Congratulations

TO OUR 1973 GRADUATING CLASS

Another school year comes to an end...

All the efforts of the past nine months culminate in this one event.

There were triumphs, there were defeats. There were celebrations and there were disappointments. Memories gained in the classroom, on the athletic field or court, or lessons learned during any number of other activities will not soon be forgotten by the student.

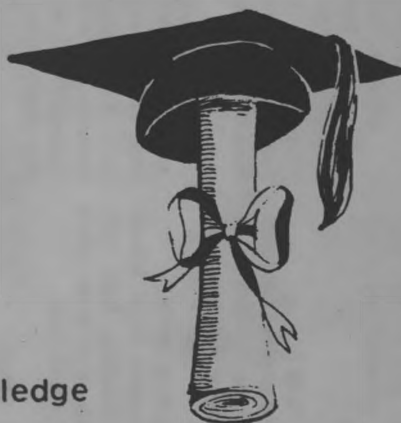

The education that a student attains during his years at Lowndes High School can not be taken away; neither can pride be broken in the knowledge of a job well done.

Knowledge is an endless hall with many doorways, and those opened now by the graduating students will determine their futures.

This year has been a momentous one for those students and teachers who walked the hallowed halls of Lowndes High -- one which was unique.

For some students, this is the end of their high school career; for others it is only the start. For all, the learning process never ceases.

Lowndes County Tobacco is showing its strength

HAHIRA -- June Strawder has a crop of tobacco which has weathered the storm, so to speak, and is still making a fairly good crop of tobacco.

Strawder grows nine acres of leaf here and helps his mother grow an additional two acres on their farms just east of Hahira.

The farmer looked closely at several tobacco plants here last week and explained the crop had survived a battle with Mother Nature.

The farmer said the tobacco had just been heavily irrigated prior to flood type rains which drenched this area in March and April.

"Some of the tobacco drowned and cut new roots," said Strawder. "These plants are smaller than those that survived."

He said the leaf isn't as big as it should be at this time of year. The leaf was planted in March.

"This has been a long cold season on the tobacco," said Strawder. "This tobacco hasn't had any good weather at all."

Lowndes County farm agent George Kessler, said several weeks ago that area leaf was about two weeks behind in growth.

"We normally begin harvesting here the first of June," said Strawder. "But it looks like it's going to be the middle or the last of June."

Strawder said he expects the tobacco to start growing quickly when hot weather gets here.

"My experience with tobacco that grows off at a tremendous rate of speed is that the bottom leaves are too thin," said Strawder.

He said it could be difficult for farmers to get a lot of poundage from the leaf if the leaves are too thin.

Strawder said about the only luck he's had with his tobacco has been the insects.

"I haven't sprayed any yet," said Strawder, "and the insects don't seem too bad."

Strawder said when the leaf gets a little larger, he expects a lot of the area crops to prematurely flower.

This means farmers may need to hire hand labor to go into the fields and break off these early flowering plants.

"I don't know for sure, but I believe the quality of the leaf is going to be off some this season," said Strawder. "But we will have to wait and see."

Kessler said almost every crop has to be judged on its own merits.

Kessler said a survey shows area tobacco is two weeks behind in growth but an area farmer, A.C. Peace of Clyattville, said his crop could be ready to begin picking next week.

Congressman Mathis urges travel restrictions into hostile countries

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Congressman Dawson Mathis, (D-Ga.), appeared before the House Committee on Internal Security to urge favorable action on a bill to restrict travel into countries with which the United States is engaged in hostilities.

Mathis related information from his conversations with returning Prisoners of War which supported his convictions "that this most unfortunate and burdensome war in Vietnam was needlessly prolonged by Americans who visited Hanoi and made public statements that were not only derogatory toward this country but perpetuated the false image that this country was succumbing to the anti-war movement." The five former POWs, shown in the above picture with Mathis, testified that they had been tortured to meet with such anti-war delegations from the U.S. and said that some had been tortured after the visits if they said the wrong things at the meetings. The travel bill would make it unlawful for anyone to travel to countries with which the U.S. is engaged in armed conflict unless such travel is deemed to be consistent with the national interest by the State Department.

All newspapermen, for example, who traveled to Hanoi did so with such approval from the Department of State and all accredited newspapermen who applied were granted such permission.

