CLARISSA M. PARKER. Burnside, Conn., Jan. 28.

The Disabled Ex-Serviceman.

The Disabled EX-Serviceman. To the Editor of The Times: Too much attention is being given the 18th amendment when there are other subjects of more real interest to society than subjects which should be worked out by congness. There are other amendments that are being violated every day without one word of disapproval from the presi-dent or any one else. If we want to dent or any one else. If we want to solve a problem of any kind we must first know the facts. I would submit a first know the facts. I would submit a few regarding unemployment as I see them from a working man's viewpoint. It is not necessary to say what is caus-ing the situation as every working man knows. Twelve years ago heads of corpora-tions and civic bodies and, in fact, everyone was saying as we left for duty in the A. E. F., that the best was none too good for, us when we came back. Some did come back, others were left behind to dot the fields of France with memories in the form of white crosses. Maybe they got the breaks after all. knows.

their purpose to have exhibits, and Hawley felt that it would be humiliating for the nation to decide against the project so late in the day. So he wrote on February 27:

Washington, D. C. Feb. 27, 1874.

Dear Charles: Before this reaches you, the senate will have voted upon the question of perfecting the invitation to foreign perfecting the invitation to foreign powers to send commissioners to the Centennial. I believe the senate will pass the resolution, but if not now it will have to do so. I send you two pamphlets, and should be greatly pleased to have you read them, that there may be some one in the office who knows a little on the subject: The nation cannot retreat without a antion cannot retreat without a disgrace that will last a century. There is no need of retreat. We can beat any exhibition the world has had—not in fine buildings, but in the variety and importance of the exhibition. Our plans are well in hand, and most re-sponsible parties are bidding. The opposition is fomented by three or four parties, two of whom are about the style parties, two of whom are about the style of Sperry. The Springfield Republi-can and Courant have appeared to me in this matter about as if they had concluded to sustain Sperry and Ben Eutler as the representatives of New England. (Sperry was N. D. Sperry of New Haven, later congressman.—Ed.) Please read the proclamation on Page 18. (Pamphlet No. 2) Fish's note p. 20 18. (Pamphlet No. 2) Fish's note p. 20 with the regulation p. 21 that were handed to the diplomats, and page 22 and tell me how the nation can escape with decency. The most shameful chapter is not published—Fish's private circular of last November, warning our representatives that the president had no authority to directly "invite." I think I never saw a case so muddled by newspaper misapprehension nor a case where the press so easily followed two where the press so easily followed two or three pressures of a causa-without investigating their charges. Our enterprise is in splendid condition in all but the funds, and would have been well off in those, but for the crists (the panic of 1873-Ed.) Yours

Yours, J. R. HAWLEY.

Death of Charles Sumner.

Charles Sumner, senator from Massachusetts, for whose course Hawley had great admiration in the early abolition days and who was severely beaten in the '50's by Representative Preston Brooks of South Carolina in the senate chamber as result of a violent speech he made, died early in 1874. Hawley was anxious that the Courant should give space to the eulogy by the member from a former slave state, Representative Lamar of Mississippi. He wrote:

Washington, D. C. April 24, 1874.

Dear Charles: I send you to-day two copies of the Record of to-day that you may print most or all—it is not very long—of the address of Mr. Lamar of Mississippi. It was delivered in a very impressive manner, with little or no reference to the printed copy which lay before him. Lamar is a good representative of the genuinely chivalrous Southerner; a sincere believer in the doctrine of seces-sion, and the good policy if not the divine right of slavery: a brave soldier, and now accepting with manly honor and frankness the full results of the war. He made a profound impression upon the House. I am sorry that no speech I heard on our side seized the occasion to make like progress toward real reconciliation, and wish that Mr. Lamar's speech could have been sub-mitted in advance to some of our folks. mitted in advance to some of our folks. Of course I don't agree with all his proposition, but none the less does he proposition, but none the less does he deserve credit for saying what he does, from his point of view. Got your letter this morning. The Senate is at this moment 2 to 3 en-gaged in a spicy discussion of the veto message. (Of the currency inflation bill.--Ed.) There is no development worth mentioning. worth mentioning.

