Merchants warn of sales frauds

Chief David Webb stated this week that it has been brought to his attention that several film-flam artists are working in Hahira. Several merchants reported that they have received telephone calls from persons stating that they represented the Peace Officer's Association and solicited advertisement for the monthly magazine published by the Association. Webb urged that all merchants receiving such calls check with the police department before accepting any type offer or advertising as they are believed to be fraudulent organizations.

zine monthly and that the advertising comes from the business people throughout the state after being properly solicited.

"The police department and city have refused persons to represent a company for personal profit. Peace officers Association is a non-profit organization and does not solicit for personal gain," Webb said.

The Chief stated that he would like to warn all the citizens of Hahira to be cautious of any suspicious salesman coming door-to-door to sell any type product. If in doubt the person he urged that the police department be notified immediately. Any representative legally soliciting any type product contacts the police department or city clerk for a business license before attempting to sell their product, Webb stated.

Webb stated that the Peace Officer's Association is a legal non-profit organization and does not solicit any type of advertising without the cooperation of the local police which accompanies the representative to the business places. He said that the law officers in the state receive the maga-

Explo '72 film to be shown at Hahira Methodist

A film, "Explo '72," is scheduled to be shown at the Hahira United Methodist Church Sunday evening, January 23 at 9 o'clock.

"Explo '72 is short for "Explosion '72," the name given to the International Student Congress on Evangelism which will be held in Dallas, Texas June 12-17. A group of young people have predicted that 100,000 of their age bracket (18-25) will flood Dallas and its environs for Explo '72 - a bold venture of the Campus Crusade for Christ. The Crusade is scheduled to take place at the Cotton Bowl nightly -- and then climax in a final pastureland gathering of 250,000 at a nearby ranch on the closing night, a spokesman said. Explo '72 will not be just a nightly gathering in a filled Cotton Bowl. Throughout the day, in churches, hotels and on college campuses, there will be training classes and seminars. There will be 60 to 80 daily conferences with 1,000 to 2,000 in each, the Campus Crusade leaders stated.

The purpose of the Congress is to provide intensive training in evangelism and to give a vision for fulfilling the Great Commission in this generation, a spokesman stated. The group attending the Crusade is expected to include students, faculty, laymen, servicemen and internationals for training for EXPLOSIVE spiritual revolution.

Anyone interested in learning more about the Dallas Campus Crusade is invited to witness the film which is being shown here Sunday night. The film is also being shown throughout the United States to acquaint the people, especially the youth, about the June Crusade. Anyone needing information on the Crusade should contact Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Coppage, who are working with those interested in going to Explo '72 in Dallas in June.

Preflighting Aircraft Means Close Look

Those on the Moody AFB flightline have the opportunity of seeing beauty of nature not witnessed by those later arrivals who are cooped up in offices.

As the early morning sun casts orange-red rays on the streaks of clouds, it is a sight to behold as the maintenance men and fliers go about their routines.

Although T-37 maintenance men are not shown in this series because the sun didn't cooperate for several mornings, they also are up early and late getting their birds ready to fly.

In the period from 11 p.m. to 6 a.m. the preflights for the day are completed, and from then on the crew chiefs make through flight inspections until the last flight of day until after dark.

It takes about 11 1/2 man-hours of maintenance for every flying hour of T-38s and about six and a half man-hours of maintenance per flying hours of T-37's.

During 1971 nearly a million man-hours of maintenance went into the accomplishment of the base mission of training pilots.

Lions meet

By Dorothy Salter
The Hahira Lions Club met in regular session night at their club house on Randall Street. A delicious buffet dinner was served prior to the meeting.

