Qualifying for SGA begins

By Luanne Manning

Qualifying for the offices of SGA President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Comptroller began Friday, February 5, and the final deadline is Friday, February 12 at 3:00 p.m.

Qualifying petitions may be picked-up in the SGA office.

Campaigning will begin Friday, February 12, and the election held Wednesday, February 24. Voting booths will be in the College Union, Cafeteria, Education Center, and North Campus. The polls will be open 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. in the Cafeteria, and 10 a.m. until 9 p.m. in the Education Center and North Campus.

If a person is unable to vote on the election day, he or she may pick up an absentee ballot in the SGA office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on February 19, 22, 23.

Voters should bring ID cards, which are required to assure one vote per student. Voting is open to all students taking 6 or more hours.

Open campus day at VSC

On February 18, VSC will observe Open Campus Day. This event brings a great number of Junior and Senior high school students and transfer students to VSC. This annual event is co-ordinated by a Recruiting Committee consisting of 16 students and faculty members.

After the 1500 students are welcomed in Whitehead Auditorium and Sawyer Theatre, leaders will carry large groups of visitors to the VSC Library and other places of interest. Each department has a list of Open-Campus classrooms. These classrooms will have signs on their door. When a visiting student sees these signs, he may simply walk in and observe what is taking place.

There is a schedule of special activities organized by different departments and campus units. Displays, exhibits, presentations, and tours will be part of the activities. The visiting students will also be allowed to visit the new VSC Television studios, music rehearsals, Plantarium Shows, slide shows, rock collections, computer science labs, writing center, Criminal Justice and History exhibits, biology and chemistry labs, and rat shows given by the Psychology department.

Information booths will be set up also. The fraternities and sororities, along with student workers and ROTC students, will be helping work the booths.

Mr. Lee Bradley stated that Open-Campus Day gives students a glimpse of the academic opportunities offered at VSC, and enables them to talk to VSC students. Visiting students are also able to talk to professors in areas of their particular interest.

Outside of Admissions, Open Campus Day is the largest recruiting effort put forth by VSC. Mr. Bradley said, "The cooperation of various departments in opening classrooms has been good, and the faculty and students recognize the importance of this activity because we have an excellent school with a wide variety of majors." Mr. Bradley has high praise for the faculty and the committee that helped organize this activity.

The Spectator Staff, pictured here with one of six new newspaper containers would like to wish everyone at VSC a Happy Valentine's Day.

VSC first in Georgia with minor program

Valdosta State College will be the first institution in the University System of Georgia to introduce an unique interdisciplinary minor in Intercultural/International Studies, according to Dr. William M. Gabard, Director of International Studies.

"VSC has been a pioneer in emphasizing the importance of the international developments in all fields," said Gabard, who became the state's first Director of International Studies in 1974. "We have always emphasized a global approach in a number of academic disciplines, including history, political science, philosophy, English, modern foreign languages, economics and management, and sociology and anthropology." "We also have focused on area studies in a number of academic programs," he added.

VSC's President Hugh C. Bailey observed that the Intercultural/International minor "will enable the college to continue its leadership in the field of international education and to prepare students adequately for living in a truly global society."

"We believe that VSC will offer its students, whatever their major, the opportunity to have a broad minor in Intercultural/International Studies," Bailey added. "This is especially important today when most job opportunities involve a knowledge and an understanding of other nations and their cultures," he said.

The new minor will be flexible; it may be earned by taking 20-29 quarter hours of designated upper-division courses. A basic course in Intercultural/International Studies 309 will introduce a student to the need for and usefulness of studying and comparing various cultures, their intrinsic worth, their value systems, and the importance of these in shaping religious, philosophical, economic, political, and social bases.

"VSC believes," Bailey noted, "that through the understanding of other cultures, students will develop a better view and understanding of their own culture and develop a greater awareness of the common humanity of man in cultural diversities."

Each student will be required to take a course in non-United States history and a course in a political science from such offerings as international relations, American foreign policies, world regional governments, and modern political ideologies.

Other than these three required courses, students may choose courses in linguistics and languages of Europe, a number of cultural courses in French, German, and Spanish, major religions of the world, cultural anthropology, international marketing, and international trade and finance.

A topics course in Intercultural/International Studies, which carries the number of 317, will be used for special seminars, National United Model Nations experiences, and other international activities to be applied toward the satisfaction of the minor. The latter, Gabard observed, would be useful for part-time students who attend for course credit special seminars and functions relating to international subjects on campus, such as the recent seminar on "Islam in the Contemporary World."

"The International Education Committee, which has functioned effectively at VSC for nearly ten years, originated the idea of the minor," Gabard said.

"The idea gained excellent support this year when Dean John C. Upchurch assumed leadership of the School of Arts and Sciences," he continued. Gabard noted that Upchurch secured approval by the various academic bodies which oversee the curriculum at VSC. The general faculty approved the minor recently.

"We are extremely pleased to have the minor in Intercultural/International Studies which will offer our students an unusual opportunity to enhance their knowledge of and expertise in the increasing international dimensions of all phases of human activity," President Bailey concluded.

Couple tours Spanish cities

VALDOSTA, GA. -- A Valdosta husband and wife team, Dr. Rosalie Allison and Don Allison, are to conduct a two week tour to Spain June 12-26.

Dr. Allison is associate professor of education at Valdosta State College and Don Allison is assistant principal at Valdosta High School. They have traveled extensively through Spain and for several years have sponsored student study groups to that country.

"This trip is not a study tour," said Dr. Allison. "We think this is a wonderful way to spend your vacation and, considering the cost of everything else, not expensive."

Cost of the tour is $975 and includes air transportation from New York, transfers from airport to hotel and twin accommodations in studio apartments in Torremolinos plus breakfast and dinner daily.

The Aloha Playa, where the group is to be housed, is a modern apartment hotel one mile from the center of town and five miles from the Malaga airport. Rooms are air conditioned and furnished with bath, phone, radio, and terrace with a sea view, according to Dr. Allison. Studio apartments feature kitchenettes and sitting rooms, with swimming pools, tennis courts, and golf course nearby.

