Closing up the May Day program will be a "Ring Dance", featuring the presentation of class rings to seniors, on Friday evening at eight o'clock in the College gym.

NEED FOR COOPERATION

Traffic Program Inaugurated to Ease Existing Problems

During the Spring holidays a new traffic program was inaugurated on the campus of Valdosta State College by the administration in hope that it would alleviate the congested parking situation to a great extent.

Including in this program are: the establishment of one-way streets, the construction of an "island" in the parking lot, and the issuing of stickers for the cars of all students and faculty members for enforcement purpose.

Dr. J. Ralph Thaxton, president of the College, appealed to the student body and faculty for their cooperation. He stated that if necessary, however, the State Police would be called in to see that traffic and parking regulations were enforced.

Dr. S. W. Martin To Be Speaker On Honor Day

Dr. Sydney W. Martin, Professor of History at the University of Georgia will be speaker on Honors Day at Valdosta State College on May 4.

Dr. B. Nevins, faculty advisor for the Sigma Alpha Chi honor society, told the group at the regular monthly meeting held March 28, that Dr. Martin accepted the invitation, and will be our speaker on Honors Day.

It was decided at the meeting that people eligible for membership, were those who have been enrolled here for two or more quarters, and who have an overall quality point average of 2.0 or more, would be sent invitations to attend the next meeting of the society. The meeting will be held April 25.

Teacher Recruitment Stressed

VSC Plays Host to FTA High School Seniors

The campus assembly of the Fourth Annual Future Teachers of America was held at Valdosta State College April 3, 1956. The principal objective of this conference was teacher recruitment and to stimulate interest in the development of the Future Teachers of America movement in the high schools of Georgia.

Registration was held in the college gymnasium. More than three hundred people were registered. These people came from high schools all over South Georgia.

After registration refreshments were served in the Rotunda by the Home Economics Club.

The morning general session was held at 10:15 with Retha Willis, President of the VSC Chapter, Future Teachers of America presiding. She introduced Dr. Thaxton, President of the college, who gave the welcome. "The Serenaders" then sang special music. Mrs. S. C. Patterson, Director F. T. A. activities, Georgia State Department of Education, spoke on "Teaching As a Profession." Then Dr.

The Marshall Scholarship Scheme, a British gesture of appreciation for Marshall Aid, was announced in May of 1953. It provided for 12 U. S. scholars, to be selected annually from four regions in this country (and including the territories of Hawaii, Alaska and Puerto Rico), to study at British Universities for periods of two, and sometimes three, years.

Candidates may be of either sex, married or single, but must be under 28 years of age and holders of a first degree signifying at least three years of college. Selection is on the basis of both intellect and character.

Each scholarship is valued at around $1,540 a year, tax free — which is estimated to be ample for student life in Britain. However, this amount may be increased at certain universities where the cost of living is higher, and married men receive an additional grant.

Five-member committees from each of the four U. S. regions — Middle West, North East, Southern and Pacific — are headed by the local British Consul-General. When regional selection are made they are forwarded to Washington to the Advisory Council of distinguished persons appointed to assist the British Ambassador make final selections.

These in turn are forwarded to London for approval by the Commission, Chairman of which is the Rt. Hon. Sir Oliver Franks, former British Ambassador to the U. S.

Winners are announced in the spring; scholarships are taken up the following October.

Executive Skills

Broadened Curriculum To Be Offered in Business Administration

According to Noah Langdale, Jr. an improved and broadened curriculum in the various fields of Business Administration will be offered at VSC in 1956. New courses in this curriculum will be Corporation Finance, Tax Accounting, Money and Banking, and Business Law.

This attempt to improve general business and accounting courses, along with secretarial science, represents a united effort by this institution to provide adequate training for business in which executive skills are developed and perfected. To accomplish this, a "Core Curriculum" of subjects exists in community between the accounting major and business administration major.

The objective of the above and other allied courses is to develop, upon the freshman and sophomore basis of all around education, final two year professionalization of such students. Among the important features of the new program is the objective of helping students acquire and polish those skills which he or she will be able to "market" in the furtherance of a career.

