Miss Lee Captures Miss VSC Crown

By Vicki Brown

The annual Miss VSC Beauty Pageant sponsored by the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity got underway last Thursday night, February 29, 1968, with Gordon Morrow was Master of Ceremonies. The theme of the beauty pageant this year was "Olympia" and the girls certainly looked as pretty as goddesses on Mr. Olympia.

The girls in the contest were Susannah Ashley, a freshman majoring in art from Miami, Florida; Toni Bellwe, a sophomore majoring in Psychology from Covington, Georgia; Carla Culbreath, a freshman majoring in elementary education from Waycross, Georgia; Betsy Evans, a freshman majoring in medical technology from Waynesboro, Georgia; Linda Garrett, a freshman majoring in history from Pelham, Georgia, Nancy Lee, a freshman majoring in English from Fitzgerald, Georgia and Sis Watson, freshman majoring in Secretarial Science from Valdosta, Georgia.

The excitement was rising toward the final decision of the judges. The top five who were chosen included Carla Culbreath, Linda Garrett, Nancy Lee, Linda Reddick and Sis Watson. These five girls were tops according to the judges. Not only are the contestants rated on their talent, poise, and beauty, but also on their intelligence. Then came the question and answer period which is always of interest to the audience and influences the final decision of the judges in choosing the top three girls.

The final decision of the judges has been made and the audience became tense with excitement and wonderment as to which names would be announced the 2nd runner up who pronounced as the top three girls.

Gordon Morrow announced the 2nd runner up who was Linda Reddick from Valdosta, Georgia. Her talent was an acrobatic ballet which she choreographed herself to the song "More." Linda has taken dancing and acrobatics for over 16 years and now has dancing and acrobatic students of her own. She is in Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and was sponsored in the contest by Kentucky Fried Chicken. The question asked to her before the final decision of the judges was, "What is your feelings on the situation in Viet Nam?" Congratulations Linda!

The first runner up was Linda Garrett from Valdosta, Georgia. Her talent was singing "I Can't Say No" from the Broadway musical Oklahoma. Linda holds the title of talent winner in the Miss Georgia contest for 1967. She was sponsored in the contest by Zant's Flower Shop of Valdosta. Her question was "Do you feel today's youth has lost their sense of pride in their country?" Congratulations to you Linda Garrett!

And then for the crowning of Miss Valdosta State College, Miss Angie Thompson, the 1967 Queen, made her entrance on stage with the crown for the 1968 Queen who was Nancy Lee from Lakeland, Georgia. Her talent was the portraying of

Homecoming Events Center On Wild, Wild West Theme

Homecoming at VSC will be held April 5 and 6. The theme for the occasion will be the Wild, Wild West.

In keeping with tradition, students will build displays for each dormitory. These displays will be judged according to appropriateness of theme and beauty. Displays should be up by Friday and will be judged on Saturday.

Homecoming festivities will begin on Friday, April 5 with a reading from Edgar Lee Master's "Spoon River Anthology" by a member of the Speech Department on the steps of Nevin's Hall.

That afternoon a Hootenanny will occur at the Student Union. Alumni will register all day Friday and will take part in the activities.

Highlighting the festivities will be a basketball game Friday night. The game, sponsored by the Black Key, will be between alumni from past rebel teams and players from the Atlanta Falcon football team. The Falcon team will be made up of Tommy Nobis, Randy Johnson, Billy Lothridge, Tommy McDonald, and six other Falcons. The rebel team, which will be headed by past All-American Bobby Rich, will consist of Mike Perry, Wendel McSwain, Coach Jim Melvin, and the seniors on this year's basketball team.

Tickets for the game will be $1.00 and will go on sale this quarter. The game is tentatively scheduled for 8:30 p.m. in the college gym.

On Saturday the homecoming parade will begin around 1:00 p.m. Sororities, fraternities, clubs, and organizations will enter floats which are to be judged for prizes. All floats will present an aspect of the Wild, Wild, West theme.

Two grand marshals have been appointed for the parade. They are Ronnie Gilliard and Jimmy Boland.

Saturday afternoon there will be a baseball game at the field on North Campus.

Saturday night there will be a concert featuring the "Impressions" at the city auditorium. Following the concert, a dance is scheduled to begin at 10:00 p.m. "Soul Incorporated" which will also be at the city auditorium, will play for the dance.

At the dance the homecoming queen will be crowned. The homecoming court will be made up of five or six girls voted on by the student body. Sororities and independents will nominate the girls to be voted on.

Tommy Nobis, of the Atlanta Falcons, will be asked to ride in the parade as Grand Marshall. Bill Moore of the SGA, who is in charge of homecoming activities, says, "Tommy Nobis will be appropriate for the theme. He is from Texas."

Students Die In Crash

Two Valdosta State College students were killed February 24 in an automobile accident near Glennville.

Kitty Morris Simms and Larry B. Martin, both freshmen from Waycross, were travelling with another student, Robert Lee Booth from Andrew College, when the car in which they were riding collided with a tractor-trailer truck at the intersection of Georgia Highways 169 and 23.

Larry Martin was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emory Martin. Kitty Simms was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. Simms. They were both 1967 graduates of Waycross High School.

Students Attend Georgia College Press Confab

Eleven members of the CAMPUS CANOPY staff attended a newspaper conference in Athens sponsored by the Georgia Collegiate Press Association.

Highlighting the convention was a banquet Friday night, February 23, at which time the awards were given for the Better Newspaper Contest. The speaker for the occasion was Lou Cassels, religion editor of United Press International.

Featured Saturday, February 24, were student forums on the different aspects of printing a college paper.

Members attending the convention from the CANOPY staff were Wayne Stephens, David Stroupe, Liza Cooper, Cherri Collins, Joyce Joyce, Jim Walker, Kay Williams, Larry North, Bobbie Jo Hardwick, Larry Bennett, and Bill Cribbs.

There were more than 124 students at the convention representing college newspapers from all over the state of Georgia.

Classes Begin March 26 In Continuing Ed.