"Torremolinos is a city of about 20,000," said Dr. Allison, "and is a famous international resort at the foot of the Mijas Range with many picturesque spots and beautiful homes nearby.

"Nearby is a fishing village, La Carihuela, with splendid beaches and an artists' colony."

Accommodations are limited and reservations with a $100 deposit should be made to the Allisons, Rt. 1, Box 306, Jennings, Fla. 32053.

Langdale speaks to management society

VALDOSTA, GA. -- John Langdale Sr., a Valdosta businessman, was guest speaker for the Valdosta State College chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management (SAM) at its winter quarter meeting.

Langdale's topic on "Gambling and Its Relationship to Management" was heard by 45 students and faculty members.

Since the fall of 1981, SAM has increased its membership by 500 percent, according to a spokesman. Future events of the group include a field trip to the Moultrie division of Miller Brewing Company, to be made with members of the American Society of Personnel Administration, which SAM members helped organize.

New officers of SAM are Chris Moss, president; Mitch Everett, vice president; Jerry Thomas, secretary-treasurer; and Bonnie Flowers, publicity chairman.

Hatcher conducts seminar on international trade

'A Workshop in International Trade' was held at Valdosta State College on Jan. 22. The seminar was conducted by Charles Hatcher, U.S. Congressman from the Second District of Georgia.

The conference, which attracted a number of south Georgia business leaders, featured as participants on the program: James W. McIntyre, Director of the Savannah District Office of the U.S. Department of Commerce, International Trade Administration; Jim Bisson, Director of Public Relations, Georgia Ports Authority; Howard Brandon, International Representative, Georgia Department of Industry and Trade; Marcus Jackson, International Trade and Development Center, University of Georgia, and Johnny V. Whitworth, Director International Trade Division, Georgia Department of Agriculture.

Following presentations by Congressman Hatcher and the participants, a panel discussion and open forum was held.

Cooperating in the International Trade Conference was Johnny B. Lastinger, Executive Vice President, Valdosta-Lowndes County Chamber of Commerce. Also assisting were Tim Golden of Congressman Hatcher's Valdosta office and Krysta Harden representing his Washington office.

President Hugh C. Bailey welcomed the guests to Valdosta State College.

Leadership seminar to be held at VSC

More than 75 administrators from nine school systems in south Georgia are participating in a series of seminars on "Leadership-Management," according to Dr. Malcolm Rainey of Valdosta State College.

Organized by Dr. Al Woodard, director of Okefenokee CESA, and Dr. Rainey, head, department of Educational Administration and Supervision, School of Education, the seminars are held at a different participating school each month.

County schools involved are those of Atkinson, Bacon, Brantley, Charlton, Clinch, Coffee, Pierce, Ware and the city school system of Waycross.

"This is the first time this has been done by VSC," said Rainey, "and virtually all of the administrators in these nine school systems are participating. We meet the first Wednesday night in the month for a three-and-a-half hour study program.

"One of the unique features is that we are able to use state funding for staff development to obtain well-known speakers to work with the group. We have some real experts assisting and speaking on various topics," he said.

Although VSC is the facilitating agent, each of the nine school systems has put money into the program, Rainey said.

"Dr. Woodard has also helped with the funding. He helped get this program organized and he is doing a terrific job. He's a former teacher and administrator with the Waycross city schools and we've worked as partners in the program," Rainey said.

"This program of seminars for administrators is different. We went to each of the schools and said, "What would you like for us to do that would help you?" and we planned it around what they wanted."

Upon completion of the program, each participant is to receive five hours credit in Educational Administration Supervision at VSC.

"We wanted to bring to the seminars their chief needs and problems and how they can be met," said Rainey. "I think this program is going to have a terrific impact on these nine school systems. We plan to do some follow up work after the interval of a year to see how things are going."

Both Rainey and Woodard spoke to the group in October on "Needs Assessments of Southeast Georgia Administrators."

Dr. Charles Fallis, head, department of Educational Administration at Georgia State University, spoke on "Current Legal Issues in Education" at the November meeting.

In December, Dr. Ramond Bernabei, former superintendent of Bucks County, Pa., schools, spoke on "Time Management."

Jack Willis, superintendent of Coffee County schools, spoke on "Organization and Decision Making Skills" at the January seminar.

Dr. Kenneth Loflin, superintendent of Meridian, Miss., public schools, spoke on "Leadership Qualities and

At the first meeting held last fall, participants selected the topics for the ensuing seminars.

Benches vandalized

By Charla Thornhill
The Exchange Club of Valdosta has a franchise from the city to place advertising benches at strategic locations in the city. One of these strategic locations is at the corner of Brookwood and Patterson on the edge of the VSC campus.

The bench there has recently, within the last month, been turned over several times and even damaged to the point of repair. Each time a bench is overturned or damaged, a crew of men and a truck must be dispatched to replace it. This situation is costing the club money that would normally be spent on community service. Thus, the community is suffering from the loss.

William E. Wilkinson, Exchange Club president and Associate Professor of Accounting and Finance at VSC, pointed out that the benches are the major money-making project of the club. All funds generated from the advertising benches go directly into community service projects.

The Exchange Club sponsors many worthy community services including the following: Youth of the Month Awards; Youth of the Year Award; National Crime Prevention Week for Valdosta; Policeman of the Year recognition; Fireman of the Year awards during Fire Prevention Week; Youth League baseball teams; Freedom Shrines consisting of twenty-eight documents relating American Heritage for Valdosta High School and Lowndes County High; "Book of Golden Deeds" for citizens who have never been recognized for contributions to society; and the "Proudly We Hail" program.

Phi Alpha Theta holds initiation

VALDOSTA, GA. -- Phi Alpha Theta, national history honor society, initiated seven new members on the Valdosta State College campus recently.

They are: Dr. Raymond Mensing, history professor at VSC; John Kendall Beck, Leary; Holly Ann Beasley, Waycross; David William Eggleston, Emily Shaw Anderson, Valdosta; Paul Day, Lakeland, and James David McEachern, Tifton.

Dr. John Ricks, associate professor of history, is advisor to the club. The organization has been on the VSC campus since 1978.