300 scouts looking for summer adventure at Camp Patten

As summer approaches, Scouts in the Alapaha Area

Council, Boy Scouts of America, look forward to summer camp adventure at Camp Patten which is located at Lakeland, Ga.

Letter to the Editor

As the newly elected President of the Georgia Lung Association, known so long to so many as the Georgia Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, I want to personally thank the Hahira Gold Leaf and the people of Lowndes County for the very fine help and support we received in the '72 Christmas Seal Campaign, one of the finest our organization has ever had.

Times are changing and we are rushing to keep up with them. The new name change does not mean less work in tuberculosis, for many thousands of Americans still are infected with the dreaded disease. What the change does show is that we have become more concerned about the alarming rate of increase in the other lung diseases. Last year alone, 2.5 million persons suffered from chronic respiratory diseases and Social Security disability statistics show that emphysema is the second worst disabler in the country. Our purpose is then not to exclude tuberculosis but to fight for more prevention and control of all lung diseases.

If we have been successful in the past, it is because our supporters believed in our cause. Today, that cause is greater and the problems far worse than first realized. With continued help from the Hahira Gold Leaf and the support of the people of Lowndes County we can lick this growing problem confronting our lungs and our country. I say "our country" because a nation is only as strong as those who live in it. We believe that it's a matter of life and breath.

Sincerely,
Goodloe Y. Erwin, M.D.
President
Georgia Lung Association

More than 300 Scouts are expected to take part in the weeklong training experiences between July 1, and July 29, according to Bill Strickland, Camping Chairman.

"The adventure that a Scout has in summer camp depends on many factors," Strickland said, "but one of the most important is boy involvement in program planning, in competitive events, and in his own growth and development."

Among the exciting activities that Scouts find at Camp Patten are boating, canoeing, archery, rifle marksmanship, trap shooting, pioneering, handicrafts, camping skills, nature, and ecology.

Strickland said that the members of the camp staff for the four-week season are carefully selected and are skillful in their relationship to boys and in helping leaders be effective in administering the troop program at Camp Patten.

In order to make the Scouting program available to all boys, the Alapaha Area Council also operates a special non-Scout camping program. This program has grown each year under the sponsorship of many civic and fraternal groups. They have sponsored the fee for many disadvantaged boys, many of whom later become Scouts.

How does 73° differ from 78°?

It takes 25 percent more electricity.

Imagine what that does to your electric bill. Air conditioning can use more power than all your other electric appliances put together. When you set the thermostat lower than necessary for comfort, the extra power is needless expense.

Rates went up last year and will be reflected in cooling costs this summer. But there are ways to use electricity more efficiently and cut down on your bill.

Set the thermostat on 78°. And adjust it 5° higher while you're away from home. Keep filters clean. Clogged ones will overwork the system.

Keep windows and doors shut, and close draperies in sunny rooms. Shade trees help, too. Good insulation and weather stripping can lower operating costs. Air conditioning is even affected by the heat from a light bulb. So turn off unnecessary lights.

Starting to save electricity takes a conscious effort. But it can become a money-saving habit.

Miss Mary Thomas of Los Angeles, Calif. visited her cousins in Hahira, Monday evening.

Mrs. Violee Williams spent all day with the Tillmans. They appreciated her presence and it was an enjoyable visit for all.

Mr. Baker is still interested in the function of the churches of the South Ga. Conference. He is still praying and hope for the friends, christians and relatives are still praying for him.

Mrs. Ernestine Arnold of West Palm Beach, Fla. is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jones, sisters, brothers and friends.

Mrs. Vertis Wright and children visited with her mother-in-law, Miss Flora L. Thomas and sister, Mrs. Alice Pearl Robinson of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., Friday, coming especially to help and celebrate Mother's Day.

Mr. Buster Chisolm of Lake Park, Fla., the husband of Mrs. Thelma Jones' aunt, died suddenly Monday. Funeral services will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Alford and Mr. Elco Alford visited with the Hammonds on Sunday and Friday night.

Mr. Leroy Hammonds has been a patient in Smith Hospital, while there Mr. Melvin of Valdosta visited with him. Mr. Hammonds has been released and is doing fine.

Mrs. Hazel Rawls and Mrs. Hammonds had prayer with Mrs. Madell Burkes and Mrs. Cooper Monday evening.

Mrs. Estelle Jones visited Mrs. Hosea Butler, her mother and Mrs. Hammonds. They discussed the Bible and enjoyed reading the scriptures.