Yours, J. R. H.

Death of Senator Ferry. Senator Ferry died in 1873 and Governor Ingersoll, being a democrat, had

mander, Bill Murphy, that nobody locked horns over a critical question knows better what the disabled veteran which was not definitely disposed of in a rumor, Hotchkiss wrote, that Eaton had put Marshall Jewell in possession of facts which beat the democrats and thus killed Barnum's ambitions for the time. So Barnum had a grudge against Eaton when 1874 rolled around with its senatorial contest looming.

The Eaton men accused Barnum of having spent $40,000 to $50,000 to bring about the election to the 1874 legislature of men favorable to him. Hotchkiss' articles in the Courant named the amounts supposed to have been spent in certain districts.

The Hartford Times objected to the Courant insinuation that when democrats sought the senatorship money began to fly. It demanded to know if Hawley himself, head of the Courant, had not been beaten six years before by the use of money by the Buckingham men.

Barnum men, of course, denied the improper use of money. As the day of the legislative caucus approached Barnum seemed to have the lead, but later estimates indicated that Eaton was very strong. Some republicans proposed that their party should make no nomination. leaving members free to choose between William W. Eaton of Hartford and National Committeeman William H. Barnum of Salisbury, the democratic candidates. Barnum was the father of Charles R. Barnum who was prominent in republican politics some years ago. Finally a republican caucus was held which was slimly attended. There were 13 votes for Buckingham and six for Hawley. The democratic caucus was more spirited. Eaton finally won. He had 91 votes to 46 for Barnum and 20 for Governor Ingersoll anrd was nominated. In the balloting Eaton had 16 votes and Buckingham four in the senate, while the house stood 132 for Eaton to 76 for Buckingham and 11 for Hawley.

There was a republican member of the house in 1874 of whom it is interesting to note that the Courant said he was "a young man of bright talents," He was a lawyer, a nephew of a state senator in Maine and hailed from Stamford. The interest of the Courant in him is worth noting for the man was Samuel Fessenden, who was to become a great factor in Connecticut affairs, to oppose Hawley frequently in attempts to influence Connecticut support in national campaigns, and finally to battle with Hawley as long as the latter lived for the senatorial seat.

The Maine background very likely accounts for Fessenden's support of James G. Blaine when the Hawley wing of the party was against the brilliant Maine man. Doubtless it also accounts for the fact that Fessenden stood sturdily by Thomas B. Reed, speaker of the national house, in the presidential campaign of 1896 when the adroit Mark Hanna had weaned even Maine delegates away from Reed and into the McKinley camp.

It was that desertion of Reed by delegates from his own state which caused Fessenden to hurl at "Joe" Manley, then or later a Maine congressman, that utterance which became a classic: "God Almighty hates a quitter!" The taunt was given prior to the opening of one of the convention sessions when Fessenden encountered Manley in the convention hall and was incensed at the news he heard of Maine's desertion of its favorite son.

But in 1874 Hawley's paper hailed this man who was to make Hawley so much trouble "as a young man of bright talents." It marked the beginning of "Sam" Fessenden in state politics. (Continued To-morrow.)

vestment promotions. Eleve outside of New York have disc Social Registers, chiefly becau lack of interest.

In the past two years, 486 u have had first books published, authors were three sailors, two a chorus girl, a speakeasy pi the proprietress of a bordello, washer, a hotel night clerk, eig agents, a valet, a typewriter i and a theater ticket taker. * *

But the most conspicuous su all was that of Chic Sale, 1 never written a line for print turned out "The Specialist." T has passed the million mark and Chic's last quarterly and Chic's last quarterly statement—I saw the check-$25,000.

