ose concerned with consumption of the Quantity production a machine operator's ess demand for his ortionately enlarged, follow in the wake lickened productive.

; puzzling aspects of 1 is the question of introl and from anie as to private and of the power reoint Professor Scott er problems of elecnd the statesmen." be of great help in on of those controdemonstrating how uipment favors one nother. The develale, of the superline, in regard to ress has been made bound to give to the er-state distribution nsely enhanced iment policies are sure the factors of econas related to disimption. It is unthe mastery of the on in the industrial ie use of electrical I new situations of ance, but there is the position that vill progressively exses already gained. are demonstrating s ready and able to the toiling hand of

ULLMAN'S DEATH.

to happen as result ly in New Haven of Ullman is that the nairman J. Henry ican affairs will be mel Ullman kept ay in New Haven. 1 he was out of p-state faction has trol any delegations r to pick state cen-There is little reathis will continue to oubt if there is any who will think it is 7 on warfare against ent in the party as The support which re to loyalty to him to Roraback. Now no one is likely to n the same way. 7 to see the faction Mr. Roraback very ie ascendant in New affairs. When that be no city in the can power does not men friendly to the

ICE PROCEEDS.

' session of the fivence in London gave glimpse of official hly complicated site clear that no imeached and that a n is distinctly domred to be the most sethod of procedure ted that she withning the viewpoints rs until action had ing her two main

From The Daily Times, March 2, 1841

Libel-The following libel is going round: Never trust a secret with a married man who loves his wife, for he will tell her, and she will tell her sisters, and her sisters will tell Aunt Hannah, and Aunt Hannah will impart it as a profound secret to every one of her female acquaintances.

As Maurice Chevalier might say, women are about the same as ever, no matter how much they have served on juries or carried a political banner or stated that they can do everything a man can.

* * The Three Tourists.

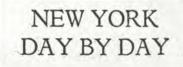

Three, discontented men one night sat down to analyze their plight; their future didn't look so bright; but still they faced it game. Their pay was small, the work was hard, the boss was always standing guard-all conversation strictly barred—and every window frame. Said one, "I wish that we could go some place where there's no ice or snow; it's so confining here, you know, and bad for my catarrh. I long to feel the gentle breeze that's wafted through palmetto treeswhere I can loll about in ease an' smoke a good cigar. I ont to see blue skies again and hear the mocking bird and wren; it's just like living in a pen to stick aroundhere. The weather, too, is so acute -there ain't but one good substitute an' that's the land of citrus fruit with sunshine all the year."

"I guess you're right," said number two. "I thoroughly agree with you and get your optimistic viewwhen can we make the start?" Said number three, "Let's pull our freight to-morrow morn 'twixt five an' six before the boss can arbitrate or have a 'heart to heart'." And so, 'tis said, they up and went to Florida on pleasure bent-without a scrap or argument,-in search of warmer clime, and, sure enough, we know they got in Jacksonville just what they sought; the state will make it plenty hot for themjust give it time!

> -BISH K. IBBLE. * * *

They ought to put a stop to this bisiness of circulating in behalf of the town of Winsted a reputation that that community grows taller tales and stories and pipe-dreams than any other. Deciding to investigate, we thoroughly coured the front page of a Winsed paper yesterday in order to see for ourselves, but this gesture of curiosty didn't kill us. Perhaps we're not cat despite all those allegations which . If the front page of the January 24 paper which we hooked at random gut hose responsible for the libel ought to go back and wash their face and sit down. According to the town doings on last Friday, Winsted is no more a derture from Sauk Center, Minn., Cos

New York, Jan. 31.—Thoughts while strolling: Manhattan's artistic flair— Michelangelo flanked by Woolworth. Early American and late Grand Raoids. Ancient Egypt and modern Macdougall Alley. Shawled foreign women who sit dumbly all day in employment agencies. Alfred Freuh, the caricaturist, a Lima boy, who made good in the city The boy, who made good in the city The movie theater with ushers sporting red roses in lapels. Marlen E. Pew, of Edi-tor and Publisher. Faith Baldwin, the novelist. And mother of twing. The theatrical tyro who will not speak to actors on the street theatrical tyro who will not speak to actors on the street. Irene Hayes, a small town Kansas girl, with a florist shop on Park avenue. The gloom of an empty theater. New York's gushing greeters Sailing Baruch's snow-white hair. News'es who cry: "Gitcher poiper!" Another novel-ist and mother with twins—Farnie Kil-bourne. bourne.

bourne. Actresses who cannot get away from "acting" even in crossing the street. Fontaine Fox. The dashing handker-chiefs Aubrey Eads sports Walter Damrosch's pleasant smile. An evening bonnet of crystal leaves—$125. Daniel Frohman, the actor's staunch friend. Jane Dixon, once a Park Row sob sister. Now the wife of a West Point army officer. The veteran Chas K sister. Now the wife of a West Point army officer. The veteran Chas K Harris. Who is still writing songs. What has become of the Human 'pid-uchn' B. Kennedy, the writer. ers? John B. Kennedy, the writer. Even though you get stung, there is fun at a fake jewelry auction