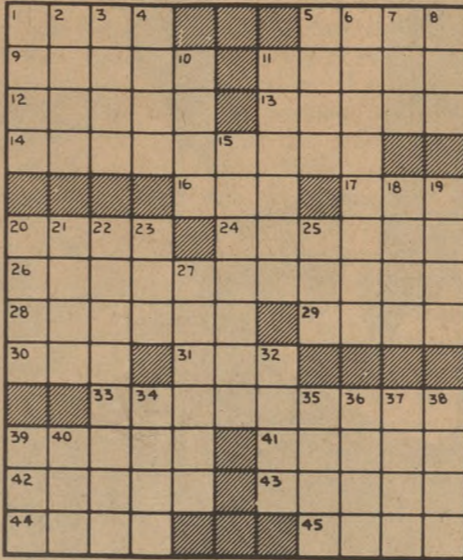

Mayor W.R. Salter introduced the guest speaker, Col. Fox, Commanding officer of Moody Air Force Base. The Colonel's theme was the inter-relationships between the Base and the community of which it serves. "A close relation must be present between personnel of the Base and the citizens of the surrounding areas. This relation helps to develop all phases of our society and its need," Fox said. Col. Fox's speech was well received by all those present. Col. Fox's two children are attending the Hahira Junior High School. Fox said, "I am happy to be a part of this community."

The president presided over a short business meeting in the closing minutes. He appointed the chairman and the co-workers for the Birthday Calendar sales. This is one of the main sources of fund raising by the Lions Club. It will be greatly appreciated by the Club members if the citizens would help make this program a success.

Tips for homemakers

Food precautions

Poor food handling practices in the home often cause illness in the family. If not served soon after cooking, food should be refrigerated promptly. Hot foods may be refrigerated if they do not raise the temperature of the refrigerator above 45 degrees Fahrenheit. Keep them in the refrigerator until served or reheated. You can speed cooling of large vessels of food by refrigerating in shallow containers.

If you carry foods on summer outings, or even to the backyard for a barbecue, keep them in a cooler until served. Take precautions with salads and sandwiches when salad dressings contain eggs or milk products and little vinegar or other acids. Refrigerate cream, custards or meringue pies and foods with custard fillings, including cakes, cream puffs, or eclairs.

Always hold uncooked and cooked foods containing eggs in the refrigerator.

A guide to homemakers, H & G Bulletin No. 162, explains rules for food safety and is available in single copies through my office in the New Federal Building, Room 235, Valdosta; or call 242-1536.

Freezer treats

If you have children around, chances are they're always hungry. Why not plan some ready-to-eat treats?

Put a scoop of ice cream in paper muffin cups. Then place all the scoops on a baking sheet in the freezer. Once they are firm, package the scoops in moisture-vapor proof containers and return them to the food freezer. At any time these can be lifted from the freezer and be ready to serve—either plain or in an ice cream cone.

Frozen fruits can be quickly blended into a puree and used as the main ingredient for delicious fruit drinks, fruit punch or fruit shake.

A supply of frozen cookies always comes in handy. It's a good idea to keep a container filled with assorted cookies -- ready to use at anytime.

Pans come clean

Believe it or not, there is an easy way to clean that scungy broiler pan. Here it is.

As soon as it has cooled enough for you to handle, place a wet paper towel over the rack and pour on some liquid detergent. Let it stand about ten minutes, then wipe excess loosened food from the rack using the towel.

You will be happy to know that it is very near clean at this point. Just wash in hot sudsy water, rinse and dry. Or put it in the dishwasher; it will come out spotless.

Thought For Food

Everyone needs variety in foods to make interesting and nutritionally well balanced meals. Include milk, meat, fruits and vegetables, and breads and cereals daily for this variety.

Peanut butter must contain at least 90 percent peanut butter. It can not have any more than 10 percent of such additives as salt, dextrose, and stabilizers.

Keep nonfat dry milk powder at 75 degrees or lower, if possible, until reconstituted. Close the package immediately after using. If milk powder is exposed to moisture in the air during storage, it may become lumpy and stale.

Before the Civil War, the American farmer produced food and fiber to feed and clothe himself and three other persons; by the beginning of World War II that figure had jumped to the farmer and 11 other persons; today it's the farmer and 42 other persons. This substantial decrease in rural labor releases the majority of our population to work in other jobs in this country's current urban-centered technological economy.

Legitimized killing

CONSISTENCY, I affirm, is a virtue. On vital issues especially, a consistent and logical approach should prevail. This truism comes to mind because of three related issues that have been discussed and argued about in this publication recently. One is the Vietnam War. The second is capital punishment. The third is legalized abortion. I group them as the over-all issue of legitimized killing.

In each of these, we the people have given certain of our number a license to kill. The license is more restricted than that of fictional agent 007, because we place boundaries around the killing.