One of the by-products of M. authorship is a $6,000 a year the board of directors of a manufacturing-we give y guesses-a certain product. * * *

Public eagerness for the rob put of untrained scribblers has in a more careful scribblers of a scribts in magazine offices. T ciled chirographic horrors wr both sides of the paper that us tossed aside with a glance are ceiving several expert readings.

. . . Three gentlemen have been slapped by ladies recently bec-latter felt they had been scand gossip. Two of the victims to the cheek with blushes and away, but the third sagged into at a nearby table and had a g

. . In old Martin's one night tifully gowned actness walked table and slapped a famous a who was sitting with his w dropped on his knees and crawl tables until he reached an exi is my notion of super-diplomat Perfect simile: "As hom smoke.'

"Regarding your article Thursday," writes R. F. G., know who said: 'L'Eta' c'est Not exactly, but we bet a ( was some fool Frenchman.

(Copyright, 1930, McNaught S: Inc.)

Twenty-five Y. Ago To-day

JANUARY 29, 1905.

Hundred thousand go on s Warsaw, Poland, and similar nu Lodz in protest against Russian General Kuropatkin of Ru counter offensive in Manchuria General Oyama's Japanese troo five miles in first big Russian since crushing defeat at Port An Breathitt county, Kentucky flames anew with murder of Cockrill, one of best known taina Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster address at annual meeting in : of the Consumers' League of C cut.

Henry Miller and Hilda Spon; at Parsons' theater in "Jose tangled." Johnny and Emma the Hartford Opera house in "L Pike.

From the clothing advertise Ignatius A. Sullivan, former n Hartford: "Best overcoats, f $9.50."

Samuel E. Elmore of Hartford president of Williams Alumni tion of Connecticut at meetin President D. S. Luther of Trir lege as principal speaker.

Ambassador Speck von S presents to President Rooseveli Wilhelm's plan for exchange fessors by American and Germ vereities versities

Senator-elect Morgan G. presents his credentials to se Washington. E. R. Thomas, millionaire sp breaks world's automobile reciten-miles at Ormond Beach, F. mark of 6:31 3-4, defeating W. derbilt, jr., whose mark was 6:5

HOW THE BISHOP WO!