Among new courses offered to implement this program three additions will be found in curriculum; Personnel Management; Corporation finance; and Investment Management. The first of these offerings emphasizes analysis and functionalization of jobs, channels of communications and command, selection and training of associates, etc. The second clarifies the corporation balance sheet, analyzes the capital structure, and undertakes a through exposition of the origination and completion of corporate business. Investment Management is designed specifically to compare various media of capital accretion including life insurance.

A FOUNDATION HAS BEEN LAID

LET'S BUILD ON IT

by LEWIS M. DAVIS

Well, here it is again! The old topic which is so regularly handled in almost every publication on this campus. Need I say this article directly concerns School Spirit. This time, however, I hope to take a different slant on it, but before getting right down to the point I would like to mention several things. Since I have been in Valdosta State College, I have heard quite a number of pros and cons concerning School Spirit. The fact that people talk about it is an indication that they are interested in it. Now, as always, the problem is, "what can I as an individual do to promote it?" Well, this always seems to be the phase of the construction that baffled everyone. Spirit is not, as you well know, a tangible thing which can be handled with a definite plan. Since we cannot define it as a definite thing lets look at a few things which cause school spirit. First of all you have here a school which is as well recognized as any one in the state. This fact alone should cause a certain amount of interest in the functions and therefore a bit of enthusiasm about the things in which this school participates in, ranging from the Glee Club to the Baseball team, and including all intermediate points between.

Secondly, we have here a faculty that is second to none. This should instill in us some pride, and in turn pride in our faculty results in pride in our school.

So, from the standpoint of pride, a certain amount of spirit is instilled in members of this school already.

Now, to the difficult task; how are we going to get this spirit moving to the extent that it can be felt. I have one solution. Its not any wonderful formula which can be applied, no special secrets which I am going to tell; its plain and simply this—if all of the people who in the past year have complained about there being no school spirit here, or were dissatisfied with that which has been exhibited, will contact the chairman of the committee on School Spirit, namely Sid Shaw, and tell him, "Sid, heretofore I have been dissatisfied with my school's display of school spirit, and I would like to do my part whatever it may be to encourage and promote it." Do you think we should get results? I know we would and so do you; if enough people are interested enough to do their part.

What will your part be? Basically all will be the same and for sure will all point to the same end. But, right now we are trying to promote a mass movement which will began with the field day on the Saturday following the May Day dance.

This is an earnest plea to you, the students. Please turn out and help make it a success. This is your home away from home, and lets support it with the energy, time, enthusiasm and spirit it justly deserves.

THE BREEZE

WHO WASN'T WHO

by DON W. BREESE

With so many students taking Literature, it is only fair that we investigate this field from the standpoint of the average student. It is going to be necessary to narrow this field, so lets take American Literature.

The first American writers were the New England Puritans. Nobody else knew how. They were mean old men and sometimes ate each others writings in a fit of rage.

Franklin was a cleancutter. He came to the big city without a cent, and made his fortune, and became a great man, and wrote an autobiography. Bully for him!

Irving made his reputation writing about the simple quaint Dutch people of New York. They all thought Irving was simple and quaint but they humored him anyway.

Fitz Greene Halleck lived in the period of the simple sentimental ballads, like "Home Sweet Home" and "The Face on the Barroom Floor". Nobody knows much about him, but he has an interesting name.

Bryant lived in a house, as most of the people of this period. Some people wonder why he never wrote about his house. One reason might be because he wrote poems.

James Fenimore Cooper was crazy about Indians. Especially dead ones. He wrote long books in which he did nothing but kill Indians.

When Longfellow was a boy, he was told to be a poet. He use to say to poog "I am going to be a poet." Everybo got sick of him after a while. Out spite, he did become a poet. Every had to eat his words. Most of Longfellow's poems were about death in the woods. That was before sex.

Whittier's middle name was Greenleaf. He never got over it.

Holmes knocked himself out. I thought he was a playboy. Also a wit.

The Transcendentalists were nature lovers. Sometimes like the Sun Bath Association of America. Some people say that they hated nature and just would admit it.

Emerson was tied down by society. He wrote essays, which weren't at all funny. It was Emerson, incidentally who said "People who live in brick houses should throw glasses." He was a man of hard, cold logic.

Poe had a vivid imagination. In fact it was down right weird. He spent his whole life dreaming how to make writing more so. He succeeded.