Students must have a minimum history average of 3.1 out of a possible 4, and an overall average of 3.0 to qualify for membership, according to Ricks.

Steve Saletta, Valdosta, is president of the society.

An editorial reply

Last week, two VSC students wrote letters to The Spectator asking about the results of last year's audit. A letter from another reader offering his own suggestions appears this week. It seems, therefore, appropriate that we attempt to clarify matters and perhaps give our readers some satisfaction.

The audit of The Spectator was conducted during the summer. The results indicated some problems with management in the past and offered suggestions for better practices in the future. These suggestions were reviewed by the administration and put into the form of guidelines for all campus communications organizations to follow. These guidelines are now being implemented.

Contrary to the letter which appears in this week's paper, The Spectator did not publish the results of the audit and does not plan to. The staff of The Spectator felt, and still feels, that old problems should not be rehashed but should be learned from so that we can provide a better newspaper for the students at VSC. The results of the audit are, however, public information and may be obtained at the SGA office (not the Comptroller's office) for inspection. Any interested student may read the results himself.

We are not in any way avoiding the issue of last year's audit but feel that it is in the best interest of VSC students to concentrate on the future of the paper and what we can do to improve it.

We welcome all comments and suggestions. Write us or come by the office any time. We want to hear from you.

Great Party Contest

Beauregarde L. Reade

A few quarters ago I received a cute form letter with a picture of a little pig-tailed girl's picture on it. Basically, it said that someone at VSC had taken an independent poll and found Wendy's to be the favorite off-campus eating place of VSC students.

I said to myself, "How nice." Nicer still were all of the nice coupons inside the envelope. I didn't remember voting, but I used the coupons anyway.

Eating out is important to students here. Mayhap that is due to the culinary delights served to us at the VSC cafeteria upon presentation of our diner's club cards.

Anyway, I was discussing this very important subject the other night with Roy P. Hartfield. Roy P. agreed that it certainly was nice to know the favorite place to eat among VSC students.

"But," he added in his own basically profound way, "what about really important stuff like VSC's favorite place to party?"

Worms fell out of that can by the zillions. There are a lot of places in Valdosta that could vie for the exhalted position.

There are your basic establishments such as The Junction, The Knights of Georgia, Floyd's, The American Legion, Stan's Studio 84, Papa Joe's, The Shang, and others that for some unknown reason have eluded me.

Not to ignore the home front, let us remember various fraternity houses, certain apartments and dorm rooms, and the President's cider sippin' parties.

Roy P., the closest thing to an actual party major, informed me that the latter would be much more festive if he got there really early with some Golden Grain.

In any event, since Senator Joe Thompson didn't make the whole thing academic, the winner will receive the first annual ROY P. HARTSFIELD BEST PARTY PLACE IN VALDOSTA AWARD."

Letters to the Editor

Griffin Replies

Dear Editor:

It seems rather ridiculous that pseudonymical characters such as "The Tank" and "The Grizzly Yank" have attempted to bring back an old issue that was settled long ago. The issue to which reference is given is that of last year's audit on THE SPECTATOR.

First of all, the results of the audit were disclosed in THE VALDOSTA DAILY TIMES and THE SPECTATOR. It was disclosed in several articles that a case of mismanagement on the part of The Student Government Association, THE SPECTATOR management, and certain segments of the VSC Administration had taken place. Responsibilities over these matters had been shared by several branches of Valdosta State College.

As for "The Grizzly Yank" and his attempt to discredit Mr David Hainline, that was a low blow. THE SPECTATOR was a good college newspaper during the days of Hainline's regime.

Unfortunately, THE SPECTATOR has been turned into a conservative and boring newspaper which operates on a format which is similar to a Sunday school bulletin. That is probably why jerks like "Tank" and "Yank" are trying to stir up a bit of controversy. (A matter of sheer boredom and frustration!)