The abortionist is required to do his thing before the fetus becomes "viable." The executioner can't warm up the electric chair until 12 good men, or women, give him permission. The soldier understandably may be confused over whom he's killing in Vietnam, and why, and over who's trying to kill him. But he knows it's more or less acceptable to kill if his superior officer says so.

It may be uncomfortable to examine these issues from this angle. Yet I believe we must emphasize the importance of human life in deciding how to handle these admittedly complex matters. And let's be consistent about our reverence for human life.

As we decide whether or when to permit abortions, we should remind the abortionist that, without his surgical action, a human being very probably will be born. While sympathizing with the female's need to control her own body and acknowledging the unfair fact that the male gets off scot free, perhaps we should remind both female and male that control can begin earlier than the time an abortion is requested. It can begin before intercourse.

As our Supreme Court ponders whether or when to permit capital punishment, we should consider not only the usual sound and persuasive arguments against such legalized killing, but also the dreadful possibility of making a mistake. This punishment is so final that if we the people err and kill the wrong person, what do we say to the widow or widower when the truth becomes known? Do we say we're sorry?

As we wind down our participation in the Vietnam War and wonder which American will be the last one killed there, we should try to find or on the battlefield. I cannot agree with the view that life is cheap.

—JAMES G. DRISCOLL
THE NATIONAL OBSERVER

An idea whose time has come

It took a good while for the idea to bear fruit. But now counties, particularly the smaller ones are beginning to pool their resources to work together in improving their schools and other educational facilities.

Only recently, officials in nearby Marion, Schley and Webster counties put together what they had to set up a single school system to serve all three counties. They he said, "Shared service programs will make available the kind of services many schools desperately need but are unable to provide, or can provide on a limited basis."

His plan calls for the programs to be administered through the 18 area planning and development commissions of Georgia.

This newspaper has long been an advocate of school consolidation and the idea of to operate a system for less than 10,000 pupils, and yet 110 systems in Georgia have enrollments that are below 3,000.

Georgia's multiplicity of school systems is mainly an outgrowth of its multiplicity of counties. But even if there were just one system per county, it would still be too many.

Systems are simply going to have to cross county lines.

Happily, West Georgia is pointing the way to improve the lot of the rural child. Consolidation or sharing is an idea whose time has come. May the number of such arrangements grow in the months and years ahead.

The child should come first, no matter where he lives.

THE COLUMBUS LEDGER

This column offers varied views - observations the editors rate worthy of reader consideration.

a way to "factor" the value of human life into future war decisions. Perhaps we should require the President to talk personally to survivors of each soldier killed in administrative, undeclared wars. If Congress declares war, perhaps each congressman should be required to speak with survivors of each soldier from his district who is killed. Perhaps the President or congressmen should be forced to tell the parents or widow the specific reason their loved one was killed.

Those who pride themselves on being "practical" may deride this approach. They may say that other things are more important than human life—liberty, for instance. Maybe they're right. But maybe that reason is used for starting some wars when there really is no question of losing liberty. Maybe it's used to mask our leaders' ineptitude.

are purchasing a 50-acre site for the construction of a consolidated school at a spot so centrally located that it is between eight and 12 miles from the courthouse of each county.

This school will be both academic and vocational and will serve about 1,300 students from the three counties.

There is no reason that a child in any of these counties should not be afforded the same quality education that he might receive in a larger system, such as here in Muscogee.

Now comes further word of the sharing approach.

School systems from 19 Southwest Georgia counties are pooling resources in purchasing educational equipment, repairing equipment and training teacher aides. The sharing approach is under the Southwest Georgia Educational Services Center in Leary.

Gov. Jimmy Carter's reorganization program incorporates a plan for school systems to start sharing programs and services through such regional projects.

When the program was outlined by Car-sharing across county lines. It just makes good sense to think about the educational welfare of young people.

The young people in the three counties mentioned in the consolidation move, and those in the other-sharing counties will be the beneficiaries of the new approach.

A small school system simply cannot offer the wide range of courses that can be provided in a large district with many thousands of students. For example, Muscogee can offer many foreign languages, advanced math, vocational training, special education for the gifted, the slow learner, the handicapped. It has a highly specialized reading center, $1 million library of instructional materials, counselors, outstanding music and drama programs.

There is no good reason for a child in a rural area to be penalized in such a situation. He is behind before he starts in this highly competitive age. This is one of the causes of frustration, dropouts and a lack of desire to continue on into higher education.