Tea places that feature fortune tel-lers. Everybody seems to stop at a window decorated like a bath-room. Mindow decorated like a bath-room, James Wolfe, Metropolitan basso. The dry sad smell from subway gratings, Otis Weiss, the youthful editor of Me-calls, who owns a dude ranch in Mon-tana. Maybelle Manning. A. Sulka, the haberdasher Sody, hatlese young atticts who corres distribut

A. Suka, the haberdasher Sody, hatless young artists who carry sketches in portofolios. Don Clarke, who duit Park Row to write a novel a year for, five years. The nifty tobacco shop with the copies of Trafalgar lions about its hear morths artigated to the state of the second black marble entrance. Vyvyanne Don-ner, the fashion artist.

Despite the financial flurry the King of Blue Sky Brokers is doing Jusiness at the old stand. His office is on lower Broadway and his door plate reveals the name of R. M. Smythe. He has no telephone and deals in wild-cat securities-with his tongue in his check He is a specialist in defunct issues and is a specialist in defunct issues and when they have lost all value he buys them. They are in turn sold to those who use them for papering dens send-ing them out as Xmas greetings and other quaint purposes. Banks fre-quently use them for window displays to light use them for window displays duped.

Capsule drama: The "ground woman" in an acrobatic act who was able to hold eight people aloft is now a part of an uptown window demonstration in her new role she blows soap bubbles in the air to advertise a soap.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., is said to have more doubles than any other New Yorker. Five young men about town are constantly being mistaken for him. One ran up a hefty night club bill be-fore his deception became known and another on a wager even fooled the Vanderbilt family butler, who admitted him to the family mansion with only a massing and automary passing and customary mournful glance.

A restaurant on Sixth avenue has for years featured a hat rack piled high with an assortment of hats. It is nowith an assortment of hats. It is no-ticeable from the street. Inside thare are rarely more than a dozen sustom-ers. But the proprietor clings to his trick. The idea is to give the imp es-sion to passersby the place is flourish-ing.

pagne pop and thus a sale of that beverage is stimulated. And you'd be surprised how many suckers there are for that racket.

Letters of General Joseph R. Hawley Hero of the Civil War, Hartford Editor, Governor of Connecticut Congressman and United States Senator. Written to CHARLES DUDLEY WARNER His Lifelong Friend and Associate in Newspaper Work.

Copyright, 1929. by The Hartford Times, Inc., Trustee.

NO. LXIX.

For Bristow at Cincinnati. In June, 1876, Hawley went to the national nepublican convention at Cincinnati to work for the nomination of Secretary of the Treasury Benjamin H. Bristow for president. The situation in the Connecticut delegation reflected the rivalry between Hawley and Marshall Jewell. The latter had been appointed postmaster general in Grant's cabinet. Some of his friends in Connecticut thought he ought to be given a complimentary vote for the presidency.

This did not suit the Hawley people. They knew Hawley was to be a .andidate for the vice-presidency. Hawley, too, was working for Bristow and had been asked to make the norminating speech for him. The Hawley people used that as a reason why the ielegation ought not to go for Jewell on the first ballot. What they objected to of course, was the use of a complimentary ballot for the presidential nomination to exalt Jewell, perhaps to the detriment of Hawley. Quite obviously that was the purpose for no one had any idea that Jewell could be nominated for the presidency and the idea was to get second place for him.

It was pointed out that the Connecticut convention had refused to instruct the delegates to vote for Jewell. The Courant editorially referred to the 'complimentary business" as a "stupid blunder." It asserted that Lynde Harrison of New Haven had taken it on himself in April to call a meeting of the national convention delegates in the Elm city. No action was taken but after the meeting it was announced. 'apparently without foundation," the Courant said, that 10 of the 12 delegates desired to give Jewell a complimentary vcte.

'Hawley being one of the two not so minded, Jewell's paper, the Hartford Post, accused him of riding rough-shod over his associates. Hawley's chance to answer that by showing his good will came when he himself offered Jewell's name for the vice-presidency.

On the eve of the balloting, Jewell, who was friendly to Bristow also, sent a telegram from Washington withdrawing his name for consideration and urging the Connecticut delegates to vote for Blaine for president.