Registration for the spring quarter continuing education classes at Valdosta State College is scheduled Monday, March 18, at 6:15 p.m., in Nevin's Hall, according to Walter Harrison, VSC Director of Continuing Education.

Classes are scheduled to begin Tuesday, March 26.

"All persons interested in enrolling in continuing education classes for the spring quarter are urged to begin the admission process at once. Complete details concerning admission requirements may be found in the College catalogue," Mr. Harrison said.

Mr. Harrison pointed out that anyone who has been admitted to VSC previously need only to notify the registrar that they plan to re-enter for the spring quarter.

All continuing education classes meet on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. There will be two periods each evening. First period will begin at 6:15 and end at 8:00 p.m. Second period will begin at 8:15 p.m. and end at 9:10 p.m.

Consultants Offer Recommendations For Improvement Of VSC Library

The following is the complete report submitted to VSC by the two library consultants recently requested to analyze the library facilities here at the college. Administrative:

1. Book theft at the College Library is said to be prevalent, but it has not assumed such major proportions in terms of the cost of book replacement to warrant the employment of full-time door checkers. Various controls designed to minimize book theft have been considered for some time. Recently, there has been some faculty and student criticism of the Library for its failure to set up a system of door checks at exit points. This criticism may or may not be valid depending upon the point of view. In view of the relatively low book losses when the Library was last able to take a complete inventory and in view of the high cost of underwriting an exit control, especially when there are other serious library needs, the Librarian has been reluctant to recommend a check-out operation to the Administration. Nevertheless, it is obvious from the comments of certain members of the Library Committee and the student representatives present at the meeting with the visitors that library service is impaired by book losses, and that resentment and frustration attend failure to get books immediately when they are needed.

Recommendations:

A. Lock the outside door which opens directly into the periodic reading area. Carpet strip down the main reading area after a trial period, and that there is too much disturbance caused by readers moving from the loan desk area to the current periodical area. place single-faced (solid backs) shelving or screens at spaced intervals on either side of the carpet strip in the main reading room.

B. Other methods of controlling book losses should also be considered: the Library Committee might encourage the faculty to make greater use of paperbacks and the closed book reserve when there is likely to be heavy use of books for collateral reading. Such arrangements should be made well in advance of reading assignments.

2. Staff Working Space. The working space for the staff is far too crowded for good work.

The staff is operating under maximum difficulty and discomfort.

Recommendations:

A. Remove the xerox machine from the catalog room and place it outside where both staff members and readers can use it without crowding the working quarters. The xerox machine should be coin operated. Two possible locations are the space just inside the entrance door or the exhibit room upstairs.

B. Provide additional space for staff duties even if this means splitting the working quarters between the first and second floors.

3. Increase in staff: Both from personal observation and from a comparison of salary and book expenditures, there are indications of a serious problem of under-staffing.

Recommendations:

A. Strengthen the staffing of the acquisitions operations at the earliest possible moment.

B. Begin preparation for more adequate staffing of circulation and reference services in order to remedy present inadequacies and to extend library hours to include Sunday evening next fall.

C. Employ a consultant (e.g., Mr. Porter Kellam, University Librarian, University of Georgia) to work out with the College Librarian a program of staff development for the next five years, providing the proper balance between professional and clerical assistants.

Building

Sections of the present building were built when it was standard library practice to provide a book stack and a separate large reading room. The addition to the building in 1965 duplicated an existing wing architecturally. It provided architectural symmetry but the architect overlooked the fact that what went on inside a library in 1965 was quite different from what was previously considered good practice. No doubt additional space for books and readers was needed but no addition to a library which merely takes into account physical growth can ever be satisfactory. The terms which define a library are books, arrangement, and use. All three have changed greatly since 1940, but none so much as arrangement. Books and readers are just two of several essentials. It is equally important that they be grouped in logical and convenient relationships so that students may be stimulated by their surroundings to use books, and faculty members may be better able to guide them in the process. The close working relationship of students, teachers, and books - so essential to education at its best - can only be achieved in a library building which is planned from the beginning with this objective in mind. The present building at Valdosta is no longer a functional library building.

Without going into detail, it is apparent that the present building suffers from having been planned and built in several sections, that related functions are badly scattered, and that changes will be costly. The site may no longer be the best. It would appear that classrooms are moving away from the library site (e.g., Fine Arts Building), that the library is becoming the center of a dormitory rather than a classroom complex. The present building with its multi-tier stacks in each wing, its high ceilinged reading room, and its inadequate working quarters is inflexible.

Recommendations:

A. From a quick survey, the library building at Valdosta would appear to be quite unsuited for modern library purposes. An addition is possible but to work out satisfactorily the changes which would help to make the library an important tool of learning would involve very costly alterations in the present structure. Another - perhaps simpler - building would seem to be an alternate solution.

B. An architect skilled in modern library design should be employed as a consultant for a two or three-day survey of the library building to determine whether it is more economical in long-range planning to add to the present library building or start afresh. Mr. Russell Bailey of Orange, Virginia, is an experienced architect who has specialized in library buildings.

In Appreciation

V.S.C. rightly feels honored in becoming the recipient of Dr. Pannkoke's valuable personal library of some 2,000 volumes. Such a gift, no doubt sought after by several colleges and universities, should give impetus to the Valdosta State College Foundation's book drive. We predict that other collections will follow.

The CANOPY salutes its benefactor, Dr. Pannkoke and the ones at VSC who "sold" VSC as a worthy depository

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"OH, HI THERE, PROFESSOR SNARE - ARE YOU GOING TO COVER ANYTHING IMPORTANT IN CLASS TODAY?"

Lawyer Urges Dissidents To Consider Draft Rights

A lawyer who feels that the military should be prevented from getting the manpower it needs for the war in Vietnam is the author of How to Stay Out of the Army: A Guide To Your Rights Under the Draft Law. The paperback book was published February 29, 1968, by Monthly Review Press and was distributed for MR Press by Grove Press.