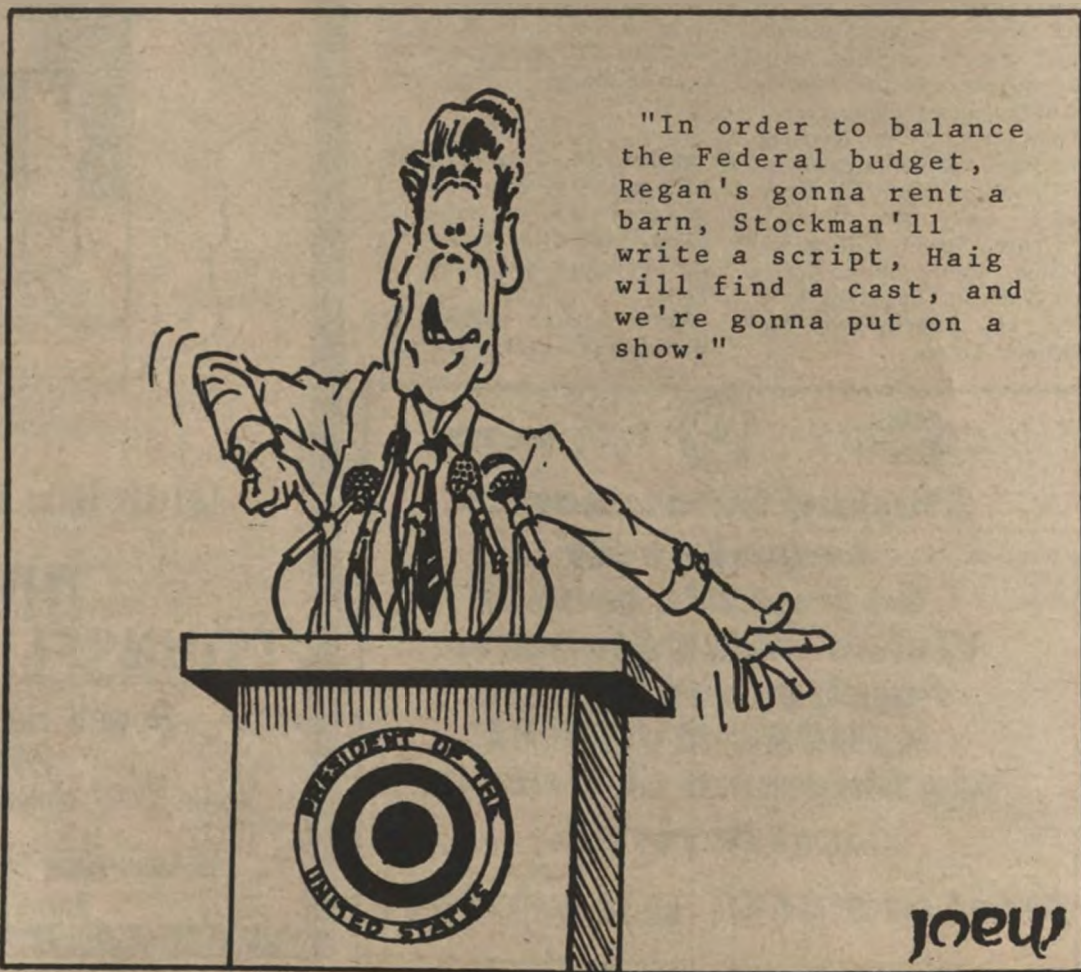

For an itemized account of last year's SPECTATOR audit, it is recommended that "Tank" and "Yank" take a trip to the Comptroller's Office located in Nevins Hall. Perhaps some research in that area might satisfy their curiosity.

Mr. Hainline and his allies have been forced out of the picture involving VSC campus journalism. Hainline and Friends have been maintaining low profiles and minding their own business.

Furthermore, it seems that anyone with any degree of seriousness regarding sensitive matters such as the audit should not have to resort to the chicken-hearted usage of pseudonyms.

DOONESBURY

by G.B. Trudeau

Guest Editorial

David Sims

American society is based on, among other things, the idea that freedom of speech is the right of every man. Making your opinion known is the only known way of getting what you want, but it is not enough to complain discreetly and only once about a sad situation. Sometimes you have to advocate your cause for years in order to achieve only a compromise. I have been doing so for the past four years for improvements in the cafeteria. In these four years I have learned two things: Things are often not as simple as they seem and not all people in positions of authority are against a good purpose.

I have learned that Mr. Mike Floyd, Director of the campus cafeteria, is a reasonable man. Once he and I discussed ways to prevent bread from going stale and jelly from molding. Mr. Floyd seems polite and very willing to listen to suggestions, and since then, I for one, have had no problem with the bread or the jelly. Other problems have taken longer to solve, and I praise our cafeteria for having two lines open for business at last Friday's lunch . . . Another succession finally taken (it had had to be made more than a few times.).

The biggest problem facing VSC students is that they can never seem to get together on an issue. Not just cafeteria problems -- the reason I pick on them is that I used to work there -- but on any major difficulty. In a recent poll taken by a student organization about 51 percent of the women on campus would like to have all visitations restrictions removed, and over 90 percent of the men on campus agreed with them. The amount of visitation allowed in a hall should be determined solely by the residents (you know, the people that live there) and not by authority types who think that mixed company after one a.m. is an evil thing.

When I mentioned student un-solidarity above I was referring to the habit of some to try and curry favor with the powers-that-be by defending the status quo, by saying that things are fine as they are and do not need to be improved upon. For example, while making some comment about the food in the lunchline (not all of my comments are bad by the way -- I am just as quick to praise as criticize (I believe in both positive and negative reinforcement) I was immediately beset on both sides by voices of inexperience attempting to out-do each other in setting me straight, plus some preaching by a serving lady in the vein of how people are starving in the Northeast corner of South Zanzibar and how

VSC Drama Presents

"The Me Nobody Knows"

By Leah Herrin

On Wednesday, February 10, the musical "The Me Nobody Knows" will be presented in the Lab Theatre. A play written by children with children as characters but not for children.

The production will run Feb. 10-13. The curtain goes up at 8:15 p.m. Tickets for adults are $4, children and non-students are $2.50.

The show is directed by Michael Wright of Warner Robins. The stage manager is Robbie Watson also of Warner Robins. Valerie Gruner, Athens, and Jeanie Mercer, Warner Robins are the choreographers. Musical directors are Nancy Bennett and Susan Akridge, Albany.

Valerie and Jeanie used their dance background to choreograph the rock musical. The dances are to songs like "Dream Babies," "Light Sings," and "What Happens to Life."

When asked about the musical Valerie, majoring in theatre at VSC, replied, "I think it will relate to a lot of people, we all have dreams." "I saw it in high school. The writings are by under-privileged children, but the theme relates to us too," added Jeanie.

Michael Wright of Warner Robins, a senior theatre major, who has appeared in such productions as "Sabine Story," "Dark of the Moon," and "Fiddler on the Roof," is director.

"This is an upbeat show with a good message," said Wright. "Those people from a large metropolitan area can identify easily with the story. The setting is New York and it takes place within the space of a day.

"There are 12 characters in the play, from 10-20 years old, and they express their views on school, sex, drugs, crime, war and life in the ghetto. Their reflections note that they know a lot more about what is going on than adults give them credit for. They have a good definition of what is right and what is wrong."

Although there is a lot of singing and dancing in the Obie Award winning show, Wright said it is not advisable for those under 17 to attend.

"The language is profane, but it is part of their vocabulary," said the director. "Personally, I feel it would be a good learning experience. Too many people think of kids as animals with 50,000 legs but they are individuals with feelings."

Wright anticipates a full house for every performance after the first.

Brown electrifies Valdosta

By Joyce Michael

Danny Joe Brown and Messendger performed to a stand-up crowd in Mathis Auditorium last Thursday night. The group played a menagerie of southern rock music. Danny Joe Brown, the former lead singer for Molly Hatchet, brought back some of their hit singles such as "Flirtin' with Disaster." When

Danny Joe Brown appeared on stage, the crowd rushed to the front of the auditorium, and remained standing throughout the show. The electricity in the air was strong as the concert continued. Danny Joe Brown and Messendger reacted to the excitement of the audience by promising to make Valdosta an annual event.

The back-up band, The Finney Brothers, had an instrumental, jazz sound. They opened the show with a variety of trumpet, clarinet and synthesizer music.