Georgia can never have quality schools so long as 194 separate systems are in operation. It is neither economical or efficient

Endorsement of Senate Bill 347

During the confusion of Reorganization in the legislature, we hope S B 347, a Community Services Act for the Mentally Retarded, will not get overlooked.

This important legislation will provide 100% state and federal funding for local services for the mentally retarded through local or district Health Departments.

These services would include group homes in the community, day training and day care for those retarded persons who are not eligible for special education or vocational rehabilitation, diagnostic and evaluation centers, and family social service.

An appropriation of $3,100,000 is being asked to begin implementing these services in 1972.

Also, $1,378,000 is being sought to upgrade Central State Hospital's Mental Retardation Unit for those persons who will continue to need hospital care.

We recommend passage and funding of this important bill.

Cancer

It could happen to you

If you're one of the many people who think cancer can only happen to someone else, take a look some time at a list of the great well-known people who have lost their lives to cancer. It is very unlikely that any of them seriously considered the possibility of their death from the dread disease. Perhaps for many of them an ounce of "early warning" from check-ups would have done what the pound of cure could not in the terminal stages.

Look at a list of entertainment personalities who died of cancer. Remember Zasu Pitts, the zany sidekick of Gale Storm on the "Oh, Suzannah" television series as well as many movies? What about Sophie Tucker, "The Last of the Red-Hot Mamas"? What about Thomas Mitchell and Ed Wynn, those grand old character actors? Cancer killed them.

Then there was "Bogie," Humphrey Bogart, whose "Play it again, Sam," lingers in the hearts of those who remember "Casablanca." There was Gary Cooper of "For Whom the Bell Tolls" and "High Noon". There were handsome Dick Powell and Robert Taylor; cancer wiped them all out.

Remember Hal March, charming emcee of "The Sixty-Four Thousand Dollar Question?" And the lovely Sonja Henie who ice skated her way into the hearts of millions? And the so veddy-veddy British Sir Cedric Hardwicke? And fat, jolly Hattie McDaniel of "Gone With The Wind" fame? They, too, were victims of cancer.

The beautiful Ann Sheridan, Mitzi Green, Gypsy Rose Lee, and Judy Holliday are gone - cancer victims. The talented and imperious Tallulah Bankhead; the sweet-faced Bea Banaderet who played the mother of three lovely daughters on Peticot Junction (and ran the Shady Rest Hotel); the great Gertrude Lawrence; the charming Jack Carson; it is not likely that any of them foresaw the cancer that brought their careers to an end.

Remember Dan Duryea, the handsome character actor whose voice was so distinctive that you could hear him on television from another room and say, "That's Dan Duryea again." How about the rough type western star Hoot Gibson? Some of us remember the George White Scandals (or at least heard about them!) George was felled by cancer, as Dan and Hoot were.

Erle Stanley Gardner who wrote the Perry Mason books on which the television series was based, and William Talman who was one of the stars in the series died of cancer within a short time of each other. Lee Tracy, Zachary Scott, Dennis O'Keefe, Doretta Morrow, Guthrie McClintic, Jean Hersholt, Ella Logan and Richard Barthelmess died of cancer, cutting short their show business careers. The old "Yankee Doodle Dandy" himself, George M. Cohan was a cancer victim.

One of the most beloved men of all time in show business, Walt Disney, lost his battle with cancer and died with his plans for Walt Disney World in Florida still in the planning stage.

Take a second look at this list of fine talented people. If they died from cancer, so could any of us. Each of us must take the time and the trouble to have check-ups to read the latest free literature on early cancer detection and warning signs. We must give to speed up research for better methods of treatment and for an ultimate cure.

Look at yourself in the mirror and repeat "It could happen to me." Then get busy trying to see that it doesn't happen to you.

Massive Youth Army Will Invade Dallas

IT'S A YEAR away, but there will be a happening next June in Dallas that could turn the moral tide now running against a troubled universe.

A group of electric young people have absolute faith in their prediction that 100,000 of their age bracket (18 to 25) will flood the city and its environs from Explo '72—a bold venture of the Campus Crusade for Christ.

Their purpose? "We want to change the whole world..."

But their revolution is aimed at restoring lost faith and building new moral structures.