Whitman wrote long poems saying his wonderful people were, and still they didn't like him.

All Literature books stop with Whitman, so who am I to break tradition?

Did You Hear The One About

The two skunks who played poker for a scent a point?

The midget who was sentenced to the electric highchair?

The polite gangster? Before blackjacking a person he'd ask: "one lump or two?"

The guy named Short Cake who married an Indian squaw? When he died—Squaw bury Short Cake!

The drunk who went to Miami to sober up? He looked out of his window, saw the Atlantic Ocean and said: "Man, what a chaser!"

The cross-eyed teacher who had no control over her pupils?

The mental patient who became a bookie? Since none of the other inmates had any money, they bet pebbles. One day a guy came in with a big boulder but the book wouldn't take the bet. He figured this guy knew something.

The conceited plumber who looked at Niagara Falls and said: "Give me time and I could fix it."

"I ask advice from others; I seldom take it, tho; I simply let them give it Because they love it so."

Because it could be that we ought to be glad that we have no such woe-be-gone graders as the one who marked the exams so strictly that he funk-ed a fellow for having a period upside down.

Case of the Catchy Combination

"I've got it! Now I'll turn it to 8." (After brief pause) "Nope, wrong again. I'll try 5½." (Another brief pause) "Damn it! Won't I ever hit the right number?"

Poor thing, I really feel sorry for her. She comes here every day, but always unsuccessfully turns away.

"I'm sure I have the combination here in my purse—now let me see—Oh no! I must have misplaced it. What on earth can I do?"

Sorry honey, this is not the information column. You remember the old saying, "If you don't succeed at first, try, try again." Now don't give up while there's still a chance.

"But it may be important. Gosh, it may be from Johnny! He may have asked me to be his awful wedded wife or he's coming home. Golly, I'll just have to give it another try.

Now this character has placed her books on the floor, her pencil over her ear, her glasses on the end of her nose and is bent over in a very conspicuous position, laboriously attempting to accomplish her task.

There—I think she has it—she looks a little enlightened. Curses, foiled again! But wait, the old saying also applies to the second time you try. No, she isn't giving up. She has seated herself comfortably in a chair and has removed one shoe. Why, this girl is the perfect picture of grace and poise.

Hold everything! I believe the point of success has been reached. The little door swings open. A hand is thrust into the box and out comes a lovely little 2" x 4" envelope. After all these hours of torture and humiliation, our friend has successfully opened her mailbox.

PHILOSOPHY . .

Truth isn't really stranger than fiction. We're just not as familiar with it.

Some girls use a pill to get rid of a headache, and vice versa.

What this country needs is someone who knows what this country needs.

Fame is fleeting. Today's president is tomorrow's three cent stamp. Speeches are like the horns of a steer. A point here a point there and a lot of bull in between.

The young man wandered into the tennis tournament and sat down on the bench. "Whose game?" he asked. A shy young thing sitting next to him looked up hopefully. "I am", she replied.

College Students Encouraged to Take Active Part in Government

The national leadership of the Democratic and Republican parties join forces today to encourage college men and women to take an increased active part in the affairs of the political party of their choice.

In a statement sponsored by the Citizenship Clearing House Mr. Paul Butler, National Democratic Chairman, and Mr. Leonard Hall, National Republican Chairman, urged college students and graduates to assume the political responsibilities for which their academic training equips them.

Mr. Butler pointed out that "On political parties are the chief instruments of politics. It is they that breathe life into the principle of 'the consent of the governed'."

In the statement by Mr. Hall, President Eisenhower was quoted to the effect that participation is inevitable since by not voting "you double the value of the vote of anyone who does not believe in the things you believe."

The Citizenship Clearing House is a national organization operating through 24 state or regional affiliates, which cooperate with more than 300 colleges and universities. The programs of the affiliates are designed to bring college men and women, faculty, and recent graduates into closer association with respected political leaders, with a view to acquainting them with the actual workings of the political process.

ESSAY ON MAN

Man is what woman marries. Man has two feet; two hands, etc. but never more than one collar but ten or one idea at a time.

If you wear red nail polish, rouge and a rakish hat, he hesitates to take you out; but if you wear your little blue hat, no rouge, and no nail polish he takes you out and proceeds to stare at a woman wearing red nail polish, rouge, and a rakish hat.