However, Congressman Kellogg offered Jewell's name and on the first ballot there were 11 votes for Jewell, all of Connecticut's except Hawley's and one other. Blaine led for the presidency with 285, Oliver P. Morton of Indiana had 124, Bristow 113, Conkling 99, Hayes 61, Hartranft, 56 and Wheeler 3. Seven ballots were required. Blaine got up to 306 on the sixth, Hayes had 113, Bristow 1.1, Morton 85, Conklin 81, Hartranft 50, Wheeler 2 and Vashburn After this ballot Morton. Bristow A variant is othen employed in night clubs. "Prop" customers are served of their votes going to Hayes, who re-crom a bottle that opens with a chame fortranft and Conkling withdrew most ceived 384, against 351 for Blaine and enough to nominate. Neither Hawley nor Jewell had a real chance for the presidency, nomination be ng unanimous for Wheeler after South Carolina had voted. Hawley was a large figure in the convention. During the process of ganization, when speeches by various delegates were being heard, there were cries from all over the hall for Hawley and he responded with a stirring address. Hawley was the chairman of the committee on resolutions. He was a sound money man and exerted large influence to bring about the party declaration in the party platform against inflation and paper money. The platform also contained the assertion that "the United States is a nation, not a league." After Hayes and Wheeler had been nominated there was a great ratification meeting in the evening 'n Pike's opera house in which Hawley delivered a speech which was enthusiastically received.

the silver men found themselves without a market and were demanding that silver be restored to its position and that the government make monthly purchases to stabilize the market. Hawley was opposed to any such program and the Courant followed his lead. On July 27 he wrote to Warner commending the paper's editorial position and saying he was "astounded by the folly of some of our western republicans, nominally hard-money men in voting for Kelley's bill. (For the remonetization of silver and coinage on the basis of 16 to 1 .- Ed.) It is a measure of repudiation, nothing but a mean reproduction, or one more specimen of a class of measures resorted to many a time by mighty mean kings. With the present disturbed value of silver it is meaner than the Pendletonian plan of paying all the bonds in paper. I am Henry DeWitt Smit more alarmed about it than I have been Edwin J. Smith, rece about any measure for some years-1. because it gets support from several western men who were never so foolish before-2. because it looks as if it might pass he senate-3. because I'm plucky and honorable veto." (of the Chinese Visitors In Hartford.

afraid Gen. Grant will not repeat his earlier inflation bill.-Ed.)

In September of the Centennial year Hawley sent word to Warner that Mr. Francis P. Knight, one of the Chinese commissioners to the exposition was on his way to Hartford with two Chinese gentlemen. He wanted them to see Cheney's silk works, Colt's, anything Warner might suggest they might like. He thought they might meet Yung Wing, the Chinese expatriate who was one of the young men who first came to Hartford from China to be educated and who lived in this city until his death, part of the time with a price on his head for his liberal views. Hawley suggested that Warner show the visitors

"some civilities." "All foreigners" were continuing to 'praise the exposition" and he was beginning "to believe that it is really the best exhibition ever held."

In the autumn Hawley was kept busy with the presidential campaign, the exposition and ,toward the last, his own canvass for congress. Samuel J. Tilden, who was nominated for president against Hayes, was strong in Connecticut and carried the state, Governor Richard Dudley Hubbard being reelected.

Hawley went down in the democratic victory. He was obliged to leave Hartford immediately after voting to get back to Philadelphia and there he received the news of the election which indicated the success of Tilden and complete democratic victor, in Connecti-Tilden's victory, of course, was cut. short lived, for the electoral commission seated Hayes.

Not Disheartened by Defeat.

mowles had to get they at ones . Ita the details of closing the exposition besides which there were dinner parties and social functions to mark the break up. He reported that he hadn't had a Twenty-fiv Ago To

JANUARY 3

Russians leave 1.200 fighting with Japanes latter's losses being cor President Mellen o road announces plan 500.000 in improvement and around Middletow Associated Buildin membership of 75,000 labor body ever organ established in New Y

House reports bill to commission and place canal affairs in hands canal affairs in hands Miss Agnes L. Lon; P. Berry & Sons, rob Windsor avenue whi to bank. Highwayn by Supernumerary I O'Meara and Albert. Senator Morgan C former Congressman pear before war den pear before war dep proval of drawless Connecticut river at F Hartford council, I bella, organizes with Miss Mary L. Linehar Miss Mary L. Linenar More than 5,000 vis and evening the new Charles Soby at No. 8 Hartford Sængerbu sen, president, celek seventh anniversary: Henry DeWitt Smit to naval academy at I Congressman E. Stev Smith-Worthington Hartford, in business articles of incorporati retary of state.

It's a Wise Natio It Fattens Yc BY ROBERT

The age-old quarrel and town is kept aliv who don't understand The prejudiced cti the countryman as an who delights in gossi opoprtunity to meddl suppress and reform cities. The prejudiced co the city man a v prodigal who wastes riotous living and care and pleasure. Each draws his opin vironment and his pi ignorance. And in all essentials alike as two black-eye different soils—as an race can testify after of them. The simple truth i sinners in the city more people there, a man in town to raise sly thinks the people different to the sins because he is permitte lested whoopee amon opinion he doesn't fea If city people gossi try people, it is be fewer people to gossip They do their best;

trate to the inner cir gentsia and sit among ers, writers and profe find them discussing i and the faults of the

As to the countryn reform the city, that If he votes against cause he knows a for drunk and abuse the few boys who use liq to be silly or vicious. If he votes to mak dry, 19 sn't thinking whisky but only of brought home by his He thicks in term He thinks in terms ment, as the city man ment, as the city man is qualified to berate Their opinions an made by their neight need of bread and bu Let them exchange years they will exchan Every man's opinio by his need of a good he gets his living. Why should two cl:

ith ratios of classes the maximum level

the resolution of-.can delegation that e study and report limitation in terms that is, for a whole es, that is, by types z that matter to a e action when the It has become eviuntry, Britain and tegory plan, France provision that tonarred from one class rescribed limits and oth the relations of maximum of the ie will agree to suppower or the French ear any insuperable three positions. The to reduce tonnage prefer to bind each lefinitely as may be rance and Italy are · more freedom in I construction durars. As to this dift the American atexpressed at Thurseing susceptible of leu's support of the Cob or any other town than one afterdinner speech is from another.