Conrad J. Lynn, the noted civil rights and draft attorney, a firm opponent of the Vietnam war, urges young men to claim all their rights under the draft law, and to go into the courts and invoke the Nuremberg principle if necessary. He has written this handbook, he says in his introduction, "So that those who wish to resist may be aided in having all their rights that might help them to refuse induction into the armed forces." To this end, he provides a simple guide to the law, and an explanation of all the grounds for deferment or exemption. It is his feeling that with the aid of this handbook the young resister can secure his rights without the assistance of legal counsel, and, by acting correctly, prepare a proper legal foundation for his attorney should the case have to go to the courts. Conrad Lynn is a Negro attorney who has specialized in the handling of draft cases ever since World War II. His first case under the Selective Service Law came in 1942, when he defended his brother Winfred Lynn, who refused to submit to induction into the then-segregated United States Army but volunteered instead for service in the Canadian Army. Since that first case he has handled hundreds of draft cases, and has some 70 in process at present. He has also represented students at Michigan State and New York University at New Paltz in cases arising from anti-war demonstrations.

In addition to his strong opposition to the war, Mr. Lynn feels that every young man, no matter how poor, should have access to the same information and techniques used by lawyers for clients who spend thousands on legal advice and representation to get deferments and exemptions. It is his feeling that How to Stay Out of the Army will help to fill this need.

Published at $1.25., Conrad Lynn's book is being launched by an advertising campaign in college papers throughout the country.

Abused Phones Leave Dorms Out Of Touch

Your dormitories have a real problem. Last night I walked down the corridor to phone my girl. Alas, I quickly discovered that our only remaining telephone had been torn from its place. Only the ugly baseplate and a few strands of wire remained (except for the usual pencilled doodlings of a latent Henry Miller). You know, Sam, we used to have three (count 'em) telephones on our floor. The first was vandalized by a puberty-stricken drunk two years ago. We didn't mind that so much--even though we noticed that our dormitory fee was increased the next year--maybe to cover the loss of telephones. Last fall, one of our two remaining telephones came apart--quite by accident (you'd think the telephone company would make equipment that could withstand the poundings of 50, red-blooded men, wouldn't you, Sam?) Well, Sam, that left us with only one telephone -- our only source of contact with the outside world and women! To say that we protected the instrument with our lives would be a gross exaggeration, but we did keep our eyes on it lest it fall into evil hands. In spite of our surveillance, it too now is gone-- may it rest in peace. Sam, I don't mind telling you I'm pretty hacked about it. So are some other guys on our floor. What would you do, Sam? I'm not a real swinger, but I do date and I do need a telephone. What will my folks think when they try to call me next week (my birthday) and are told that I can only be reached by telegram or carrier pigeon! Do you think the telephone company will install another phone? I doubt it! Why should they? It will probably cost a lot of money -- which they don't get back because some students cheat by using slugs, cardboard, string, and other phony devices.

Sam, I'm real discouraged about this stuff -- you know these same people also destroy other things in the dorm. What should I do? -- Yeah I know, Sam, but E.S.P. doesn't really work "long distance". I sometimes wonder why some of these guys came to college.

Don't give up, Sam; there is some consolation in the knowledge that even though we need telephones, at least we won't be disturbed by the blasted ringing?

Hendrix Clarifies Rules Concerning Deferments

By Brig. Gen. Mike Y. Hendrix
State Director of Selective Service.

I offer the following information in an effort to clarify the information regarding graduate student deferments and occupational deferments printed in the well-written column, "Hundreds Face Draft in State" by Marion Gaines in the February 20, 1968 edition of The Atlanta Constitution. The February 20, 1968 edition of the Atlanta Journal, "New Draft Rule to Hit Graduate Students," stated that "Local draft boards still must determine what an essential activity is. If they should decide that graduate studies are essential, deferments may be granted." This statement is incorrect. Likewise other publications in Georgia printed a similar incorrect statement.

The Selective Service Regulations provide for the deferment of any registrant who is satisfactorily pursuing a course of graduate study in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, osteopathy or optometry, or in such other subjects necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety, or interest as are identified by the Director of Selective Service upon the advice of the National Security Council.

The door to deferments for graduate study in fields other than medicine, etc., is not entirely closed for the future since the Secretaries of Defense, Labor, Commerce, and Health, Education and Welfare, will maintain a continuing surveillance over the nation's manpower and educational needs to identify any area of graduate study that may warrant qualifying for deferment in the national interest. When any such field is so identified, the National Security Council will be notified so that it may consider the need and advise the Director of the Selective Service System accordingly.

Any registrant may have been deferred if he was in his second or subsequent year of post-baccalaureate study without interruption on October 1, 1967, and his school certified that he was satisfactorily pursuing a full-time course of instruction leading to his degree. Such a registrant would not have been deferred for a course of study leading to a master's degree or the equivalent for more than one year or, for a course of study leading to a doctoral or professional (law, pharmacy, chiropractic, chiropody) degree or the equivalent for more than a total of five years, inclusive of the years already used in graduate study. Any registrant enrolled for his first year of post-baccalaureate study in a graduate school or a professional school on October 1, 1967, may have been deferred for one academic year only, or until he ceases to satisfactorily pursue a full-time course of instruction, whichever is the earlier.

With respect to Occupational Deferments, the National Security Council advised that the lists of essential activities and critical occupations should be suspended and that the Secretaries of Defense, Labor, and Commerce should maintain a continuing surveillance over the Nation's manpower needs and identify any particular occupation or skill that may warrant qualifying for deferment on a uniform national basis. When any such occupation or skill is so identified, the Council will be notified so that it may consider the need and advise the Director of the Selective Service System accordingly.

The suspension of such lists leaves each local Selective Service board with discretion to grant, in individual cases, occupational deferments based on a showing of essential community need.

According to provisions of a will filed in DeKalb County, a prize of $500 will be offered this spring to the freshman at any of the units of the University System of Georgia who writes the best essay on the following subject:

We Georgians are often our own worst enemies when we intentionally use colloquialisms in preference to standard English.

Maddox Visits College To Dedicate Bridge

By Ima Storey

Governor Lester Maddox has been told to come to the christening of VSC's new transoceanic bridge between the shores of the new "Getchosome Culture Building" and the Wood's Parking Lot.