It is to be a mighty, collective witness the Campus Crusade leaders say will jam the Cotton Bowl and its playing field each night—and then climax in a final pastureland gathering of 250,000 at a nearby ranch on the closing night.

Twelve months removed from the 1972 meeting dates of June 12-17, Explo '72 already has 7,000 reservations in the 3625 Rawlins St. "office," where 30 young persons work under the direction of Paul Eshleman, director.

Explo '72 will not be just a nightly gathering in a filled Cotton Bowl. Throughout the day, in churches, hotels and on college campuses, there will be training classes and seminars. There will be 60 to 80 daily conferences with 1,000 to 2,000 in each.

On the residential streets of Dallas there will be "two by two" teams ringing doorbells and conducting a community religious survey. They want answers and comments from thousands of sources to take back to conference rooms.

It is all non-denominational, and the goals these young people have set are simply to train students and laymen in how to share their faith and to experience a Christian life; to "saturate the world with the claims of Jesus Christ," and to have each delegate recruit five others for training conferences to be held throughout the United States in August and September, 1972. It will give them, they say, a potential of training

Over the Line! The border between the United States and Canada is the result of no less than seven treaties. Negotiators who signed the Treaty of Paris in 1782 relied upon a map drawn 27 years earlier in defining the border. The map's inaccuracies raised boundary questions that were not resolved until the Treaty of 1925.

Youth Army From Editorial page

more than 500,000 individuals before the fall of 1972. It is this army they would involve in a strategy to help evangelize the world: to involve them specifically "in one of the 210 countries and protectorates of the world by going, giving and praying."

A mountainous task for young hands? They confidently talk of results, expect no hitches. Not even in housing 100,000 young men and women. Already, they have about 85 per cent of hotel and motel space reserved for miles around, and they are working with churches and colleges to provide additional lodging.

They talk with extreme confidence of their final, all-day gathering of 250,000 on a sloping hillside. Only they say, "250,000 or more." And you have to believe them.

On that day, Billy Graham, his honorary chairman, will speak and call for the final witness. Dr. Graham has the same overflowing confidence when he speaks of Expto '72.

"I believe that it is time to bring thousands of committed Christian students together to train them how to share their faith with their fellow students.

"The inspiration and training which will be given during the Dallas Congress in June, 1972, could make this the most significant and historic student gathering of our century..."

The other evening in Dallas they gathered more than 300 at a dinner to ignite local lay persons and explain their plans. It was a key group they held for two hours with explanations of purpose and planning.

Bill Bright, founder and president of Campus Crusade for Christ International, was there with a low-key, but electrifying analysis of the movement. The former industrialist, who left the business world in 1951 to commit himself to the founding of Campus Crusade, said Expto '72 will be held in Dallas "because by your lives and your witness you encouraged us to come to Dallas."

"God has blessed this nation for a purpose—surely to take a message to all people of the world. Who better than the young for this mission?"

Why Belong To The NFO?

Have you ever asked yourself this question? If not, you should. The thoughts that come to mind would be revealing—some affirmative, perhaps some negative—and both could lead to a better, more effective farm organization.

One NFO member interviewed recently asked himself that question and came up with the following reasons:

- 1. I owe it to myself and to my farm operation to help our industry move forward.
2. It takes strength in numbers and concerted action to accomplish anything worthwhile.
3. Only through membership in NFO can I obtain information prepared with my needs in mind. Everything else put out is either general in nature—that is, aimed at a wider audience, and therefore diluted—or out-and-out slanted against my interests.
4. The meetings I go to bring me ideas and information that I could obtain in no other way—and which are put to the test of experience before they are passed on to me.

5. I have many true friends among NFO members, people I enjoy being with for friendship's sake as well as for business reasons. My life is richer and more worth living because I belong to NFO.
6. Committee projects and other NFO activities enable me to contribute—to do my bit for the farming industry, the economy of the nation, and the general good.

7. The cost of belonging is pitifully small compared with what I get in return...in a word, extremely low for the space I occupy in agriculture.

8. Even when other problems command my full attention, the officers, directors and headquarters keep working in my interest. In such times, maintaining my membership is a vote of confidence in them, which they deserve, and which I am happy to bestow.

9. The NFO serves as a watchdog on my behalf, keeping constant vigil against restrictive and costly legislation and government rules and regulations. The money NFO saves me in this area alone