Take the weather up in Winsted. In the first place, it is announced in the paper in a very customary place in the upper left hand corner, and Friday's prediction was "Fair and warmer tonight; increasing southwest winds becoming fresh," which seems very duddish and un-Winstedlike. You might think a Winsted editor would develop a gale, anyway, out of the word "fresh," but one doesn't. Now, "A monsoon (or even a typhoon), with little change in temperature, and coming with increasing velocity toward evening from the New Hartford area" would seem more in the grand tradition.

In the upper right corner in a similar box is discovered the fact that "We find we miss the Citizen so that we cannot get along without it, says a Winsted couple ordering the Citizen to Florida," but as we were forewarned about Winsted news we were not surprised that they could not get along without it, until after perusing the rest of the page. Of course, with the knowledge that the paper is being read in Florida, you would suppose it might bend every effort to please this part of the reading audience by killing off a few residents a day by cold weather, and running a local blizzard story in serial installments. Again we were let

There is a type of New Yorker who at every meeting for no reason at all suggests: "Why not have luncheon or dinner sometime?" Such invitations are entirely too vague and the next one is going to be pinned down abrupt-ly with a quick: "All right. When?" (Copyright, 1930, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

> The Once Over BY H. L. PHILIPS

NAVAL PARLEY CASABIANCA. The gob stood on the burning deck le was the gunner's mate; couldn't fight the foe because He His ship was overweight.

The fleets had met at sunrise but The thing that made him hot Was that he sailed a warship which The rules said he should not.

The enemy with tact and skill Had crabbed the gunner's act By claiming violation of The London naval pact.

The foe pulled out the articles, And this one he did stress: All warships shall weight 20 tons And not a half-pound less

'I know I have a smaller ship." The gob in tears replied, "But let us fight, I beg of you, For she's the navy's pride.

The Silver Question.

Silver had been demonstized as a currency in 1873 and with the discovery and development of enormous new lodes

STEEL INDUSTRY BRINGS CHEER.

(New York World.)

Nothing else this year has given Wall Street such a comforting thrill as it got from the publication of the past year's minge of the Tinited States Steel cor-moment to write with that day-November 18. It was difficult to guess when he would be able to get home. There were bureau and department reports to be made and the main report of the commission. At the moment he was obliged to cut short his letter to attend a farewell dinner to Lieut. General Saigo, chief of the Japanese commission. His postscript expressed rejoicing "at the prospect of having a home once more."

This prospect grew upon Hawley as the time for it approached. Still in Philadelphia on Dec. 3, he wrote:

Yearns For Hartford.

Yearns For Hartford. "My heart yearns towards Hartford. No schoolboy ever longed more earnestly for home than I for the house in Sig-ourney street and the books and old friends and the steady work that will seem like rest. It is perhaps the first time in 16 years that there has been really nothing before me but my own business. Things are going on tolerably well here, indeed quite well, but I shall feel a world of relief when I can say done with the exhibition and commis-sion. I hope by January 1st. to be in Hartford 'for good and all.'" (Continued To-morrow.)

(Continued To-morrow.)

greatest philosopher, Ralph Waldo Em-erson. He lived to be 86. The lives of father and son covered a space of 127 years. No one can read the elder Emerson's essays without being the better for the reading. He drew his ideas from nature. He saw in nature the from nature. He saw in nature the gigantic shadow of the infinite. Men another, when the pot both and either migl other?

The patient beast of a wild ass foaled in a (Copyright, 1930, Publ

LETTERS FROM

Communications des tion in this column r the writer and addre mous leters will not b

Religious Programs

To the Editor of The I would like to say cerning the Sunday p tion WTIC. I am c shut-ins in Hartford a citizen to ma for Chris given to me for Chris lighted with it, of cou that the church servi me, as I haven't been for several years. But appointment when I grams over ofter my grams over after my up I found that ther service or religious se from the Travelers. My set is not a lar get a few stations ou when WTIC goes on not strong enough s religious service from Take, for instance, you are hooked up wi IAN'S DEATH. uppen as result New Haven of in is that the ian J. Henry affairs will be Ullman kept n New Haven. was out of te faction has uny delegations pick state cenre is little reavill continue to if there is any will think it is warfare against a the party as a support which loyalty to him oraback. Now ne is likely to : same way. see the faction Roraback very cendant in New s. When that no city in the power does not friendly to the ion of the fiven London gave pse of official omplicated sitar that no imed and that a distinctly domo be the most d of procedure Les besters lesses hat she withthe viewpoints itil action had her two main atios of classes maximum level resolution ofielegation that dy and report ation in terms is, for a whole at is, by types t matter to a tion when the as become evi-, Britain and y plan, France. ision that tonfrom one class ibed limits and he relations of simum of the 1 agree to sup-or the French iny insuperable positions. The educe tonnage to bind each ely as may be and Italy are re freedom in istruction dur-As to this dif-American atssed at Thurssusceptible of support of the nich virtually point in a mimmittee is in-:onfidence that an be reached + representative ras largely in tion and curien going on in s between the ding days. It at there is an on the ground is bent upon