The award winning, distinguished members of the Canopy staff will be on hand to catch the remains of the moonshine jug with which the Governor will christen the arched edifice (we regret to see so much refreshment go to waste.)

The meritorious bridge is located in a very scenic location over the lack adaisical sewage canal.

The Canopy regrets to announce that there will be no fishing, diving, swimming, or ice skating allowed near the bridge.

The more modern cement slab has replaced the outmoded, rustic wooden bridge which previously occupied the site.

The style of the expansion is in keeping with the Spanish type architecture which devours the campus.

VSC is very lucky to get such an honored guest as Governor Maddox at such a wet function, when he advocates a dry state.

teen. Papers will be judged by a committee of English teachers from the high schools of the Atlanta area.

This essay contest was won by VSC freshman Leon Wilson of Waycross in 1961.

All students interested in participating in the essay contest should come by the English Department for information concerning mechanics of the paper.

Papers should be brought to the English Department no later than April 10.

"Kiss" As A Hit

By Mimi

There's nothing like a thumping good musical to make you forget that finals are just around the corner. This one does just that. Built around Cole Porter's toe-tapping music and the Spewacks' play within a play, this excellent production was also good clean fun for performers and audience alike. Who isn't interested in who wears the pants in any marriage?

With such a theme enhanced by music, singing, and comedy this production could not fail to be a hit. The orchestra lent the aura of a big Broadway show. Mr. Campbell has done especially well with this group in a comparative short time. The music between the scenes was the intergrating factor for the whole show. The soloist warmed to the audience and the music as the show progressed, growing more confident as they sang. Mr. Robinson's magic touch was quite evident as the singers wove their music into the plot with professional know-how.

To fit a musical onto our small stage was quite a trick. Mr. Boatwright succeeded beautifully here. The production and technical crews did an outstanding job. The prospective portrayed on the flats was unusually effective.

With such a big cast it is difficult to point out all the many high spots deserving mention. Particularly moving was the duet - "Wunderbar" by Karen Towler (Kate) and Ed Green (Petruccio) Larry Long's "Toe Darn Hot" was another one made even better by Sherron McDaniel's solo dance. However, most of the audience left humming, "Brush Up Your Shakespeare." Me thinks the Bard himself would have loved it!

SGEA Elects Senior New State President

By Kathy Worthington

Martha Steedley, senior from Homerville, Georgia, served as President of the Student Georgia Education Association in Atlanta on February 16 and 17.

Elected last year in Atlanta, she is the first Valdosta State College student to hold a state office in SGEA. Martha explained that last year Dr. John McGuire, advisor for the local SGEA chapter, sent her name in as a candidate for president-elect. After a vigorous campaign she was elected. In order to qualify, it was necessary for her to have held a local office and have a C plus average.

"When I found out that I had been elected, I felt very honored and delighted," Martha stated. "My job as President is to communicate with the SGEA Chapters at the different colleges and to send out a monthly newsletter."

"My schedule was so packed during the convention that I didn't leave the hotel for three days. I was disappointed that I didn't have time to sightsee while in Atlanta, but I was too busy."

"During the convention I had to attend lectures and discussions, introduce speakers, and preside over the last General Assrmbly," Martha added. "It was quite hectic, but I had a lot of help from Dr. Pollard and Dr. Renfro as well as from the student representatives from VSC."

As for future plans, Martha hopes to teach in Atlanta. She is majoring in Elementary Education because "she loves little children and enjoys working with them. I would love to work with handicapped children but I feel it would be too heart-breaking to teach them all day."

Martha is a member of Phi Mu Sorority and enjoys sewing, and bowling. Last year she was vice-president of the local SGEA chapter here at VSC.

"This summer I attended the SNEA and NEA National conventions held in St. Paul-Minneapolis, Minnesota, which I enjoyed." On March 14-16 she will attend the GEA Convention and have the honor of leading the processional march at the President's Ball.

Coeds Qualify For Contest

The annual search is now underway to select and to honor the "National College Queen." Young women attending this school are eligible as candidates. The winner will receive more than $5,000 in prizes, including a trip to Europe and an automobile.

The 1968 National College Queen Pageant will be held in June, and this year Pageant officials will again award 50 free trips to New York City. One college girl from every State, including Alaska and Hawaii, will be flown to Manhattan to compete for high honors.

This pageant is the annual event which gives recognition to students for their scholastic ability. It is not a "beauty contest." Judging is based on academic accomplishments, on leadership qualities -- as well as poise and personality. The judges are seeking a typical American college girl.

For fourteen years the National College Queen Contest has been growing, until it has become a tradition at hundreds of colleges and universities. The National Finals will be held from June 8 thru June 18. The Pageant will include a coast-to-coast TV Special. All 50 candidates will be presented on this one-hour program, on the NBC Television Network, on Monday, June 17th.

All undergraduate girls, from freshman through and including seniors, are eligible to participate. A candidate may send in her own name. Or, she can be recommended. Classmates, friends, sororities, fraternities or campus club groups can nominate the girl of their choice -- by mailing her name to New York.

For full details -- and a free Entry Blank -- just write to: National College Queen Contest Committee, P.O. Box 935, New York City, N.Y. 10023.

Sorority Picks David Ratcliffe

The new "King of Diamonds" in the Alpha Delta Pi sorority is David Ratcliffe from Tifton. The dark haired, brown-eyed, six feet two inch sophomore states that his favorite actress is Angie Dickinson.

Secretary of Pi Kappa Phi, he is undecided about his career, but will probably major in science and "play soldier for awhile."

His position was announced at the Valentine Dance. Since then he has been teased by his friends, but refused to comment on what they said.

Among the numerous sports and hobbies he enjoys, baseball and tennis are ranked the highest.

Colleges Participate In Mock Primaries

An organizational meeting of Choice '68 will be held upstairs in the Student Union on March 5, at 7:30 p.m. Director Conoly Salyer has asked that all politically interested students attend. A mock presidential election is scheduled for April 24.