There was a mistake made concerning Mrs. Butler's Birthday party. Mrs. Dorothy Martin of Quitman, Mrs. Patricia McCalister of Hahira were the ones who decorated the cake. Just an error.

Catches prize bass with graduation reel

When Steven Nichols, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nichols of Hahira, received a spinning reel from his parents for graduation from Kindergarten last week he never dreamed of his first catch being a 5 3/4 pound bass.

Soon after casting the hook in the water, Steven felt the tug of the big bass and found himself in for quite a struggle to land the fish. He yelled for help from his dad, and after he had made the catch his dad brought the fish up with a net.

Fishing is Steven's favorite hobby, but Monday morning was the first time he had tried bass fishing, stated his father.

Needless to say young Steven has proven himself to be quite a fisherman.

DIPLOMAS WERE presented last Friday night to fourteen kindergarten graduates of the Hahira Little School.

Lowndes County 4-H's Getting Ready For DPA
School is out, but that doesn't mean a vacation for 40 Lowndes County 4-H boys and girls.

The 40, county winners in their club project, are about as busy right now as they have ever been in their lives. They are putting finishing touches to the illustrated lectures and educational demonstrations which they hope will help them earn district honors.

The Southwest Georgia 4-H project achievement meeting will be held June 6-8 at Rock Eagle. In addition to the 40 local delegates, there will be about 700 boys and girls there from 39 other counties in the district.

Cloverleaf members (5th and 6th graders) have already held their achievement meeting earlier in Tifton. Junior district winners, like the cloverleaf winners named earlier, will not compete beyond the district level. But senior winners named at Rock Eagle this month will move on to State 4-H Congress in Atlanta where they will try for state championships and the right to represent Georgia at National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

Lowndes County has 15 senior 4-H'ers who will be trying for district honors. They, along with their projects, are as follows: Martha Drennon, Clothing; Remonda Stephens, Dairy Foods; Elaine Sims, Canning; Gwen Cowart, Frozen Foods; Fonda Moore, Safety; Barbara Cargile, Home Furnishings and Art; Katrina Kirkland, Housing and Equipment; Peggy Dismuke, Photography; Terri Jones, Public Speaking; Linda Miles, Dog Care and Training; Karen Miles, Veterinary Science; Ivey Zipperer, Dairy; Randy Jones, Forestry; Tommy Thomas, Public Speaking; Owen Clemons, Poultry.

Junior members who will represent Lowndes County at the June meeting are: Vickie Ergle, Home Management; Beth Cowart, Better Breakfast; Joy Grice, Dairy Foods; Varina Zipperer, Canning; Priscella Sermons, Frozen Foods; Beth Sims, Plants and Soils; Dianne Gaskins, Automotive; Beth Vann, Woodworking; Mary Kirkland, Entomology; Kim Wright, Forestry; Linda Lucas, Health; Indy DeShong, Home Furnishings and Art; Lynn Flythe, Housing and Equipment.

Tammy Bryan, Human Development; Sandra Vickers, Landscaping; Tami Miles, Dog Care and Training; Lynn Thompson, Veterinary Science; Sherry Carter, Wildlife; Richard Stephens, Woodworking; Howard Hughes, Entomology; Tommy Love, Forestry; Mark Pollett, Pecan Production; Noel Thomas, Home Furnishings and Art; Tomas Sims, Wildlife; Rickey Flynt, Beef.

Demonstration scores at Rock Eagle will be added to the record scores, and district championships will go to the 4-H'er with the highest total in each project. Winners in more than 100 junior and senior projects will be named.

The meeting will also include some 4-H style politicking, and at least one Lowndes County girl will be right in the middle of it. Terri Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Jones of Hahira, will run for Board Member of the District 4-B Council.

Three adult volunteer leaders will accompany the local boys and girls to Rock Eagle. They are: Mrs. E. B. Jones, Hahira; Mrs. Elwood Stephens, Lake Park; and Mrs. W. E. Love, Valdosta.

Expenses for 4-H'ers and leaders to attend this event are paid for by local businessmen and other donors. If you would like a part in sponsoring one or more of these outstanding 4-H'ers, please contact us at the Extension Office, or one of the local 4-H leaders in your community.