PROCEEDS.

long to feel the gentle breeze that's wafted through palmetto treeswhere I can loll about in ease an' smoke a good cigar. I want to see blue skies again and hear the mocking bird and wren; it's just like living in a pen to stick around here. The weather, too, is so acute -there ain't but one good substitute an' that's the land of citrus fruit with sunshine all the year." "I guess you're right," said number two. "I thoroughly agree with you and get your optimistic viewwhen can we make the start?" Said number three, "Let's pull our freight to-morrow morn 'twixt five an' six before the boss can arbitrate or have a 'heart to heart'." And so, 'tis said, they up and went to Florida on pleasure bent-without a scrap or argument,-in search of warmer clime, and, sure enough, we know they got in Jacksonville just what they sought; the state will make it plenty hot for themjust give it time!

> -BISH K. IBBLE. * *

They ought to put a stop to this bisiness of circulating in behalf of the town of Winsted a reputation that that community grows taller tales and stolles and pipe-dreams than any other. ciding to investigate, we thoroughly scoured the front page of a Winsled paper yesterday in order to see for ourselves, but this gesture of curiosty didn't kill us. Perhaps we're not cat despite all those allegations which . If the front page of the January 24 paper which we hooked at random gut those responsible for the libel ought to go back and wash their face and lit down. According to the town doings on last Friday, Winsted is no more a departure from Sauk Center, Minn., Cos Cob or any other town than one after-dinner speech is from another. Take the weather up in Winsted. In the first place, it is announced in the paper in a very customary place in the upper left hand corner, and Friday's prediction was "Fair and warmer tonight; increasing southwest winds becoming fresh," which seems very duddish and un-Winstedlike. You might think a Winsted editor would develop a gale, anyway, out of the word "fresh," but one doesn't. Now, "A monsoon (or even a typhoon), with little change in temperature, and coming with increasing velocity toward evening from the New Hartford area" would seem more in the grand tradition.

In the upper right corner in a similar box is discovered the fact that "We find we miss the Citizen so that we cannot get along without it, says a Winsted couple ordering the Citizen to Florida," but as we were forewarned about Winsted news we were not surprised that they could not get along without it, until after perusing the rest of the page. Of course, with the knowledge that the paper is being read in Florida, you would suppose it might bend every effort to please this part of the reading audience by killing off a few residents a day by cold weather, and running a local blizzard story in serial installments. Again we were let There was a weather story, to down. be sure, but it only claimed that "This morning was the coldest of the winter. Temperatures of 6 to 10 degrees below zero were reported in the city. Burrville and other outlying points, no doubt, experienced colder weather." It isn't news to say that Burrville is cold; if Burrville isn't cold, what else was Burrville named for? And only 10 below in Winsted! At that rate Byrd could write weather stories and nose out the Winsted correspondent.

Then, at the annual meeting of the First Congregational church, "evidences in portofolios. Don Clarke, who guit Park Row to write a novel a year for five years. The nifty tobacco shop with the copies of Trafalgar lions about its black marble entrance. Vyvyanne Don-ner, the fashion artist. ner, the fashion artist.

Despite the financial flurry, the King of Blue Sky Brokers is doing Jusiness at the old stand. His office is on lower Broadway and his door plate reveals the name of R. M. Smythe. He has no telephone and deals in wild-cat securi-ties—with his tongue in his check He is a specialist in defunct issues and when they have lost all value he buys them. They are in turn sold to those who use them for papering dens send-ing them out as Xmas greetings and other quaint purposes. Banks fre-quently use them for window displays to illustrate how the susceptible are duped. Capsule drama: The "ground woman" in an acrobatic act who was able to hold eight people aloft is now a part of an uptown window demonstration in her new role she blows soap butbles in the air to advertise a soap.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., is said to have more doubles than any other New Yorker. Five young men about town are constantly being mistaken for him. One ran up a hefty night clut bill be-fore his deception became known and out on an experience of the second the another on a wager even fooled the Yanderbilt family butler, who admitted him to the family mansion with only a passing and customary mournful glance.

A restaurant on Sixth avenue has for A restaurant on sixth avenue has for years featured a hat rack piled high with an assortment of hats. It is no-ticeable from the street. Inside thare are rarely more than a dozen custom-ers. But the proprietor clings to his trick. The idea is to give the imp es-sion to passersby the place is fourish-ing ing.