The collegiate presidential primary, involving nearly 2500 colleges and several million students, will be held simultaneously on campuses across the country. Leaders of student organizations at more than 200 major universities have already asked to participate in the vote. Announcement of CHOICE 68, National Collegiate Presidential Primary and an invitation to take part will go out to 2200 additional colleges.

CHOICE 68 is being run by a Board of Directors composed of eleven student leaders, each from a different region of the country. The Board is establishing guidelines for the Primary, designing the ballot and proving overall direction and leadership. Schools represented by the Board are the University of California at Berkeley, Kansas State Teachers College, University of Texas, Fordham University, University of Wisconsin, University of Utah, University of Tennessee, Michigan State University, Yale University, Georgia Institute of Technology, University of Oregon.

Administrative costs are being underwritten by TME magazine as a public service. Results of the Primary will be freely available to all media.

According to Robert G. Harris, Executive Director of CHOICE 68, formerly student body president of Michigan State University, "college men and women see the Primary as a meaningful political activity and a monumental opportunity to make themselves heard in an effective way."

Debaters Win At Spring Hill

During the weekend of February 22-24, the Valdosta State College debating team racked up seven wins out of the twelve rounds debated at Spring Hill College, in Mobile, Ala. The mighty Blue Jays persistently fought hard to beat teams from Emory University, University of South Alabama, Pearl River Junior College, Pensacola Junior College, South Georgia College, Tennessee Tech, and Chipola Junior College in Florida.

Four debaters -- Cullin Meredith, Steve Seyfried, Kenny Norton, and Elissa Landey -- were responsible for the valiant effort that brought the Blue Jays up and over the break-even point and in to the winning margin.

On the subject of income guaranteed by the Federal government, Meredith Seyfried took the affirmative stand. They proposed a guaranteed income plan because there are thirty-two million poor people in the United States today. On the other hand, Norton and Landey took the negative stand, defending the status quo's welfare and poverty alleviation measures and maintaining there is no need for a guaranteed income.

Dr. Helen Thornton, debate coach, was pleased with the team's performance and is planning to send more debaters to a tournament at Clemson the last weekend in March. Other tournaments might be on the agenda for this year, but Dr. Thornton is trying to see one up definitely for next year. This tournament to be held at Valdosta State is tentatively being planned for fall quarter 1968.

Regents Approve Men's Dormitory

A 300-bed man's residence hall for Valdosta State College was approved by the Board of Regents at their monthly meeting Feb. 14 in Atlanta, according to VSC President S. Walter Martin.

The more than $1 million structure will be located on the North Patterson Street side of the Main Campus, in the vicinity of Brown and Lowndes residence halls. The residence hall is expected to be three stories.

Dr. Martin said Thompson and Sanders Architects of Valdosta was named to develop the new building, and preliminary discussions and planning is underway between the firm and VSC Dean of Students George Young and Comptroller Shealy McCoy. It is hoped the building may be ready for occupancy in 1969.

Approval of this new 300-bed hall, Dr. Martin said, brings construction of residence space to 1,000-beds, either under construction or in various planning stages. A three-story 200-bed hall for women is underway at the north end of the campus on Georgia Avenue; work on a five-story, 500-bed hall for women is to begin in March or April. When completed, these halls will bring some relief to the dire on-campus housing needs of the College, but another 1,000-beds will be requested in the coming years, Dr. Martin added.

Rebels "Freeze" Way Into Win Over Tampa

The Valdosta State College Rebels defeated the University of Tampa Spartans in a thrilling 57-56 contest played here February 27.

Before five minutes of the game had passed, Bryan Phillips had scored six points. But Tampa came to life and seemed to be gaining momentum as they led 20-14 with nine minutes left to play in the first half.

Not to be denied, the Rebels responded with a surge that brought them within one point of the Spartans with one minute to go. Robert McKenny popped one in with seconds to go to put the Rebels into the dressing room with a 31-29 lead. Bryan Phillips ended his first half scoring spree with 18 points. Other point men were McKenny (7), Trinnell (4), and Terry with 2. The Rebels kept their lead through most of the second half until, with eight minutes to go, the Spartans moved ahead 46-45. The score changed hands once more and with less than five minutes to play, the two teams were tied 55 all.

Colson Attends Coaches Clinic

Valdosta State College Head Basketball Coach Gary W. Colson will participate in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Basketball Coaches Clinic, March 11-14, at the Municipal Auditorium, Kansas City, Mo., according to an announcement.

Coach Colson will speak to the group Tuesday, March 12, at 4:15 p.m. His subject will be "The Valdosta Wheel."

Others participating in the four-day clinic are Jack Ramsay, general manager of the Philadelphia 76's; Ralph Nolan, head coach, St. Benedict's College; Bill Frear, head coach, Ottawa University, Ottawa, Kansas; and Marlowe "Red" Severson, head coach, St. Cloud State College.

Coach Colson, 33, was named "Coach of the Year" in District 25 of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. This marks the second consecutive year and the third time Coach Colson has won the award.

A native of Logansport, Ind., Coach Colson is in his tenth season as head basketball coach at VSC.

Colson's teams have won 164 games while losing only 62 in his nine years at Valdosta State.

Presently, Colson's Rebels rank number one in both the G.I.A.C. and in the 25th District of the N.A.I.A.

Never Become Disillusioned - Just Don't Trust Your Eyes

Your eyes, which psychologists say you depend on for 90 per cent of your knowledge of the world, are a pair of practical jokers!

You may be familiar with some of their tricks (called optical illusions)--the stick in water which appears bent...the tilted minaret which looks straight up and down...the spinning disc which appears to stand still. But you may not be aware that these optical illusions as well as others have been used by psychologists to probe the secrets of our minds.

One of the curiosities about optical illusions is that Zulus, the theory goes, grow up in a world of huts where the right angles and straight lines of Western perspectives simply don't exist. And perspective--which makes closer objects appear larger than distant ones--is apparently the basis for some illusions. A Zulu looking at the minarets on the Taj Mahal, for instance, would be aware of the tilt, not of the straight - up - and - down illusion others see. To get this effect yourself, without sojourning to India, take a bottle of Taji perfume, which has a top shaped like a minaret, and experiment with viewing it on a table top above your line of vision.