Danny Joe Brown and Messendger will take off on a limited southeastern tour and are expected to be in the studio to cut an album soon.

The PRSSA Chapter of Valdosta State College attended the 1982 Public Relations Southeast District Conference at the University of Florida in Gainesville, on February 6, 1982.

Registration began on Saturday morning in the Journalism and Communications Building. The Alpha Chapter of the University of Florida was host for the conference, entitled "High Expectations."

The purpose of the conference was to allow public relation students to gain more knowledge about public relations, through interacting with the various visiting professionals and other PRSSA members.

The opening session began at 9:00 a.m. in Gannett Auditorium, and the guest speaker was Ron Lustik, public relations director of Proctor Gamble, Cincinnati; Ohio.

Sessions dealt with Layout and Design, Media Relations, Resume Preparations, Portfolio Development and Interview Techniques, and were given throughout the day by business professionals from around the United States.

KA Skate-A-Thon Set

By Mark Powell

The Second Annual Tommy Swann Memorial Skate-A-Thon will be held this Saturday, February 13, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., at Skateland on Connell Rd.

Andy Wildes, who is in charge of this year's skate-a-thon, is anticipating a very good turn out for the 10 hour event.

Persons wishing to be sponsored for this skate-a-thon, need to go by the KA house and pick up as many pledge cards as desired. If a person wishes to sponsor someone instead of skating, they should contact a member of the KA/Fraternity.

All of the donations raised from this event will go to the Lowndes County Chapter of the American Heart Association.

Many local merchants are participating in this year's skate-a-thon by donating various prizes. The sorority collecting the most pledges will win a television. The individual who raises the most pledges will win a 10-speed bike. There are also many other prizes to be awarded.

The FM 96 van will be broadcasting live from Skateland. Also, on hand will be the FM96 Birthday Monster.

Miss Black and Gold picked

VALDOSTA, GA. -- A 20-year-old junior, Lisa Boykin, of Spelman College won the Miss Black and Gold Pageant held at Valdosta State College Jan. 29-30 at the state convention of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity.

As winner, Miss Boykin is to compete in a regional contest to be held in Columbia, S.C., in April. She was sponsored by the Alpha Rha chapter of APA at Morehouse College.

About 100 delegates from colleges and universities over the state turned out for the pageant, business meetings, a dinner, and dance held during the convention. Ozell Sutton of Chicago, general president of the national organization, was a special guest of the group.

A bio-chemistry major at Spelman, Miss Boykin is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha. For her talent presentation she sang a medley from "The Wiz." Participants were judged in evening gowns, swim suits, and casual clothes, as well as on talent.

First runner-up was Belinda Gaines of Mercer University, a 17-year-old freshman from Savannah.

Sherry Bryant of Emory University was second runner-up and Valerie Montgomery of Georgia Tech was third runner-up.

Joan Jett continues to rock

By Dianne Yeomans

After Janis Joplin and Chrisie Hynde, the list of really good female rockers is slightly limited. Joan Jett's new album "I Love Rock and Roll" seems sure to establish her as a female who can rock with the best of the boys.

Joan Jett began with "The Runaways," an all girl group whose main problem was that they didn't have any good songs. Her first solo effort released last year is a different story. Tracks like "Do You Wanna Touch Me There (Oh Yeah)," "Make Believe" and especially the title cut "Bad Reputation" combined a punk sensibility with a mainstream polish that made it impossible not to start dancing every time you heard them. Now, with "I Love Rock and Roll," Joan Jett has beaten the sophomore jinx and looks to attract a popularity that will exceed that which she established with "Bad Reputation."

"I Love Rock and Roll" features standout songs like the title track, "Victim of Circumstance," and the old Tommy James and the Shondells' "Crimson and Clover." Hopefully, Joan Jett's next efforts will be as good as her first two.

Cougars Slip Past Blazers

By Ralph Moore

The VSC Blazers fell victim to "last-second blues" again last Wednesday night in a 63-62 loss to Columbus College at home. Turnovers in the final minute and a Columbus basket with six seconds left dictated the result as a last-second desperation shot fell short.

The loss was the first for VSC in the conference, and made chances for a post-season tournament almost nil.

Four points at most separated the teams in the first half as Columbus went to the lockers at halftime ahead 31-27. Columbus relied on the never-ruffled Elton Ruffin to keep the Ivey Hubbard led Blazers from opening a lead.

The Blazers reclaimed the lead, 41-36, on a Bret Campbell to Ivey Hubbard effort, but relinquished the lead until two Ben Mackey free throws put them back on top 54-53. The Columbus coach-turned-hornblower approached the scorer's table and hit the horn, stopping action as the Blazers were running their offense. However, only a time out was charged to Columbus and not the technical Blazer fans felt justice called for.

A Columbus tally at 1:56 cut the lead to 62-61. With 20 seconds to play and VSC up 62-61, Columbus called a time out to set up a last second shot. Jeff Grosco nailed the winning points, connecting on a six foot jumper.

Ivey Hubbard topped the Blazer scoring column with 23. Ben Mackey and Lee Green tossed in 12 points apiece.

Ivey Hubbard is involved in a high-level dispute with a Columbus Cougar. Hubbard contributed 23 points in a losing cause.

Blazers Lose 79 - 71

Auburn University at Montgomery got win number 16 at the expense of VSC this past Saturday night in Blazer fieldhouse in 79-71 fashion. The uninspired play of the Blazers never allowed them the lead.

The Blazers trailed 12-6 at 13:50 in the first half. Richard Richardson's slam tip cut the gap to 24-21, but the Senators commanded the lead at the half, 38-31.

Ivey Hubbard was assessed his fifth personal foul at the 15:55 whistle, so ending a frustrating night for the Junior forward. VSC fell behind 53-38 but began a run that reduced the deficit to 63-60 at the 7:42 stage.

Auburn-Montgomery built the advantage to 71-62 and prevented any come back hopes.

Richard Richardson topped Blazer scorers with a 27 point performance.

Southern trips Ladies

By Bart Miller

Coach Charles Cooper "Celebrated" his birthday Monday night by making a trip to his alma mater of Georgia Southern. The trip was not much fun, however, as the Lady Blazers dropped a 73-64 decision to the Lady Eagles.