Tips for Homemakers

By Ted Phelps, Home Economist

Freezing Vegetables

Excellent frozen products may be had from most vegetables when: (a) the proper varieties are used; (b) they are harvested at the right time; (c) they are adequately scalded and cooled; and (d) they are packaged correctly. Many frozen vegetables are fresher than those purchased on the "fresh market." Practically all frozen vegetables may be held for one year.

Selecting the Variety

Choose a variety that is well accepted in your community for eating fresh, or a newer variety which has been found to be especially suitable for freezing.

Selecting the Product

Harvest tender vegetables at the best stage to be eaten fresh, or slightly younger. Process on the day harvested, and never allow to become over-mature either before or after harvesting. The fresher the vegetables when frozen, the more satisfactory the product.

If it is necessary to store vegetables for a short time after harvesting, spread them in a cool, well-ventilated place or in the refrigerator.

Scalding or Blanching

Scalding is a critical step in preparing vegetables for freezing and must be done carefully. (This is a "must" for all vegetables to be held frozen for more than four weeks except those used exclusively for their flavor such as green onions, hot peppers and herbs.) Scalding cleanses the surface of dirt and organisms, brightens the color, helps retain vitamins, and reduces the action of enzymes which otherwise would destroy the fresh flavor after about four weeks. It also shrinks the product, making packing easier.

Immediately before scalding wash, drain, sort, trim and cut the vegetables as for cooking fresh. Put one pound of vegetables into blancher (wire basket, coarse mesh bag or perforated metal container) and lower it into one gallon of vigorously boiling water. Begin counting the time as soon as the vegetable is placed in the boiling water. Stir water constantly during blanching. Follow the scalding time given for each vegetable. This is very important because under-scalding stimulates the activity of enzymes and is worse than no scalding. Prolonged scalding causes loss of vitamins, minerals, flavor and color by excessive leaching.

Cooling

As soon as scalding is complete the vegetables should be cooled quickly to stop the cooking process. This may be done by immersing the vegetables in cold water or spreading them thinly on a wet cloth in front of a fan. They should be stirred several times during cooling which should not require more than three or four minutes. If water is used it should be as cold as possible in order to reduce the time of immersion. Otherwise nutrients, flavor, and color will be lost by leaching.

Packaging

Vegetables usually are packaged loose without seasoning. Immediately after scalding and cooling, pack the vegetables in mealsize, airtight, moisture-vapor-proof containers.

For further information call Miss Ted M. Phelps at 242-1536 or write to her at P. O. Box 1205, Valdosta, Georgia 31601.

Thought For Food

Want a different taste for franks and kraut? Just score the frankfurters and cook. Mix a fourth teaspoon each of oregano and basil with a can of kraut and heat. Pour kraut into casserole and top with franks and a sprinkling of shredded Mozzarella cheese. Bake until the cheese melts and bubbles and the kraut is heated through.

Cherries give meats a tart lift to cheer the family. Braise a pot-roast in drained canned cherry juice and add the cherries just in time to heat through. Or, heat a can of cherry pie filling to pour over sausage and pancakes for a Sunday brunch.

Increased pork supplies expected during 1973 will be a result of farmer's response to favorable hog prices during most of 1972. Increased farrowing during the winter months is continuing through the spring quarter with a corresponding increase in the number of hogs going to market. Seasonally heavier marketing promises more attractive pork values for consumers.

We've had some more rough weather but those attending the various sings and revivals seem to receive a blessing and a bigger one for their efforts. The Sunlighters of Jacksonville, had to rough some bad weather to be in Hahira last weekend, but we hear from those attending they were a blessing with their singing. The Revelations always are where ever we hear them. Grace has a testimony that will make anyone believe in miracles today. We've learned to appreciate them more and more every time we talk with them.

For those reading my column last week and made plans to go to the weekend revival held at the Hahira Church of God by Brother Tommy Crawford, I make this apology. I received word after I had turned in my column that the revival has been rescheduled for this weekend. The revival is scheduled for Friday - Sunday of this week. 7:30 p.m. There will be special singing. The Shilohs are scheduled to be there. Saturday night. Fellowship meeting will be at Hahira Church of God Monday night June 4, 7:30 p.m. This consist of a report of all the churches in the district along with the fellowship. The Shilohs are scheduled to be there.