A variant is often employed in night clubs. "Prop" customers are served from a bottle that opens with a cham-pagne pop and thus a sale of that beverage is stimulated. And you'd be surprised how many suckers there are for that racket. for that racket.

There is a type of New Yorker who at every meeting for no reason at all suggests: "Why not have luncheon or dinner sometime?" Such invitations are entirely too vague and the next one is going to be pinned down abrupt-ly with a quick: "All right, When?" (Copyright, 1930, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

NAVAL PARLEY CASABIANCA. The gob stood on the burning deck He was the gunner's mate; He couldn't fight the foe because His ship was overweight. The fleets had met at sunrise but

The thing that made him hot Was that he sailed a warship which The rules said he should not.

The enemy with tact and skill Had crabbed the gunner's act By claiming violation of The London naval pact.

The foe pulled out the articles, And this one he did stress: "All warships shall weight 20 tons And not a half-pound less

"I know I have a smaller ship." The gob in tears replied, "But let us fight, I beg of you, .For she's the navy's pride."

"Don't be absurd," the foe came back, "We're not a pack of fools, And fighting any smaller ship Is quite against the rules."

"But war is war." the gunner said. "And we're out here to fight: To argue over size and weight I think is silly, quite."

"Another reason," said the foe, "Why we this fight must shelve Is that you've only eight-inch guns While I am using twelve."

'Oh, come," the gunner's mate replied, "And end this vain debate: I'll let you use your twelve-inch guns And I'll just use my eight"

It was pointed out that the Connecticut convention had refused to instruct the delegates to vote for Jewell. The Courant editorially referred to the "complimentary business" as a "stupid blunder." It asserted that Lynde Harrison of New Haven had taken it on national convention delegates in the after the meeting it was announced. Courant said, that 10 of the 12 delegates desired to give Jewell a complimentary vcte.

'Hawley being one of the two not so minded. Jewell's paper, the Hartford Post, accused him of riding rough-shod over his associates. Hawley's chance to answer that by showing his good will came when he himself offered Jewell's name for the vice-presidency.

On the eve of the balloting, Jewell, who was friendly to Bristow also, sent a telegram from Washington withdrawing his name for consideration and urging the Connecticut delegates to vote for Blaine for president.

However, Congressman Kellogg offered Jewell's name and on the first ballot there were 11 votes for Jewell, all of Connecticut's except Hawley's and one other. Blaine led for the presidency with 285, Oliver P. Morton of Indiana had 124, Bristow 113, Conkling 99, Hayes 61, Hartranft, 56 and Wheeler 3. Seven ballots were required. Blaine got up to 306 on the sixth, Hayes had 113, Bristow 1:1, Morton 85, Conklin 81, Hartranft 50, Wheeler 2 and Vashburn Bristow

After this ballet Morton. Hartranft and Conkling withdrew most served, of their votes going to Hayes, who received 384, against 351 for Blaine and enough to nominate. Neither Hawley nor Jewell had a real chance for the vice-presidency, nomination being unanimous for Wheeler after South Carolina had voted.

Hawley was a large figure in the convention. During the process of rganization, when speeches by various delegates were being heard, there were cries from all over the hall for Hawley and he responded with a stirring address. Howley was the chairman of the committee on resolutions. He was a sound money man and exerted large influence to bring about the party declaration in the party platform against inflation and paper money. The nlatform and development of enormous new lodes

STEEL INDUSTRY BRINGS CHEER.

(New York World.) Nothing else this year has given Wall Street such a comforting thrill as it got from the publication of the past year's earnings of the United States Steel cor-poration. The net earnings for 1929 of $258,000,000 have been exceeded only in the two war years, 1916 and 1917, when prices were at the peak and the demand for armament taxed the capacity of the prices were at the peak and the demand for armament taxed the capacity of the steel plants. Those who watch the business barometers, however, were not so much interested in the statement for the full year as they were in that for the final quarter. That the annual showing would be good had already been indicated by the publication of the cumulative results down to the end been indicated by the publication of the cumulative results down to the end of October. The period since October, however, has been one of general un-certainty, and the financial district has certainty, and the mancial district has been especially anxious to note how the country's largest industrial concern has fared since the collapse of the boom in Chinese Visitors In Hartford.

In September of the Centennial year Hawley sent word to Warner that Mr. Francis P. Knight, one of the Chinese commissioners to the exposition was on his way to Hartford with two Chinese gentlemen. He wanted them to see Cheney's silk works, Colt's, anything himself in April to call a meeting of the Warner might suggest they might like. He thought they might meet Yung Elm city. No action was taken but Wing, the Chinese expatriate who was one of the young men who first came "apparently without foundation," the to Hartford from China to be educated and who lived in this city until his death, part of the time with a price on his head for his liberal views. Hawley suggested that Warner show the visitors 'some civilities."

"All foreigners" were continuing to 'praise the exposition" and he was beginning "to believe that it is really the best exhibition ever held."