VSC seemed to have left their game in Valdosta during the first half as they scored only 27 points while shooting a miserable 27 percent from the field. Only good defense kept the Ladies close, as Georgia Southern managed only 33 points of their own.

The Lady Blazers came out in the second half hot and all of a sudden it seemed as though VSC would capture their 14th win of the season. Georgia Southern would have none of this, however, as they too found the range and kept VSC at bay. Both teams shot 53 percent for the second half and Georgia Southern came away with the win.

Janice Washington led the Lady Blazers in both scoring and rebounding with a 22 point, 12 rebound effort. Missie Milton had 19 points as she continued her post-Christmas hot streak. Sherri France, in one of her rare bad games, had 8 points and 7 rebounds while point guard Janis Williams scored 9.

Val Flippen and Terrie Houston led Georgia Southern with 11 each, while Trina Roberts and Vedo Merriweather chipped in 10 points each.

The loss dropped the Lady Blazers record to 13-7 on the year. VSC's next game is Saturday at Gainesville, Florida, where they will meet Florida. The game was originally scheduled to be seen on ESPN-TV but has been dropped from their lineup. The Lady Blazers then will return home on February 19 to play Georgia Southwestern.

Blazer Basketball: Up Close and Personal

By Jim Woody

The following is an interview I had recently with two members of the constantly improving VSC basketball team. Although the conversation was over a late-night E.S.P.N. broadcast, both Richard Richardson and Mark Ahern spoke candidly and alertly over the subject of basketball, past and present.

Woody- Describe your personal statistics concerning size, hometown, high school, and class standing.

Richardson- I'm a 6'6 sophomore from Greenville High School in Greenville, Fla.

Ahern- I'm a 6'9 sophomore from Barrington High School in Barrington, R.I.

Woody - What initially attracted you to the VSC basketball program?

Richardson- My experience at North Florida Junior College wasn't the best, and I wanted out. I contacted Coach Dominey here at VSC about transferring. He immediately signed me and so my problem was solved.

Ahern- Before entering VSC I served 1 and one half years in the Air Force. While playing on an Air Force sponsored basketball team out West, I was coached by Tom Dominey the brother of James Dominey. Tom referred me to Valdosta State and the Blazer basketball program.

Woody - Rate your social life at Valdosta State on an honest basis.

Richardson- In my opinion, the social life here is at a standstill. Back home life is so different and the people act so much more hip.

Ahern- To be honest, my social life started rather slowly when I arrived last year. Getting used to the conservative lifestyle and the many new people kind of depressed me in the beginning. However, I've got to say I'm adjusting very well socially now and I'm happier here than just about any place I've been.

Woody- What improvements do you feel the Blazers must make to peak at the conference tournament and provide a strong nucleus for next year's team?

Richardson- We must try to be more consistent on both ends of the floor. The maturation of many of our younger players will also be a key.

Ahern- Confidence is the main ingredient behind winning. In many of our games, some of the confidence needed for victory hasn't been there for us. Consistency, as Richard said, is also an area we need work on.

Woody- Name your starting five All-Star (All-Time)

basketball team.

Richardson- My team would have to revolve around "Pistol" Pete Maravich. Some of the moves he made in basketball will probably never be matched. The remainder of my squad is Moses Malone at center, Dr. J. and Jerry West at forwards, and "Big O" Robertson at the other guard.

Ahern- I like the style of Bill Russell, especially his awesome rebounding ability. He starts at the post for my team, followed by Dr. J. and Larry Bird at forwards, and Maravich and Robertson at the guard slots.

Woody- Who would you pick as the most successful and/or talented coach of all time?

Richardson- Red Auerbach

Ahern- John Wooden

What are your plans after you "hang up your sneakers?"

Richardson- I love the sport of basketball and would be very content to teach and coach basketball for the remainder of my life.

Ahern- I definitely want to buy a van and take a year off, experiencing what the West, especially California, has to offer. After my break is over, I am interested in teaching special education.

Woody- Name your favorite present-day sports announcer.

Richardson- Joe "String Music" Dean

Ahern- "Hot Rod" Hundley [9] - Give your impressions of football arriving at Valdosta State.

Richardson- I'm kind of neutral on the idea of another sport addition at VSC I do feel football will increase the activity during the fall season and alleviate some of the boredom on the weekends.

Ahern- Although bringing football to Valdosta State is a good thing in my opinion because of the obvious enrollment jumps, I question the advantage of changing VSC's simple and laid-back lifestyle with a louder football environment.

Woody- What would you rate as the best multi-purpose basketball shoe?

Richardson- Adidas

Ahern- Adidas

Woody- Describe your best high school game performance.

Richardson- I scored 40 points and pulled down 17 "boards" in one game. I could have probably scored more but I injured myself in the second half.

Ahern- Probably my best performance was a 33 pt. 15 "board" game. To say the least, I was very tired and very pleased.

Blazers trounce Edward Waters

The VSC Blazers overcame a slow start and held a comfortable margin for nearly 30 minutes in their 97-72 win over Edward Waters. The win lifted VSC's record to 12-11.

The Blazers jumped out on the fast break and took a 12-6 advantage. Edward Waters knotted the score at 14.

VSC moved ahead to stay, leading 24-20 with 9:00 to go in the half. The lead became 10, then 17 (47-30) at the half on a Campbell to Jones alley oop.

Edwards Water Closed the distance, 53-44, with 15:00 to go. At 7:14, the Blazers had moved ahead by 18 over their orange-and-purple clad guests.

A Hubbard to Willie Ward assist put the hosts up 81-62 at 5:12. The pursuit of a busted clock fell short, but all players saw action.

Ivey Hubbard blistered the nets with 25 points. He claimed a dozen boards to boot.

18. Mark Ahern matched his point total in rebounds, collecting 13 of each.

Cheerleaders are involved

By Ralph Moore

If you're one of those people that still thinks cheerleading positions are reserved for the girlfriends of the players, think again. Cheerleading demands more time and work than most fans realize, according to Mrs. James Dominey, Blazer cheerleader sponsor.