R. L. Gregory, a psychologist at Cambridge University, in England, has classified several different types of optical illusions. Some are not based on a distortion of vision at all. The stick apparently bent in water appears so because refraction bends light rays--which the eye properly observes.

Much harder to explain are drawings and figures which seem to affect vision so that they appear curved when they are straight, or longer than they actually are. An example of this kind of illusion is an arrow which appears longer than a second arrow, because it's attached to outgoing lines.

The "empathy theory" says that these shifts may really occur in the mind which feels pushed or pulled by the direction of the arrows.

Another type of illusion -- both physical and psychological--that takes advantage of empathy is being created by many women who use Taji, a perfume by Shulton. When you wear Taji, a blend of fragrant oils from India and the Middle East, the scent may "pull" his mind toward the mysterious Orient.

Another illusion is the "impossible object" -- the half-completed house or building in which parts fit together in an impossible way. More in the realm of the psychological is the illusion you see through a recognition of subject matter --such as the vase which becomes two profiles facing each other.

Psychologist Adelbert Ames has produced a life-size optical illusion by constructing a room where all the objects placed in it look the wrong size. But to see this may depend on our "knowing" that a man is bigger than a child regardless of how far away or how near to us the child is standing; hence this is a psychological, rather than visual illusion.

What do these illusions tell psychologists about our understanding of the world through vision?

W. F. Dixon, a psychologist at University College, London, theorizes that the eye really doesn't work like a camera at all, nor does it function as an accurate measuring stick.

The process by which the eye receives information is more like that of an artist at the police station who draws a face he has never seen from descriptions by witnesses. The Things aren't always what they seem. For example, the minarets on the Taj Mahal look straight, but are tilted slightly. One of these "tilted" minarets adorns the bottles of Taji Perfume from Shulton. It's funny, but the height of this hat and the width of its brim are the same. The picture frame, which looks wavy, is perfectly straight. The areas of the two middle circles are equal, and the triangle in the last figure isn't off center at all -- it just appears to be.

drawing he produces is not that of an actual photograph -- but there is still a point-for-point likeness within the whole concept of a human face.

Duncan Rides Honda Even During Storms

Dr. Donald Lee Duncan, head of the mathematics department as VSC, leads an unusual extra curricular life. Owner of a couple of Honda Trail 90 motorcycles, he uses them to go mountain climbing with other couples. Bad weather does not daunt out plans," he said. "we climbed Blood Mountain in the Appalachians during a rain storm, which resulted in the worse flood North Georgia has ever seen. We rode on our Hondas while the State Patrol closed the roads."

Born in Flat River, Missouri, Dr. Duncan has developed writing talent. "I have had engineering papers published internally in the Atomic Energy Commission network," he added. He also has published outside literary work under various pen names.

Another of his hobbies is photography; he maintains a darkroom and equipment. Electronic devices have been built by him and he has constructed high-fidelity sound equipment.

Mr. Duncan received his Ph. D. in Mathematics at the University of Florida in 1962, with specialization in analysis and applications.

He enjoys such sports as tennis and swimming, and "has done some flying." He likes to draw, paint, and make signs.

Departments Announce Winter Speech Forum

Valdosta State College's Department of Speech and Drama will hold the Winter Quarter Speech Forum on Wednesday, March 6, 1968 at 7:00 p.m. in the Pound Hall Auditorium.

The purpose of the forum is to provide, within a carefully prescribed contest situation, opportunities for students to participate as listeners and speakers.

The Valdosta State College Speech Forum is held three times a year near the end of each quarter. The awards are made to recognize the most proficient speaker who, in the opinion of the judges, most nearly represents the high standards of speech-research, organization, preparation, and delivery. The finalists, having been selected from a preliminary round, present their speeches at the Speech Forum.

An invitation is extended to any student enrolled at V.S.C. this quarter, who wishes to participate in the Speech Forum. In addition, students may be chosen by their instructors in the basic speech course (Speech 105) at V.S.C. The Speech Forum is open to everyone, but all students from the basic speech courses are expected to attend.

Gary Colson Again Earns Coach Of Year Distinction

Gary M. Colson, 25, head basketball coach at Valdosta State College, has been named "Coach of the Year" in District 25 of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. This marks the second consecutive year and the third time that Coach Colson has won the award.

District 25 included several college teams from throughout Georgia and Florida.

A native of Lugonesport, Florida, Coach Colson is in his third season as head basketball coach at VSC.

Colson's teams have won 212 games while losing only 82 in his four years at Valdosta State.

Previously, Colson's Rebels won national titles in both the N.I.A.A. and in the 25 District of the N.I.A.A. The titles are 2-2 for the season and 2-1 in the conference.

The titles are also considered great ones from their own N.I.A.A. title in eight years and their third consecutive conference title.

Coach Colson coached two years at David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tenn., under Charles Murray before coming to VSC in 1965. Before that time, he had won the N.I.A.A. title out of the last three years.

Now, Colson has been named Coach of the Year in the conference six times.

In 1965, Colson received the N.I.A.A. Area 18 Coach of the Year honor, and in 1967 he was named the outstanding college coach by the Atlanta Journal Club.

Last year, the Rebels made the inaugural trip to Kansas City to participate in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics. Twenty-one of the nation's most outstanding college teams participated in the awards, and the Rebels were named 28th in the nation in the west of the nation.

Three Valdosta State College Rebels have been named to the N.I.A.A. Georgia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference team, according to Gary M. Colson, head basketball coach at VSC.

The stars are Courtney Don Parker, of Gary, Indiana, and Furmanville Bryan Phillips, of Marietta, Ga., and Mike Terry, of Marietta, Indiana.

Probe Reveals Varied Interests Of VSC Basketball Players

Our first interview with any team players was with Bob Langhiser, 24, a senior from Union Lake State College (Fla.), who is 6'7" tall, weighs 200 pounds, and has a year of experience. He has three brothers and two sisters, all of whom are interested. Bob was born in 1943 and his day of experience came in January 1967 when he married Mike Terry, Valdosta State's basketball coach.