Female Personality

Confirmed Batchelor, Career in Engineering Mansion, Cadillac Jack Carter

I plan to get married and raise a family—four children—boys first! This is one of the future plans of the man Personality of the Month, Miss Doris Law, from Thomasville, Georgia. She is a senior here at Valdosta State College, and will graduate August 1956. On graduation, she plans to work until Christmas, and then to graduate work on child welfare at Florida State University.

Doris, affectionately called "Dodo" by her friends, was born in Thomasville, and lived there all of her life except for one year and a half she and her family lived in Montgomery, Alabama.

During her three years here at VSC, Doris Law has participated in many extracurricular activities, such as; membership in the English club, Sports Council, Sock and Buskin, and CAMPUS CANOPY staff. She has also been vice-president of the Sigma Alpha Omega Sorority, treasurer of the junior class, and treasurer of the B. S. U. Recently, Doris was selected as one of the senior girls to be in the May Court.

When asked what kind of surroundings she would like to live in, she replied: "I would like to live in the suburbs of a town about the size of Valdosta." As for a home—"I want a middle sized home that grows with the number of children increases. Oh, yes—I want a swimming pool!" The last statement is a key to one of her most outstanding personality traits—humor. Dodo, has an incomparable talent for saying the thing at the right time! Needless to say, she adds a ray of sunshine to our daily campus life.

Doris has no special hobby, but for sometimes she enjoys trips to Jacksonville Beach, listening to music, and playing bridge. "Yes, I like to read books and a few plays, such as; Grapes of Wrath, Picnic, and Shakespeare's works." Movies are her favorite medium of entertainment. Of this she says, "I like a movie that has good acting in it." Her movie favorites are William Holden and the Wyman.

Dodo's viewpoints on life—"I expect to get out of life just what I put into it. I believe it would be nice if everybody lived by the golden rule." Her pet peeve is a self-centered person.

MAO's Highlight Meeting With Dinner Party

Mrs. Wisenbaker, the actives, and members of Sigma Alpha Omega sorority participated in a dinner at Minchew's restaurant, Thursday, March 29.

Those attending were Mrs. Wisenbaker, Jane Ledford, Mary Lou Dekle, Lucille Helms, Janet Hughes, Gloria Dickinson, Joan Johnson, Norma Jean King, Quida Meadows, Judy Stringer, Lucie Lindstrom, Janice Thomas, Helen Wang, Betty Kay Springer, Doris Law, Shirley Wilson, Judy Davis, Jo Ann Daniels, Ann Harris, Helen Porter, and Shirley Daughtery.

Following the dinner, the regular meeting was held and Mrs. Wisenbaker presented some interesting comments to the sorority from Miss Blake, National president of Alpha Delta Pi.

"I like the people that go to school here at VSC." When asked what she thought the school could do to improve itself, she replied, "If they had the answer to that question they might do something about it." (The students and faculty, that is!) Doris is searching for the answers to this question, and it is somewhere on the campus.

Activities Lead To Successful Senior Week-End

Circle K Club was host to the Seniors during Senior Weekend at Valdosta State College April 13, 14, and 15. The purpose of Senior Weekend is to encourage prospective students to attend VSC.

The Circle K played host to the visiting high school seniors who were on our campus from all over the State of Georgia the weekend beginning the 13, and ending the 15 of this month. The Club planned a program which showed the visitors some examples of a student's social, academic, and spiritual life at VSC. The program stressed typical examples, and nothing strained or exaggerated.

It began with a meal in the new cafeteria at 6:00 p. m. After the meal, they had to get "squared away" in their rooms. Later in the evening they were entertained by "dormitory parties."

The next morning, Saturday, they had a chance to meet the faculty, talk over their expected programs with them, and see the physical facilities which we have. There were, of course, guided tours for the visitors.

In the afternoon, the club had a swimming party, and folk games and dances that evening in the gymnasium. They had nothing planned Sunday except attending Church. Buses were furnished to carry the students to and from Church.

We hope they were very favorably impressed with our school when they departed Sunday afternoon, and we hope that most of them will return next year as students at VSC. Mr. McGraw, of the Publicity Office said, "We have one of the friendliest student bodies in the state." Our senior weekend show our visitors how friendly we really are."