In the autumn Hawley was kept busy with the presidential campaign, the exposition and ,toward the last, his own canvass for congress. Samuel J. Tilden, who was nominated for president against Hayes, was strong in Connectiout and carried the state, Governor Richard Dudley Hubbard being reelected.

Hawley went down in the democratic victory. He was obliged to leave Hartford immediately after voting to get back to Philadelphia and there he received the news of the election which indicated the success of Tilden and complete democratic victor, in Connecticut. Tilden's victory, of course, was short lived, for the electoral commission seated Hayes.

Not Disheartened by Defcat. mawley had to get hirey at ones ... ita the details of closing the exposition besides which there were dinner parties and social functions to mark the break up. He reported that he hadn't had a moment to write mitil that day-November 18. it was difficult to guess when he would be able to get home. There were bureau and department reports to be made and the main report of the commission. At the moment he was obliged to cut short his letter to attend a farewell dinner to Lieut. General Saigo, chief of the Japanese commission. His postscript expressed rejoicing "at the prospect of having a home once more."

This prospect grew upon Hawley as the time for it approached. Still in Philadelphia on Dec. 3, he wrote:

Yearns For Hartford.

(Continued To-morrow.)

greatest philosopher, Ralph Waldo Em-erson. He lived to be 86. The lives of father and son covered a space of 127 years. No one can read the elder Em-erson's essays without being the better for the wadding. He dear his idear erson's essays without being the better for the reading. He drew his ideas from nature. He saw in nature the gigantic shadow of the infinite. Men were here to get as close to nature as possible, to unfold its wonders. He could see that each man had an oppor-tunity to construct his own world in his own way, with due consideration for his fellow. The son did not seek to follow in the his fellow. The son did not seek to follow in the steps of his father, which was wise, Dr. Emerson became a physician and his native Boston knew him as one of the best. His delights were in painting and general art. He did some writing of a biographical character, presenting the lives of noted men of Boston contempor-ary with his father. What a roster it was. The Boston of to-day does not re-motely approach the standard which motely approach the standard which was so marked in the days of the fa-mous Concord Circle.

It Fattens Your F BY ROBERT OUIL

The age-old quarrel bety and town is kept alive by who don't understand one The prejudiced city m the countryman as an infe who delights in gossip, rejopoprtunity to meddle, an suppress and reform those cities

The prejudiced country the city man a wild al prodigal who wastes his a riotous living and cares onl and pleasure. Each draws his opinions vironment and his prejudi ignorance.

And in all essentials they alike as two black-eyed per different soils—as any stu race can testify after livin of them.

The simple truth is the sinners in the city becau more people there, and t man in town to raise the sly thinks the people wic different to the sins of because he is permitted to lested whoopee among stra opinion he doesn't fear. If city people gossip less try people, it is because fewer people to gossip about They do their best; and Trate to the liner circle o gentsia and sit among the ers, writers and profession find them discussing the p and the faults of their a As to the countryman's reform the city, that is n If he votes against liqu cause he knows a few n drunk and abuse their fau few boys who use liquor i to be silly or vicious. If he votes to make a dry, r sn't thinking of th whisky but only of, the brought home by his neigi He thinks in terms of ment, as the city man does is qualified to berate the r trate to the inner circle o is qualified to berate the a Their opinions and st made by their neighbors a need of bread and butter. Let them exchange place years they will exchange o

Every man's opinions at by his need of a good repu he gets his living.

Why should two clay pc another, when the potter's both and either might ha other?

The patient beast of bure a wild ass foaled in a stab (Copyright, 1930, Publisher

LETTERS FROM THI

Communications designed tion in this column must the writer and address g mous leters will not be prin

Religious Programs Thron To the Editor of The Time: I would like to say a fev cerning the Sunday progra tion WTIC. I am one c shut-ins in Hartford and I given to me for Christmas lighted with it, of course, f that the church service of that the church service come, as I haven't been able for several years. But to r appointment when I look grams over after my set up I found that there wa service or religious service my intervent and the service from the Travelers. My set is not a large or get a few stations out of . when WTIC goes on the a not strong enough so I , religious service from anoth religious service from anoth Take, for instance, Sun you are hooked up with st We hear the Studebaker h mediately after that at 10:4 Parker from WEAF with hymns, but we don't hear t local station. I can get Seth Parker on Sunday eve: continual dance music this small set completely out a my idea could and oughi out of a Sunday program Then the mornings that s is on at 7 o'clock we don't worth while until 8:30 wi cheerio and which I think Why not give us the devo ice at 8:15 just before Cl on?