The Joyful Sound were in a good sing and fellowship in Valdosta last weekend. Anne tells me they really enjoy the different places they go and worship with the good christian people. The Joyful Sound will be scheduled to sing light, if any, in the next few months, so I was informed. They will take the advantage of this lax in schedule and go through some new songs. We know, as a group, it's always a challenge to find and learn new songs, and when you're as busy as the different groups have been this spring with the revivals and homecomings, it's hard to find a new song and practice it enough to get the best enjoyment. According to Police Chief David Webb, the police department has received several nuisance complaints from local citizens about stray dogs loose in the neighborhood. Garbage cans are being turned over and trash scattered around the yards of the citizens, Webb said.

The Chief stated that all dogs must have a valid rabies tag and must also have a valid city tag, which has to be purchased each calendar year from the City Clerk's office.

This week brings to a close this school term. Everyone is looking forward to the summer, both students and teachers. Next school term brings about many new changes in our school. We will have a new principal Mr. Bill Sears and several new teachers.

After talking with Mr. Sears, he says he sees no problems that can not be handled. He wants the parents to feel free to come talk to him at any time. He would like the cooperation of parents, students, and teachers to make this a good school. He and his wife enjoy living in our community and we are fortunate to have such a fine family in our town.

I have been writing the school news only a short while but have enjoyed it greatly. Thank all of you for your cooperation. And I hope to continue to bring the school news when the new school term opens this fall.

Students can come by the school office on Wednesday June 6th from 9 o'clock until 3:00 p.m. to pick up report cards.

Lowndes Viking Oak one of state's largest

The Lowndes Viking Oak located behind the Lowndes County School Superintendent's office on St. Augustine Road has been officially measured and its statistics recorded by the Georgia Forestry Commission.

According to Frank Craven, chief of Forest Education for the Commission, the Live Oak has a circumference of 25 feet, 2 inches, a total height of 72 feet and a crown spread of 149 feet. Local forester Leonard Schaeffer said that he was not sure of the exact relationship of the tree to other big oaks in Georgia, but gave assurance that "it is among the largest in the State."

The oak is also registered with the Live Oak

Society of Hammond, La. along with several other Georgia Live Oaks.

Chamber Executive Vice-president John B. Lastinger said that there has been some talk about marking the tree for posterity. "Several of our garden clubs have been working on placing a marker at the tree and obtaining highway signs indicating it as a point of interest here for some time," Lastinger said. Now that we have these valid statistics, definite plans are being made to place a marker at the tree, he added.

"This magnificent tree is something we can all be proud of and help to preserve for future generations," Lastinger said.

Hahira Canning Plant being made ready

You can tell another canning season is approaching by the work being done at Hahira Junior High by the 9th grade agriculture boys. They have been repairing, removing all kinds of school materials, painting tables and otherwise sprucing up the plant getting ready to open in early June.

A late season is being expected due to excessive rain and cold nights that have been experienced this Spring.

Plenty of large and small cans are being secured and all equipment is being readied so the plant will be in good shape at opening time as soon as fruits and vegetables will be available.

For those people who have never canned in a community canning plant, expert advice will be available as to selection of product, peeling and otherwise preparing the product to be placed in the can.

Then plant workers will seal cans, process cans and cool to be made ready to carry home.

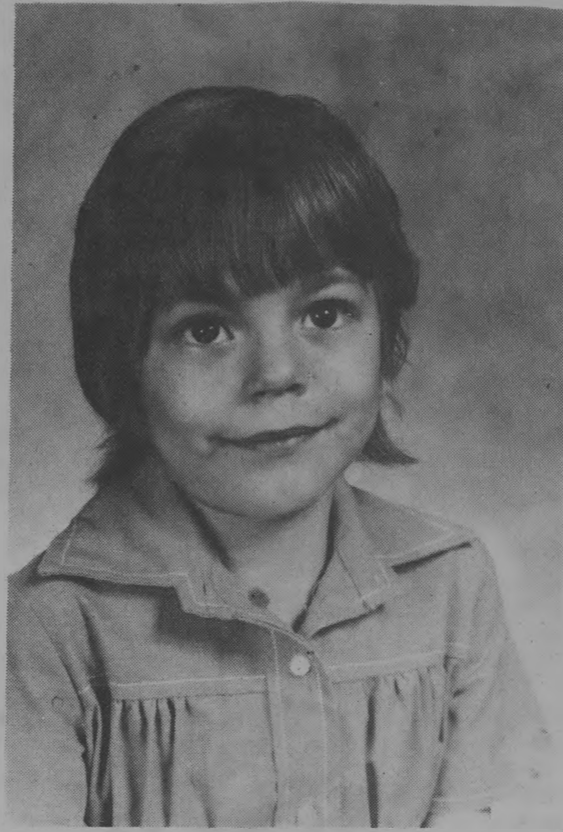

Tomatoes and tomato juice are still the most popular vegetables, but soup mixtures, peas, butterbeans and other vegetables are being canned. Peaches, figs and pears are the fruit being canned.