When asked about his high school days, he said that he never played basketball, baseball, or football.

"Lang" (Bob's nickname) has been playing tennis with some regularity this season, however, he appears to be recovering from tennis. We asked Bob about the team's winning season this year. He replied that it was due to "good team effort."

"Lang" says "Star Trek" is his favorite television show. His ambition is to teach and coach.

We asked Bob how he happened to learn about VSC. He said that his high school coach and Coach Colson had gone to school together, and that he had learned about VSC through these coaches. When asked about how he liked the South he replied, "The people are very friendly and like the weather."

When asked how he liked this part of the U.S., he replied, "I like the friendly people and the weather."

Turning to basketball, we asked Bob about this year's VSC team and his reaction to its playing season. He said there was a lot of learning and that he thought we had a good defense which was a reflection of team spirit. He also said he had the Rebels were a fine ball club, and that he had a "sneaky" few ball players.

Our next interview was with sophomore John Trimmell who was coming from the State State. He was born and raised around Hape, Indiana. His sister Sherry, who is a cheerleader at the local high school, John wishes to be a high school coach. In present, John is majoring in both education. He is a member of Delta Chi.

Paul O'Brien, Marty Lehman, Jack Hart, Don

Rebels Off The Court

Rebels are there again, basketball fans, sports enthusiasts, and social admirers of the players on the VSC basketball team. In this issue our focus is on the Rebels' progress in standing in the spotlight. We want you to become better acquainted with each one of them and give them the backing support, and encouragement they deserve.

The first player interviewed was big Jack Hart, Jack stands 6'7" tall and weighs 225 pounds, and is a junior from Statesville, Georgia. He is an American major and plans to teach chemistry or to coach football and basketball. The "gray-headed man" as he is sometimes called, said that his ideal girl was "tall (5'7" or 7'7") and skinny or not fat, and one who will talk, but not talk too loud."

When asked what his interests were other than basketball, Jack answered, "During season or winter — I don't know." He likes to stand around the cheerleaders during his spare time. "Student Representative" is his favorite U.S. program and John likes his favorite when.

Next, Paul O'Brien from Fort Pierce, Florida was interviewed. He is a sophomore, standing 6'7" and weighing 160 pounds. Paul said that he likes to play, play pool, and tennis, and his ideal girl would be 5'7" tall, usually have a good personality, and speak his interest in basketball. He wishes that we have spent time with this girl before Paul said, "I've had fun with the basketball girls here this year, and I think it's due to the good work of the cheerleaders."

Our third player is Marty Lehman, a 5'9" freshman from Griffin, Georgia. Marty has been in Georgia a year. Reporting to us, he might go into advertising or advertising. He has an interest in photography, drawing, and just hanging in there.

Commenting on marriage, Marty said, "I don't like marriage, as I don't want to get married. I'm not ready for that kind of responsibility yet." He likes tall girls that are interested in athletics, practice average intelligence, and he prefers blonde, although he's not really particular. Just from his first experience he "has had" a high school girl in his class. He said that he had a "girl of school spirit." "The cheerleaders work their heads off and the people don't support the team like they should."

Summarizing the team, we learned that he is a freshman from Albany, Georgia. He is 5'7" tall and is in contact with the cheerleaders. He practices psychology. That's because he is doing well, and working on a 3.00 track. He describes U.S. programs in the "Wind, Water, Wood," and his favorite when is "The Football."

Commenting on his ideal girl, Don said "A girl with a good sense of humor, nice going, good personality, and better than her looks."

Don got this — in front of this year he said that he'd like to be a teacher from Albany, Georgia or elsewhere. He's interested in going to school in the 25 District. He's interested in practicing and would like to be a coach. He's interested in practicing and would like to be a coach. He's interested in practicing and would like to be a coach.

When asked about his high school days, Mike said he had participated in basketball, baseball, track, and swimming. In summarizing the

Our next interview took place with sophomore Mike Terry. He is from Marietta, Indiana. Mike stands 6'7" tall, is a senior and is majoring in Education Administration with emphasis on management. Mike was born in Marietta, Ga. He is a "Cradled Rebel" who he said he was just a high school senior. When he was eight, his family moved to Marietta. Mike is very interested in collecting antique items, furniture, sporting guitars, and sports. He studied upon them back in 1965, he said that he had a "sneaky" few ball players and that he had a "sneaky" few ball players.

When asked about his high school days, Mike said he had participated in basketball, baseball, track, and swimming. In summarizing the John also commented on the friendly people and nice weather in this part of the country. John said he had played basketball, baseball, and ran track in high school. He said that if he was ever opportunities before a game, he would be sure to be there. He said he would be sure to be there for the game.

Pannkoke Donates Thousands Of Books To Powell Library

The personal library of O.H. Pannkoke, D.D., has been given to Valdosta State College, according to an announcement made by S. Walter Martin, VSC president.

The gift, containing approximately 2,000 volumes, was donated to VSC by the Quitman, Ga. resident, a nationally known creative pioneer in the field of Lutheran unity, higher education, stewardship, public relations and theology.

"Dr. Pannkoke's library contains more than 2,000 volumes and periodicals in many fields," President Martin said. "The administration, faculty, and students of Valdosta State College were very grateful to this very fine friend of the institution for his interest in helping to build the Richard Holmes Powell Library, the very heart of our academic program," he said.

"Dr. Pannkoke's gift comes as a result of efforts of the Valdosta State College Foundation through its Operation Book Drive movement, which started last year, and brought in more than 2,000 volumes to the library. Dr. Pannkoke read of Operation Book Drive and offered his library to assist in efforts of friends of the institution to continue the development of our College Library," the President said.

Operation Book Drive continues through another year. Friends of education are urged to make their contributions of volumes or cash to buy books to the VSC Foundation. R. W. Adams, a Valdosta president of the logued, and appropriate bookplates commemorating the gift will be placed in each volume. As soon as this process is complete, the books will go on the shelves for use by VSC students.