To a Roommate

Oh, roommate dear, oh, roommate sweet,
I wish that you would be more neat.
Your clothes, your books, your cast-off hair

Are found on every bed and chair.
In dresser drawers why don't you keep
Those things that on the floor you heap?
Oh, roommate sweet, oh, roommate dear,
Your footsteps I can't fail to hear
As o'er the floor you lightly tread
You nearly knock me out of bed!
When sweet repose I try to get,
To turn the light off you forget.
Oh, roommate sweet, oh, roommate dear,
I'll never get to sleep I fear.

Oh roommate sweet, my little dove,
In spite of all, it's you I love.
In spite of salt between my sheets,
In spite of tickling my bare "feet",
Although my clothes you try to wear,
And use my hair-brush on your hair,
Oh, roommate, sweet my little dove,
In spite of all, it's you I love.

suicide when it found out that its mother was a tramp?

Male Personality

Middle Sized Home, Swimming Pool Plus Popularity Equals Dodo

"I'm not a marrying man!" This is the unsupported opinion of the Man Personality of the Month, Jack Carter. A graduate of Valdosta High School, Jack, is a junior here at Valdosta State College. Though born in Quitman, Georgia, Jack considers Valdosta his home since he has been living here for the past fifteen years. Majoring in mathematics, Jack says his interest in this study began in high school, and since that time he has planned on a career in engineering.

Although planning to transfer to Georgia Tech in the near future, his stay at Valdosta State College has been a lively one. Proof of this can be found in the fact that he is a past member of Mu Alpha Fraternity in which he held the office of secretary and treasurer for two years. For further proof we can look at his work on the CAMPUS CANOPY—managing editor and editor his freshman and sophomore years respectively. Sophomore representative to the Student Government Association is another office Mr. Carter has held competently.

Jack's artistic ability has been tried many times on the campus. He has been decorating chairman for many of the more successful dances on campus. His latest achievement was the decoration of the Homecoming Dance several weeks ago.

When asked what he expects to gain at VSC, he replied, "Academically speaking, I would like a good foundation in mathematics and science to aid me in my further studies along this line." Socially speaking, he has this to say, "I would like a well rounded social schedule of the type that can only be obtained on a small campus. I think this is very helpful, because you can have closer contact with your fellow students and professors."

Jack thinks that one of the biggest draw-backs at VSC is the lack of support in social activities. He goes on to say that one of the reasons that there is so few of these activities is the lack of support. "I have had personal experiences along this line and I have found that it has been some-what costly at times." He thinks improvement of this would be to "find out just what the student wants by way of an opinion poll taken by the CANOPY or some other organization on campus."

Jack's likes are many and varied. He enjoys all type of parties and good hard work, along with an unlimited supply of currency. One of his greatest likes is also one of his greatest weaknesses—a good looking girl. He is an ardent admirer of Alley Oop, James Dean, and Marlon Brando. When asked of his choice in

Rose Time In Deep South

THOMASVILLE, GA. — The longest and most spectacular parade in the history of Thomasville's annual Rose Festival was this year's 35th annual observance on April 27. Over 20 crack high school, college and armed forces bands participated along with an estimated 30 gaily decorated floats and a bevy of beauties representing the "Deep South" area.

"Rose Time in the Deep South" was the theme of the event, which was highlighted by the parade on Friday, April 27. The reigning beauty, "Miss America", crowned the 1956 Rose Queen at high noon.

Other features of the Festival was the street dance Thursday, April 26 and tours of neighboring plantations on Friday and Saturday.

The famous Thomasville Rose Show was held at the VA Dom. Center gymnasium and the exhibits filled several barracks buildings as well as the gymnasium. Thomasville roses were at their peak in the show and on the city streets, gardens and downtown store windows.

Beauties from all over this section competed at the Rose Festival ball Friday night for the honor of being crowned "Miss Deep South".

Entries in the beauty contest and in the parade were from scores of Georgia and Florida towns and cities.

female movie stars, he replied: "Lana Turner and Grace Kelly; as for cheese-cake, I favor a combination of Gina Lollobrigida and Diana Dors."

Looking to the future, Jack hopes for a career in engineering, life in a good-sized town, a mansion and a cadillac!!! (You know something? He'll probably get it!!!)