"We began the season practicing 10 hours weekly," Mrs. Dominey said. In addition, members of the squad must often give up free weekends and study time.

But even after such devotion, things don't always go well. "Like the Blazers, we've been plagued with injuries this season," the sponsor points out. Pulled hamstrings, colds, and a broken collar bone have affected this years group.

"But I'm especially proud of our guys; it's hard to be the first at something like this, but they've worked hard and done a great job," she acclaims.

As always, there has been a positive player response to the cheerleaders. The squad also has the support of Blazer coach James Dominey, who feels that the cheerleaders add needed color and enthusiasm to the game.

The squad has become a very close group. "This group is the best we've ever had with regards to friction between themselves," Mrs. Dominey praises.

Injuries have caused rearrangements within the squad; the differing "lineups" require adaptability, and getting along well as a group aids this.

Iris Cooper, in her third year on the squad, is the captain. Other cheerleaders include Meg Carroll, Beth Troutman, Harriet Madison, Jennifer English, Vivian White, Sonya Smith.

The charter members of the men's division include: Tom Adams, Adam Barnes, Victor Harrell, and Steve Cserepinski.

The next time you feel like making a comment about cheerleaders being glamour girls, how about handing them a crutch (literally) or better yet, attend a game and enjoy what they have to offer.

NOW INTERVIEWING ON CAMPUS

Feb. 9 Senate Meeting

By James Hendricks

The report promised by SGA Comptroller Graylon Brown was not given at the February 9 Senate meeting due to Brown's illness. Budget and Allocations Chairman Nolan Vickers said that it was "unfortunate" that the report was not submitted. "I think it is important that he should have at least had a representative here tonight," Vickers said.

Vickers continued, "They (the budget reports) are totally unacceptable. I'm going to make it my personal responsibility, as well as the Budget and Allocation Committee's, to see that something is done about the budget problems."

Vickers concluded, "I think it's kind of ridiculous for us not to know how much money we have or where the money went. I also think it's ridiculous that this problem has gone on as long as it has uncorrected."

Creationism controversy continues at college level

(CPS)--The federal district court ruling overturning an Arkansas law requiring primary and secondary schools to teach the creationist view of life's origins probably won't have much of an effect on colleges, where creationism still hasn't made many inroads in biology courses, observers say.

An informal College Press Service survey of February, 1981 found a number of secular colleges had recently begun to teach creationism as 'another theory' of the origin of life.

Despite the contentions of some creationism advocates, only a few more secular schools have included creationism in their curricula in the ensuing year.

'We're beginning to see a two-model approach being taken up' in colleges, says Dr. Richard Bliss of the Institute for Creation Research. 'We are hearing from more college professors who want to do it.'

But Bliss was unable to name any specific campuses that have actually adopted creationism in the last year. At that time, colleges like Iowa State, West Valley College near San Jose, San Francisco State and

Michigan State had instructors teaching the theory of divine creation along with evolution.

Most religion-affiliated colleges have always taught creationism with evolution.

The bulk of the pressure to teach creationism in secular schools has been directed at primary and secondary schools. A scientists' group formed to resist those pressures says there are creationist fights in some 42 states, including Arkansas.

'I hope we never see legislation on the college level,' says creationist Bliss. 'We would far rather go the route of persuasion.'

That route hasn't always been productive. In a response similar to those of other faculty members contacted for this article, Indiana University associate biology professor Dr. Thomas Kaufman cedes that creationism 'should be taught, but in the context of religion, not science.'

'Creationism is a religious view, and does not have a place in the science classroom, agrees Wayne Moyers, head of the National Association of Biology Teachers.

Even at San Francisco State, which creationists often cite as a 'two model' college, Biology Dept. Chairman Dr. Paul Barnes says divine intervention is briefly treated along with 'other theories which people have considered over the centuries.'

College textbook publishers also report relatively little pressure to include creationism.

Greg Gallath, a regional sales manager for Worth Publishers says an exception is Bob Jones University in South Carolina, which 'will screen salesmen at a gate and won't let in certain guys if they've sold offensive books.'

Women's college may lose funds due to equal rights law

(CPS)--Smith College is contending with more than one irony these days. The prestigious women's college could lose its tax-exempt status--and consequently millions of dollars in donations and tax payments--because its admissions policies seemingly violate Massachusetts' equal rights law, which prohibits discrimination on the basis of gender.

And now the progressive college finds itself in the same legal boat as fundamentalist Bob Jones University and segregationist Goldsboro Christian School.

Smith owns some property in Whately, Massachusetts, which in turn asserts the college should not be exempt from taxes because it discriminates against men in its admissions policy. If Smith isn't tax exempt, Whately officials reason, then it owes the town $450 in property taxes.

On the other hand, the Reagan administration at least temporarily wants to restore the tax-exempt status of Bob Jones and Goldsboro in spite of their discriminatory policies.

South Carolina's Bob Jones University lost its tax-exempt status in January 1981 because it forbids interracial dating among its students. Goldsboro refuses to admit black students.

But President Reagan in early January, 1982 directed the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to restore BUS's and Goldsboro's tax-exempt status, and asked the U.S. Supreme Court to dismiss the school's legal challenges to the denial.

The president subsequently responded to outraged protests from a wide spectrum of groups by promising to sponsor legislation that would give the IRS the power to deny tax exemptions to discriminatory schools.

The nation's 114 women's colleges, 104 black colleges, and virtually all private colleges could be affected by the outcome of the Smith, Bob Jones, and Goldsboro cases.

Tax-exempt status allows private schools to escape paying property and sales taxes. It permits them to use reduced mail rates,' explains Dr. Paul Salmon, executive director of the American Association of School Administrators. 'But most importantly it permits them to allow contributors to the institution to claim their donations as tax-deductible contributions.'

In addition, foundations cannot give grants to schools without tax-exempt status, Salmon says.

Consequently, 'we were delighted' to regain tax-exempt status, says Bob Jones spokesman Bob Harrison. 'The real issue is freedom of religion. We believe it is against the scriptures to break down racial barriers.'