I am speaking for myse more who are shut in and sets who would enjoy a reli on Sundays and I'm sure on Sundays and I'm sure churches would be delighte to broadcast their services hundreds at least would service when they are noi because of illness or othe RADIO L Hartford, Jan. 29.

results for his of continued and increasing health and efficiency as a church were apparent." a consequence ; is daily sent But these evidences, of course, are alon a minimum ways apparent at annual meetings. Again, there is announcement of the the conference al contacts betransfer of a part of the Knights of no one who is Columbus property on Main street to the problem the Winsted Gas company, and in this we admit we are up a tree, as we really has underthat definite don't know whether the Knights of Columbus is accustomed to transferring orthcoming at address at the parts of its properties to gas companies or not; but anyway in another column ference, Secre-(the only other front page local story ; the American London pretime if necesrepeated over ns are proceedphere. number of our ies that they editorial page 'ery disquieting it is published rumor is news, d as a rumor. is proceeding is not very ; the very best save those of two deaths) it is reported "There has been talk of late concerning alleged poor service, discourteous drivers, curtailed schedules and other shortcomings of the New England Transportation company." As to whether there is, in allegedly bad motor transportation service anything newsy, weird or extravagant, we would prefer to refer this to either Grover Whalen and his recently clothes-conscious taximen, or to Mr. Maxim. * * Americanism: Taking the poor family seventeen turkeys on Christmas day; ie light of the leaving them to chew bacon rind the presented in it. other 364 days of the year.

"Don't argue, sir; the fight is off." The enemy replied, "For since your ship is underweight She is disqualified!"

Then came a burst of thunder sound; The gob. oh. where was he? Ask of the winds that far around With fragments strewed the sea.

Into a gun the boy had crawled And died in manner grand Because there are some naval rules No gob could understand.

*

$ Or Possibly Mr. Heflin.

The more one sees of ex-Governor Al Smith in those news-reel and rotogra-vure section pictures from Miami the more one concludes that the tailor who makes his golf clothes is a Republican.

Chicago is broke. Well, the racket-eers will have to look after it in its old age.

Dr. Cook is to be released from Leav-enworth, but will probably have trouble cenvincing anybody he was really there (Copyright, 1930, by the Associated Newspapers).

BUDGETS SHOULD NOT BUDGE.

(Asheville Times.)

The best way to curb personal and governmental extravagance is to con-struct budgets that won't budge. sons and daughters who were to be im-mortals in literary accomplishment. Dr. Emerson was the son of America's country's largest industrial content has fared since the collapse of the boom in the stock market. The fourth quarter showed some signs of reaction toward the end of the year, but it was comforting to note that the quarter as a whole was better than any corresponding period since the war. Meantime, since the turn of the year steel operations have been steadily in-creasing, and ingot production by the Steel corporation last week was re-ported at 77 per cent. of capacity, com-pared with 64 per cent. two weeks ago. It is evident that if there has been any material let-down in business activity as a result of the Wall Street panic this has not been registered in the basic in-dustry of steel production. The effects have been more evident in the luxury trades, but fundamental conditions are sound. AN EMERSON PASSES. (Middletown Press.)

(Middletown Press.) Tucked away in the death notices is the announcement that Dr. Edward Waldo Emerson has gone on. To the New England of to-day, to the Mas-sachusetts of these times, it means no more than the passing of any other cit-izen who is somewhat above the average in accomplishment and service. But to older neotice use to the nation, and, to in accomplishment and service. But to older people, yes, to the nation, and, to a degree, to the world, it indicates the elimination of another link with that period when New England sent forth sons and daughters who were to be im-mortals in literary accomplishment.

to that of burying the dead.

SCHOOLROOM ANSWERS.

(The Pathfinder.)

(The Pathfinder.) "Al Smith is a famous scientist." "There are two parts to a sentence, the subject and the predicament." "To kill a butterfly, pinch its borax." "The heart is an infernal organ." "The teeth are the grind organs." "Nicotine is such a deadly poison that a drop of it on the tail of a dog will kill a man." "Geometry teaches us how to bisect angels."

"A circle is a round straight line with "A circle is a round straight line with a hole in the middle." "Gravitation is that if there were none we should fly away." "Georgia was founded by the people who had been executed."

who had been executed." "The purpose of the skeleton-to hitch meat onto." "Weapons of the Indians-Bow, ar-row, tomahawk and warwhoop."

A TYPE OF FREE TRADE.

(Richmond Leader.) That visiting Englishman who says Americans are not familiar with free trade should hear our grocer talk about some of his accounts.

INTERRING THE LAW.

(Haverhill Gazette.)

The plan in New Jersey to repeal ob-solete statutes reveals a wisdom akin

TOM HEFLIN ON THI

(Elliott Thurston in New) James Thomas Heflin s saddest and sorriest figure public life to-day. "Cottoi saddest and sorriest figure public life to-day. "Cottoi marked man. Barring miracle, he soon is to pa eclipse after a quarter of i house and senate. Read party in Alabama for his bolting Al Smith, rejected people, repudiated by hi Tom is frantically, feveris for some eleventh hour sali is too late.

is too late. As final measures of desp plotting a sticker campaign to bargain with the republi cally enough, he seems do a victim of his own excer instances. For the hillbill main devoted to his gaudy the very ones least capable hending how to wage a sticker campaign. And the national and state, dare no trade with this Don Qu windmills are so often mire