In the Still Of the Night

My goodness! Why doesn't somebody answer that telephone. How do they expect us to sleep. I wonder. I think I'll open one eye and see if I can find out what time it is. My goodness, it's pitch dark. I can't even see my hand in front of my face. I wonder what is happening. I wish Joanne would turn the lamp on so I can see my watch. Three o'clock! That noise must be somebody's alarm. I do wish she'd turn it off, though. I wonder what all the noise is out in the hall. It does seem that people could at least be quiet at this hour. I do wonder what is happening.

I wonder why Joanne is getting up. Oh, it's a fire drill. And at this hour! Well, now what all am I supposed to do? Let's see if I can remember. Pull the window down, raise the shade, get towel, turn the lights on, get a house coat, leave the door open and get outside. Which door do I go out of anyway? They change these rules so much I just can't remember where I'm supposed to go. Everybody else seems to be going this way, so I'll go too. Oh no, I've forgotten my bedroom shoes. Now, I'll have to go back to the room and try to find them. I do wish that roommate of mine would leave them alone. Well, isn't that sweet, here they are by her bed. I wonder whose shoes she has on. It's a good thing this isn't a real fire, I'd be cooked well-done by this time. At least the halls are empty and I can get out without bumping into anybody who is half asleep.

My goodness, this is all so stupid. If the silly old building were on fire, we'd have sense enough to get out of the building without all this practice. And at such horrible hours.

My, it's cold outside. I hope someone will check up soon so we can go back to bed. Ha! don't all of these people look funny. Some of them look as if they could go back to sleep standing up out here. I surely hope I don't look as bad as they do. Oh, we can go back in the dormitory now. Well, isn't that nice. They make us stand out here until we get wide awake, and then they tell us to go inside and be quiet and go back to sleep.

Well, all the lights are out and everything is all quiet again, but I just can't go back to sleep, and I was having the best dream, too. Suppose this had been a real fire instead of just a practice drill. I wonder if I could have known what to do. Hmmm; I'm getting drowsy. Maybe it is best that we practice what to do in case of a fire, at least I'm sure now I'll know what to do and what door to go out if we ever do have a real fire. Ho hum, I sure am sleepy.

Just Tweren't Natural

by Don W. Breese

The other day while I was out a-walkin I seen this here crowd a-pourin into what I figgered was one of these new fangled motion picthers. Didn't seem to cost nuthin, so I follered everyone else in.

Tweren't really a motion picther, but everyone was a-settin a-starin at this pasture, I set down too. Purty soon these fellers came a-runnin outa this here hole with a roof over it. Next thing I knowed they was strung out all over that dura pasture.

I cud tell they was mad at one nother cause they was a-throwin rocks at each other.

Finally a feller came out and told them to stop all that horseplay. Everybody got quiet all of a sudden, and I could see why. You see one of them fellers, he was a-standin in the middle of this field hadn't gotten rid of his rock. He was a-fixin to hit a feller wearing another color. I wasn't too worried cause you see this feller was armed too, he had a stick.

Anyway, this feller out in the middle of the field threw that rock at the feller with the stick . . . missed him though. The feller with the stick jest stood there.

I seen somethin I jest couldn't stand. When that feller threw that there rock, the feller who seemed ta be bossin that crowd yelled somethin. Folks a-settin with me all started a-hollerin thief. I knowed he wasn't though cause I saw a feller jest in front of him swip that rock.

Tweren't long afore one of them fellers got so mad he hit that rock plum out into that field. He knowed he shouldn't otta done that cause he started a-running. One of the fellers out in the field grabbed that there rock an a-pitched at that feller running. Pore critter a-running was so scared he plum stopped, right on a piller.

Not much happened for a spell, but they shore had a time with critter on that piller. He jest wouldn't stand still. Don't blame him much though, them fellers kept a-throwin that rock at him.

You shore should have seen them fellers, chasin that rock and stepin on them pillers. Never seen critters so mad before.

One thing bout them I noticed, pore fellers was so plum busted they couldn't afford ta buy a pair of mittens. Pore devils caud only have one mitten apiece.

People settin around me kept askin what the score was. Musta wanted ta know how many of them fellers got hit.

Figgered it was bout time ta mossy along, so I got up ta leave, and durned if one of those doggone fellers didn't up an holler take your base . . . I didn't have no base.