Dr. Pannkoke has been nationally known as a Lutheran pioneer and statesman in college education, in the movement toward Lutheran Unity, in public relations and in systematic stewardship of the Lutheran Church.

From 1917 until his retirement in 1960, he challenged and inspired Lutherans to adjust their thinking to the realities of the twentieth century.

Among movements to which he has given vigorous leadership were Lutheran observance of the 400th Anniversary of the Reformation in 1917, the Lutheran Bureau, the National Lutheran Commission for Soldiers and Sailors Welfare, the National Lutheran Council, development programs for Lutheran colleges and seminaries, and the Lutheran Hospitals and Homes Society.

Throughout his life, he has been especially devoted to the principles of Lutheran cooperation and unity. Opposing the pre-occupation with formalized doctrine which characterized many of the immigrant Lutheran groups, he helped Lutherans to see the advantages of practical cooperation to meet the challenges of the changing world.

Between 1920 and 1945, he played an important part in the development of the following Lutheran colleges: Newberry College, Lenoir Rhyne College, Roanoke College, Wagner College, Upsala College, Wittenberg University, Augustana College (Rock Island, Illinois), Augustana College (Sioux Falls, S.D.), Capital University, Bethany College, St. Olaf College, Concordia College (Moorhead, Minnesota), Luther College, Pacific Lutheran College, Suomi College, and Valparaiso University.

Most of the Lutheran synods of America have called upon him at one time or another to direct educational financial programs.

In the field of theology, Dr. Pannkoke published several significant studies, including A Living Lutheran Faith and A Living Lutheran Theology.

For several years he edited the magazine Health for the Rural West, which received plaudits for its application of modern scientific medical programs to rural society and its problems.

His most recent publication was A Great Church Finds Itself: The Lutheran Churches Between the Wars, a personalized study of the ways in which the Lutherans of America reacted and responded to the challenge of changing twentieth century society.

His last official position was Director of Research Programs and Public Relations of the Lutheran Hospitals and Homes Society. Since his retirement in 1960, he has lived in Quitman.

Announcement

A book exchange will be held Monday, March 4 through Friday, March 8 from 1:00 to 5:00 in the SGA office (upstairs College Union).

Valdosta State Invites Presidential Contenders

Political hopefuls Eugene McCarthy, Ronald Reagan, George Romney, George Wallace and Robert Kennedy have been invited to the Valdosta State College campus.

VSC is among approximately 1,500 colleges and universities throughout the country that is participating in Choice 68 -- a national campaign financed by Times, Inc., to measure pre-presidential election results on college campuses, and to measure student response to the campus primary.

Choice 68 will give students throughout the country chances to post straw votes to determine who is the leading political candidate for the presidency this election year.

R. Conley Salyer, of Lexington, Ky., senior pre-law student at VSC, is serving as the Choice 68 coordinator at the College. Mr. Salyer accepted the position at the request of VSC Student Association President Bill Pannell, of Cordele.

"Eugene McCarthy, Ronald Reagan, George Romney, George Wallace and Robert Kennedy have been invited to speak at our campus during the upcoming months. We have written follow-up letters to each of them stating that it would be possible to coordinate their visits here with speaking engagements at Florida State University, Jacksonville University and the University of Florida. Of course, we hope that this will produce some favorable results," Mr. Salyer remarked.

Schedule Lists Course Finals

Winter finals will begin March 11 and continue through March 14. There are four departmental examinations. Every student in each of these courses regardless of instructor, will have the same examination. The four departmental exams are Chemistry 102, English 101, English 106, and Physical Science 110.

No student may take more than two examinations in one day. If a student has one departmental examination and two other examinations scheduled in the same day, he must request the instructor of another course to give him a final examination on a later day. Departmental examinations may not be deferred. All other students having more than two examinations will request the instructor (s) examining two sections at the same time to give them final exams at a later time.

The final exam schedule is listed below.

Campus Police Initiates Drive For Clean-Up

Since February 1, when the Security Patrol was charged with the upkeep and appearance of Valdosta State College, they have supervised the thirty-six maids and janitors who compose the sanitation department. "These responsibilities were added because we are here 24 hours a day," Colonel Hunnicutt, head of the Security Patrol, explained.

Cleaning the gymnasium, Student Union, library, and academic buildings, Colonel Hunnicutt requested the assistance of the students in this campaign in utilizing the waste receptacles and ash trays. He also expressed his appreciation for their past co-operation.

Their main duties are to protect the students in the dormitories, to secure school property, and to regulate the traffic, thus keeping the roads open and safe for pedestrians. Started January 3, 1966, the department has increased from one to seven members, who have two-way radios as standard equipment and this year received new uniforms.

The two supervisors, Colonel Hunnicutt and Mr. Bray, alternate sixteen hour and eight hour shifts every day. The busiest traffic occurs between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m., during which time the most tickets are given. "During the last year, we have had more traffic, but less violations," he stated. Usually 150 traffic tickets a month are given, but only 75 students a quarter pay fines.

Minor duties entail taking ill students to the infirmary after curfew, and issuing and repairing I.D. cards.

Now we can do something for the figure as well as the face!!! For the Figure You Should Have - For the Comfort You Need Come in and try on a Pennyrich bra. Here is what it will do for you - - - - -

It ENHANCES the appearance of the small bust, without padding, by bringing forward; by lifting - by relocating that which has been pushed back and down - away from its normal position. Therefore - you have a more glamorous contour.

Remember, it's all you in a Pennyrich Bra!

Maintain Your Present Beauty! The Pennyrich bra lifts, supports and helps prevent a drooping contour - therefore, it helps you to maintain your glamorous figure because of the magnificent - magical support of the bandeau under the bust!

The Pennyrich bra lifts and positions the full figure in a more beautifully proportioned contour as no other bra can do - because of the engineered support of the deeper Banderin.

Most important - due to the shelf-like support under the bust by the Magical bandeau - there is no pull on the shoulders or deep painful grooves. You will say - as so many others have: "I can't even feel I have a bra on!"