No appointment will be necessary, just watch for newspaper and radio as to opening date. Opening time will be 8:00 a.m. until 3:00 p.m. with Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays the days.

A nominal fee will be charged for the can and canning fee.

Jennifer Lynn Wright

She lost fight with Cystic Fibrosis

Eight-year-old Jennifer Lynn Wright lost her life in a battle against a dread disease known as Cystic Fibrosis.

Jennifer passed away Thursday, May 17 at Baptist Memorial Hospital in Jacksonville, Florida and was laid to rest in Wayfare Cemetery in Echols County on Saturday, May 19.

The daughter of Mrs. Joy Beth Weeks and the late W.W. Wright, the brave little girl began her struggle with the incurable disease at the age of two. She led a rather normal life up until she began to regress about nine months ago. At the age of six she entered elementary school at Statenville but only attended until Christmas the first year. With the help of a private tutor, the brown-eyed little girl passed to the second grade and had continued to study up until her little body gave way to the dread disease. Even though she missed the association of classmates, she had maintained the grade of a top level pupil and was to be promoted to the third grade at the end of this school term.

Born March 1, 1965, Jennifer was named State Cystic Fibrosis Poster Child for 1970-71. She became quite a little celebrity and gave of her time wherever needed to help in the fund raising campaigns across the State of Georgia.

She was born in Valdosta, but moved to Jacksonville, Florida with her family from May Day nine months ago.

Many friends of the family have requested that a Cystic Fibrosis Fund be set up in memory of Jennifer to be used in research to help combat the dread disease, stated the child's mother.

"Any donation sent in Jennie's memory will be appreciated, and hopefully the right key will soon be found through research to save the lives of many children afflicted with the dread disease," Mrs. Weeks said.

Anyone wishing to make a donation may send it in care of Mrs. Janice League, Cystic Fibrosis Clinical Center, Baptist Memorial Hospital, 800 Prudential Drive, Jacksonville, Florida 32201.

Jennifer is survived by her mother; her stepfather, J. W. Weeks of Jacksonville; a sister, Miss Beth Wright of Hahira; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hall of Hahira; paternal grandmother, Mrs. Bruce Wright of Lake City, Fla. and paternal step-grandmother, Mrs. W. O. Weeks of Lawrenceville, Ga.

The recent series of unprecedented disasters now compel Red Cross to face the grave prospect of being unable to finance the immediate and urgent needs of disaster sufferers. Dr. Stanton, American Red Cross Chairman, had informed Red Cross leaders that the organization's disaster relief funds are totally depleted, and with the spring disaster season at its peak, the situation is precarious and likely to remain so for several weeks.

Since mid-March, a series of 82 floods, tornadoes, explosions and other disasters have affected hundreds of thousands of persons in 22 states. Red Cross has provided shelter for over 10,000 persons, fed 32,000 victims and emergency workers and is continuing to assist victims.

In order to continue helping these hapless victims of disaster, the Red Cross is appealing for additional contributions. Contributions may be sent to Valdosta Chapter American Red Cross, III E. Brookwood Drive, Valdosta, Georgia.

Negro male arrested for shoplifting

A Negro male in his early 30's was arrested for shoplifting Saturday morning after Lemuel Copeland, manager of Slocum Furniture Store, reported the theft to the local police department.

Copeland reported that the suspect walked in the store around 9:45 Saturday morning and picked up a 20 inch Wind-maker fan valued at $69.95 and left while he was occupied in another part of the store.

After receiving a description of the suspect, Chief David Webb, arrested Samuel D. Rawls on West Main Street as he was attempting to sell the stolen fan.

Copeland swore out a warrant at the office of O.E. McNeiel, local Justice of the Peace, and the suspect was lodged in the City Jail. Webb stated that Rawls will be transferred to the County jail to face charges.

Webb stated that Rawls had been drinking at the time of the theft and was charged for public drunkenness by the City Police Department and local manager of the Furniture Store.