advised by	ants forget the daily setting-up exercise	Maybe they got the breaks after all,	needs than the disabled veteran himself.	the concordat of February, 1929: name-	(Los Angeles Express.)
state that	of re-assembling the newspaper after	who knows? Others who came back	DISABLED VETERAN.	ly, control of the Italian schools. The	We have admiration for the candidates	certain members of the household have	presented a subject which was over-	Hartford, Jan. 28.	Pope's encyclical uses terms which are	bishop who when no audience finished with it.	looked by the promises made but a		universal, but the events of the last	hear his speech paid the janito
they voted		short time before.	THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL.	twelve months and the present status of a sharp controversy would seem to	hall 50 cents to sit and listen
ie last na-		The war was over for some but for		indicate that the problem which par-	The good bishop is wise in his tion. This	"The Noank Whirlwinds," says the	others of us it will never be over until	(New York World.)	ticularly engages the attention of the	knows the news value of the those who	Norwich Bulletin, "defeated the Mor-	the final taps are sounded in some	It is the central point in the argu-	church is an Italian problem.	Had he acknowledged defeat a degree of	gan A. C. basketball team of New Lon-	future day and until then we are living		We know, in any case, that whatever	or had there been those eager the same	don, 52 to 18. The game was much	memories of that terrible conflict which robbed us of our health and senses and	or neutral schools from which Christian	the position of the church in theory, its	him speak against increased st faster than the score indicates."	left us handicapped.	education is excluded" inevitably tend to degenerate into anti-religious schools.	practice depends upon conditions which	fares—that was his subject—th papers would have paid no a
. It is not	Well, the scorekeeper must have been	I received a letter from my employer	Believing this to be true, the Pope says	vary in different countries. In Italy fascism demands complete control of all	But an audience of one, and t
; the voters		telling me to come back to work for	in his encyclical: "We therefore con-	schools by the government, and the	hired, and the speaker a bisho ing for or	fast.	him and that my job awaited me when	firm our previous declarations and	church resists that monopoly of control	a story. The result was that the ve a streak	* * *	I returned from France. Unfortunately	sacred canons forbidding Catholic chil-	over education. In the United States	was heard by all the United tical make-	CALLS MODERN	I did not get back with the first troops	dren to attend anti-Catholic, neutral or	the government controls the public	through the newspapers. It's t virtually a	ART CHILDLIKE	but later in 1919 and when 1 presented	mixed schols, by the latter being meant	schools, but permits parochial schools	that sees and seizes his chan
this legal	IN EXPRESSION	looked me over and said that the ob-	those schools open equally to Catholics	as an alternative to public schols if	wins.
d.		ligations were about worn out. I met	This is a statement of Papal opposi-	they measure up to certain educational	IN THE PARTY FOLD.
u.	-Newspaper headline.	the same answer in other companies.	tion to the public-school system as we	standards. For Catholics and non- Catholics alike this system offers a sat-	IN THE PARTY FOLD.
Alsh mand	"Childish" is the word, according to	To-day the same spirit exists. Being out	know it in the United States and as	isfactory modus vivendi.	(New Orleans Item.)
tish speed-	J. W.	of work I went to several places where	such it will arouse interest and excite	islacioly modus vivenui.
d her gov-			comment in this country. We shall	HOW A DRESS FEELS.	On the stage at Washington tall two of		it would be hard to place me and I	make a mistake, however, if we assume	HOW A DRESS FEELS.	mind's eye sees a judge await happily on his rostrum with a
ilt for the	The "Skotch drunk" is introduced by	and the state of the second Alas billing	either that the Catholic church has sud-	(Columbia State.)	illustrious servants of the pub ipped with	Walter Seidler of Chicago who when	T same found out that T was facing a	denly enunciated a new doctrine con- cerning public-school education or sud-	the second se	in front of him. His job is to water craft	out of funds for liquor runs around in	discouraging situation I sought aid	denly launched an attack on the public-	Style or no style, sighed the last	mine what is a Republican? In t ower avail-	circles until attaining the desired dizzy	from the veterans' bureau and I was	school system of the United States. For,	year's dress after recovering from a major operation, it certainly leaves one	are bucolic Brookhart and urt
' misgiving	feeling. Mrs. Seidler gave him $50 on		as the Pope's encyclical says, the dor-	with that let-down feeling.	Thompson, standpat Moses an
	New Year's to take the cure and he	and the second s	trine enunciated here merely "confirms	with the lot down rooming.	loose Norris, Couzens and Vare
power boat	got liquored with it instead, so she	such things.	* * * previous declarations and sacred	TENTATIVE ESTIMATE.	and Grundy, Couzens and Mell
0			canons." In theory the church's op-		etc. If one of them is a Rej what are all the rest?
	appeared in divorce court and told	a sudden? I ask all disabled men to	position to lay schools is long estab-	(Toledo Blade.)	When the Democrats go on g dispensed	about it as representing "the last	join the D. A. V. and help fight the	lished. It seems probable that what		Al Smith leads the line, with bartenders'	straw." But surely it does seem to us	good cause for those who are more un-	has brought it to the foreground now is a special situation existing in Italy.	try is worth $300,000,000,000 But of	Cannon at his coattails, and .
better way	that he was taking the cure if there	Tortunate and cannot overcome or dis-	For at this time the Catholic church	course, if there were any purchasers	well, what's the use? What is a
	was a straw in it.	renest the words of our national com-	and the government of Mussolini have	we'd raise the price.	crat anyhow-or a Republican
I makery wateriet	Allow the processing and the second s	achean and moras of our maniful com-	And and Balandara as significant state	The second second second second second	