'It all becomes a matter of race,' adds Pastor Don Tice of Goldsboro, a Baptist school in North Carolina, 'but it's not. It's a matter of religious freedom. We were persecuted by the government because it is founded in our scriptures that the races should not be mingled.'

It's a matter of gender at Smith, which is battling in the state Supreme Court for an exemption from taxes and Massachusetts law forbidding discrimination on the basis of sex.

'We feel our existence as a women's college is sound,' says Smith spokeswoman Ann Shanahan. 'Our historical role as a women's college is a legitimate one. It's something we were created to do, and something we have been doing for 106 years.'

'They are saying that since they have a history of discrimination that their admissions policy is acceptable,' counters Edward Pepyne, Whately's town counsel.

'They say they will not pay the bill as a matter of principle, but I have yet to hear what that principle is.'

'I suspect that the college will be successful,' observes Dr. Marion McGhehey of the National Organization on Legal Problems of Education.

McGhehey says that, 'With the recent Reagan action (toward Bob Jones University), it will be hard for Whately to argue that (it) can remove Smith's tax-exempt status simply because (the college) violates anti-discrimination laws.'

Pepyne isn't convinced. 'Whether it's Smith or Bob Jones University, the issues of discrimination are equally despicable. For the sake of equal rights, the best thing Smith could do now is lose.'

'Reagan ate catsup again,' says attorney Joseph Rauh, who represents the NAACP Legal Defense Fund. 'The president does these things without thinking. As soon as he made the decision, he had to turn around and say he didn't really mean it.'

Pepyne believes Reagan's action was aimed as much at Smith as at Bob Jones. 'The Bob Jones and Goldsboro cases have been going on for years. But within days after the Smith case received notoriety, Reagan made his announcement.'

Although he doesn't directly claim conspiracy, he observes that hundreds of other colleges could lose millions if Whately wins its case.

He estimates Smith would have an annual local tax of $2 million if it loses its tax exemption.

Panel threatens academic rights

(CPS)--'Here it comes,' whispered the professor to a reporter sitting next to him at the recent American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS) convention. 'They're going to say why we should like to have the boom lowered on us.'

Indeed, Adm. Robert Inman, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, proceeded to tell the assembled AAAS members why they should submit the results of their government-sponsored research to the government for censoring.

Inman presented a frightening scenario of the government giving millions of dollars to a university lab, which develops a vital piece of knowledge that, if not pilfered by a foreign student on the campus in the employ of his or her own government, would eventually fall into the wrong hands when published in an academic journal.

The issue has become even hotter this year as the government dramatically increases its sponsorship of military spending on the nation's campuses.

And as the Pentagon replaces the National Science Foundation as a regulator of academic research, professors are worried about being subjected to constant censorship.

But federal money--even with strings attached--is about the only money available to the academic community these days. 'Many of us (researchers) find it's a choice between having a job and violating the very principles of academic freedom that created our jobs in the first place,' says Dr. George Mariel, the University of Chicago professor who predicted Inman's boom-lowering speech.

There is a lot of strings-attached money being offered.

The Dept. of Defense (DOD) will spend an estimated $709.7 million for research on college campuses in 1982, up from $495 million in 1980.

For all research, including that done by the private sector, the DOD will spend $20 billion. The National Science Foundation will distribute $1 billion.

Most of the Pentagon money will go to the hard sciences like physics, engineering, chemistry and math.

But the professors getting the money wonder how much of their completed research will be deemed 'secret' for national security concerns and barred from publication in the academic community.

Many of the major research universities--including Wisconsin, Johns Hopkins and Michigan State--adopted rules during the late sixties and early seventies that prohibited their people from doing any research that could not ultimately be published.

'Our position as a university,' explains Joe Says of Wisconsin's engineering department, 'is that if it (research) is done, it will be published.'

A Wisconsin professor is in the middle of an emerging challenge to that policy. The Air Force is considering trying to ban publication of engineering Prof. Shien-Ming Wu's research, which Wu did in 1980 under a $100,000 Air Force grant.

Says says the university is determined to publish Wu's work. The Air Force is still deciding if it will pursue the issue.

The government, however, is actively pursuing tighter control of other kinds of research. In 1980 the Pentagon told colleges to keep foreigners out of certain kinds of government-funded electronics research. The same year the National Security Agency (NSA) suggested ways of keeping a lid on cryptology research, where recent breakthroughs in technologically breaking codes have been dramatic.

In response to the government concern, the American Council on Education helped create a Public Cryptography Study Group, composed of NSA and academic officials.

The purpose of the group, according to David Kahn, who has authored two cryptography books, was to encourage cryptologists to censor themselves voluntarily.

After initially rejecting research guidelines, last February the group voted to accept non-binding voluntary strictures as long as a professor could publish the work even if the group advised against it.

Since then the group has reviewed about 25 papers, Kahn says, and censored none.

But Kahn sees the panel itself as a threat to academic freedom.

'This is the first step toward anti-First Amendment legislation,' he contends. 'It's the opposite of what the whole national security issue is all about.'

I ought to be grateful for the food I've got. While it is true that everyone should be thankful that they are not starving, that does not mean they have to roll over and play dead when they have an opportunity to improve their lot in life. The students who disapproved of my voicing my opinion need to read their constitution, but can otherwise be excused, for I think they were freshmen. The lady on the serving line was not to blame for the condition of the food, which wasn't all that bad, just not the most appealing stuff in the world, if you know what I mean. I'm not questioning the edibility of the food, just its desirability. The serving people simply slop it out, and I am well aware that Mr. Floyd is the man to see if you have a real problem. My comments of the day were casual, and I think my friend the serving lady (who knows me well, by the way) just saw an opportunity to correct an errant younger.

Students and young people should not be afraid to complain when there is something wrong. Complacency is your enemy and not your friend. Our nation's capital is full of complainers who call themselves interest groups and lobbies. Do not be afraid to rock the boat. If a little shake will sink your ship, it is doomed anyhow. Complain! It can't hurt you and you just might get what you want.

saying that neither he nor the club was accusing but "... just trying to inform VSC students that the benches belong to the Exchange Club and not to the city or businessmen. We want to let people know about the service projects that these benches support and that will be hurt if the vandalism continues."