Chief Webb said that Rawls was arrested here about a month ago for stealing a skill saw from Webb Farm Supply Center. The stolen item was recovered by the local police and the suspect is on bond and awaiting trial for the incident.

Advice from an expert

If they're long and leggy, you pinch 'em

ATHENS—Plants, like children, need pinching to grow. That's just one of the hints Atlanta horticulturist R. C. Deacon shared with Cooperative Extension home economists attending an Interior Decorating Forum here last week. "I love plants as much as anyone," the expert said, "but, they have to be pinched to keep them from becoming long and leggy. "Your plants know if you have a black thumb," he warned. Then Deacon set out in an hour long lecture to turn black thumbs into green ones. Over-watering, he emphasized, kills more interior plants than all other reasons combined. The problem is complicated by the fact that the symptoms for over-watering are the same as those for under-watering. "There's only one way to tell," he said, "put your finger down into the pot at least one inch deep. If it's wet at all, don't water." Emphasizing the importance of misting plants, he urged every black thumb interior gardener to get a spray bottle and use it daily. "If you're lucky," he says, "your house may have 30 per cent humidity." Plants need additional moisture, and a daily misting does the trick. He hastens to add, however, that misting does not replace watering. "Misting is separate." Plants in metal or plastic pots, he warns, need watering about one-third as often as those in clay pots. Clay pots tend to sweat and hold moisture. "It's best," Deacon advises, "to get all your plants in the same kind of pots, so you can water on a regular schedule." A proper soil medium is essential to a healthy plant, Deacon reports. Garden or woods dirt is not safe for interior plants. This soil contains moisture that breeds harmful organisms fatal to interior plants. However, woods dirt can be used, according to the expert, if it is sterilized. The sterilizing process Deacon prescribes is a simple procedure. Put a pan of soil into the oven, sprinkle lightly with water, and bake for 20 minutes at 200 degrees. If the soil is heavy (contains a large quantity of clay), he advises adding peat moss, vermiculite or similar material until a lighter texture is reached. Beware of black commercially prepared soil. It may be heavy. If it is sticky after watering, add vermiculite or perlite to lighten the soil, advises the expert.

On the topic of proper light, Deacon says that although over-watering kills more interior plants than anything else, light is the most limiting factor. "Even sheers cut 75 per cent of the available light." To solve the light dilemma, Deacon advises the home gardener to get some good books on plants and read, read, read. Good reference sources, he says, are U. S. Department of Agriculture publications and the Time-Life Encyclopedia of Gardening, the volume on Foliage House Plants. "The U. S. D. A. booklets are as good as any gardening books you can buy." These publications are available without charge through Extension county agents. Bugs are another interior plant hazard, Deacon identifies the three most common pests as mealy bugs, spider mites, and scale. Look for mealy bugs at the leaf joints. Spider mites are harder to see. To detect these obscure creatures, Deacon says to put a piece of white paper under the plant and flick the leaves. "If you see red spots," he says, "you've got them." Scale, he reports, looks like a hard brown or black bump on the plant stem. Mealy bugs and spider mites can be treated with commercial insecticide, recommended for interior plants. "But," Deacon stresses, "you must follow instructions and give the complete application." A one-shot effort, he claims, is not likely to end the pest problem.

While mealy bugs and spider mites require insecticide, scale is best controlled by picking the pests from the plants. To prevent plant bugs, Deacon calls on an ounce of prevention. He suggests that the gardener prepare a preventive solution and use it weekly in misting the plants. To prepare the solution, use water soluble fertilizer and mix according to directions. Add a small amount of interior plant insecticide, using less strength than the bottle recommends.

Correct soil medium nurtures plant, ends fatalities

It's easiest to mix the solution in a gallon jug. That way, he says, you can pour a smaller amount into the mister and avoid weekly mixing. What does the expert think about playing music to plants? "Personally," he says, "I don't believe in all this music business. But, we do play music to our plants, and they do quite well." Deacon, a University of Georgia graduate with a major in horticulture, is the president of Benchmark Industries, Inc., an interior landscaping firm located at the Plantscape House in Atlanta.