Don't Let Anything Interfere With True Pursuit

Have you ever tried to sleep during class?

The story goes that people come to college to get educated. Well, that is true, but the question is—to get educated in what. Quite a few harmless professors and mercenary parents have pondered this question quite a bit. Some say we come to college to get a degree—to get the label A. B. (like a grade of steak sauce), while others say we come to pass the time until we can get a man, or vice-versa. All this is very well. We do come to college to get an education and as this is a Liberal Arts school . . . we try to get a LIBERAL education. But what's this got to do with sleeping in classes? . . . Well, have you ever successfully listened to a first period lecture after "liberalizing" your education the night before?

It's a well-known fact that the models of school-desks now in use were patented with the label "Sleep-Proof Desks" . . . Funny what fools college students can make of inventors! Why some professors even safeguard the health of their students by requesting rooms for their classes where the bell doesn't ring at all. Now some may think this is because the professor wants a few extra minutes to complete stirring up the student's "intellectual curiosity" . . . But we know it's so we can grab a couple more minutes of peaceful slumber.

Professors are really very sympathetic to students who have "the Habit" . . . they even pick subjects for lecture which are conducive to sleep and then add the final touch by droning a lullaby of words which helps the poor student to sleep even quicker. Of course, some professors are just plain out and out devilish . . . they pop questions at you to break the continuity of your daydreams.

If you have ever wondered why the Dean's List students have such heavy circles under their eyes it's because of the sleep they lose by sitting up to all kinds of lectures and losing so much sleep during the day. Some people sacrifice everything for their art! To date, there's been only one class student that have had trouble sleeping through . . . and here's a word of advice. Don't forget and fall asleep during a Listening to Music class . . . otherwise if you do, when all of a sudden a Paukenslagg or Beethoven's Fifth comes booming out for you . . . you're liable to be scared so badly you'll have trouble sleeping through classes the rest of the day.

Rebel Team is Rapidly Taking Shape

The Florida Southern Mocs won opening pair of games from V. S. C. 5-4 and 6-0, respectively.

Hatcher, a top pitcher last year, won the distance Monday scattering 10 through the 10-inning contest.

V. S. C. took the lead early in opening with Deaton and Gray walking and then brought in by a sharp double down the left field line by Wilson. A wild pitch brought Wilson in only second later.

The Moccassins gradually took the lead with a run in the second frame and took it in the third. Spicuzza slammed a thug bagger and was brought in by Cliff with a single.

On Tuesday V. S. C. ran into a barrage of nine F. S. C. players playing a near perfect game.

Sheffield took the hill, but was forced to vacate to McLeod because of a sore arm.

Only one hit was gathered by V. S. C. during the nine frames. Clean up hit Wilson hit a long line drive into right field for single, which broke Krauss' hitter in the seventh.

Rebels Down NGC In Batting Splurge

The Rebel batters came to life in late inning batting splurge Friday, bring in eight runs which won for the first Georgia Intercollegiate Conference contest of the 1956 season over N. G. C.

Hatcher dominated the mound and allowed only six hits, even though he was in some tough situations. Most of these situations were brought about by weak defensive play and the only run of N. G. C. was not an earned one.

For four innings, neither side gained the scoring column, but V. S. C. came to life in the fifth to drive in three runs which gave her a good edge.

Joe Tarpley, V. S. C. catcher, started the rally with a single down the left field line. Three Rebels were walking and with aid of one baggers from Wilson and Gray, three came in to score.

In the seventh, Sheffield lined a single to left field and Wilson beat out a single to the infield. Bartee, then followed Wilson with a sharp double to left field to bring both Sheffield and Wilson in. McLeod followed immediately to score. Bartee with a single for the last run of that frame.

The Rebels, led by Hill with a double and a single, Bartee with a double, and Sheffield, Wilson, and Tarpley with two singles each, collected 10 hits in the course of the game.

IF FOR GIRLS

If you can do your math when a boy about you
Are raising heck and tempting all our fates,
If you can write a theme while class mates flout you,
And never think of men and dates
If you can plug and grind and work and study
And thereby make the mighty honor list,
Then you'll know more than most anybody.
But, darn it, look at all the fun you've missed.