Deacon shows how a daily misting saves house plants from low indoor humidity

What factors determine rural industry location

TIFTON—What factors do executives of metropolitan industrial firms consider in making their decisions on locating branch plants in rural communities? Results of a study conducted in the Upper Midwest and presented at a recent Southeastern Regional Rural Industrialization Conference indicated these decision-makers are pondering factors such as economics, good transportation facilities, attitudes of community leaders and face-to-face communication with community leaders. Jerry R. Pratt, vice president-administration for Experience Inc., in Minneapolis, told conferees that his firm connected to do a study with the Agricultural Research Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The study results provide some implications for rural areas in the Southeast considering or seeking industrialization.

The study was conducted through conferences with top management "decision makers" of companies which have moved plants to non-metro areas, with managers of these plants, and with the leaders in the communities where the plants are located. About 200 conferences were conducted. The study was conducted in the Upper Midwest Region, including Minnesota, Wisconsin, Upper Michigan, Northern Illinois and Northern Iowa. "While this is not generally a depressed area, a number of the counties in the Upper Great Lakes Region have serious underemployment or unemployment problems," Pratt said. "All communities were small enough so that a new industry would have a noticeable impact on the economic and social life of the community. Sixty per cent of the towns had a population under 15,000 and no town had a population over 45,000. In the larger towns, we selected branch plants with employment of sufficient magnitude to have an impact on the community." Thirty-nine selected branch plants established between 1964 and 1971 were included. "Thirty per cent of these plants fabricated or assembled electrical and electronic parts, and 25 per cent manufactured garments and shoes," Pratt said. "The remainder fabricated a variety of items such as marine and auto parts, mobile homes, kitchen cabinets and chemicals." Pratt indicated that his firm's study revealed an almost unanimous opinion on the part of the 31 metro-based firms involved that the movement of manufacturing facilities to non-metro areas will continue and probably accelerate. "Several of these industrial leaders envisioned the large cities of the future functioning as government, service and cultural centers, furnishing administrative, technological, and financial support to the manufacturing facilities in the non-metropolitan areas," he said. Pratt said geographical location of non-metro plants is usually dictated by economic considerations with labor supply being chief among them. "Most company executives emphasized that unless a community can demonstrate that it has an adequate supply of trainable labor, it has very little chance of attracting a branch plant," Pratt said. "Many indicated that prior training was of little importance, although some firms did search for communities where workers had particular skills. Companies generally welcomed community help in finding a suitable site. Where a community owned an industrial park, the branch was usually located there." Pratt indicated other considerations which company officials thought important. Among these were good highway facilities, rail facilities, airport facilities and adequate utility services. "Contrary to general opinion, tax policies were seldom a decisive influence in selecting a branch location," Pratt emphasized. "Most of those who discussed taxes said they expected to pay their fair share." "Company attitudes toward housing, medical and dental facilities, churches, quality of schools and social and recreational facilities were affected only when the companies planned to bring new families into a community," Pratt said. "The primary advantage of locating in a non-metropolitan area was the availability of workers who were already housed in the area." What influences do communities exert on location decisions? Pratt says the survey shows that the progressive attitudes of community leaders definitely influence the selection of a location. "Brochures prepared by a community and distributed by mail had very little effect on company officials," he said. "However, most executives said that a well-prepared personal presentation by one or more community leaders was frequently a major factor in their final decision. Company officers generally praised the efforts of rural communities in selling themselves." Pratt said he drew one conclusion from the completed study: The movement of manufacturing facilities into non-metro areas has gone on at a faster pace than probably most Americans thought. On the whole, it has been very successful, both for companies and communities. And the evidence is that the movement will continue.

The Power Of One

We are always saying that one person cannot do much to change the world. But, one person, Madeline Murray O'Hare, the atheist crusader, succeeded in making it illegal to read the Bible or pray in school. Now she has obtained 27,000 signed letters protesting the decision of the astronauts to read the Bible as a Christian message from their space craft while orbiting the moon in December, 1968. She plans to present those letters to NASA with a demand that the Astronauts be publicly censured for their act, and further demand to prohibit any further demonstrations of religion in public places. You are but one, but you can do something about this! An effort is being made now to secure 1,000,000 signed letters commending the astronauts for their action. This would be an overwhelming defeat for Mrs. O'Hare and a great triumph for religious faith. Do not let her succeed with her ruling because YOU did nothing!

HERE IS WHAT YOU CAN DO:
Sign, detach and mail the form below. Be sure that it is filled out completely. Ask at least 5 of your friends to write a similar letter. Mail the bottom portion of this article only. Let's do this simple, but important thing. Let's do it now! (Cut off here and mail)
