Pine Cone Staff Adds Four Members

With four new appointments to the staff, a snapshot contest inaugurated and class pictures running to schedule, editor Clara Mae Sasser expressed optimism concerning the progress of the Pine Cone work today. Staff appointments include C. J. Morris, assistant editor; Evelyn Ogletree, assistant photograph editor; Mary Du Bois, assistant activities editor and Eileen Hyland, assistant literary editor.

In speaking of the Snap Shot contest now being held, Miss Sasser stated that the object was to obtain a variety of pictures to be used in the annual, as well as to include pictures that meet the approval of the students. "Angle shots are particullarly good," she explained," because the give variety and are much more artistic than the usual kind."

Scholarship To Determine SGA Privileges

Correlating academic standing with dormitory privileges, Student Government officials are giving recognition to effort and ability on the part of the individual student. In adopting this system, officials expressed the hope that this would instill in the student a desire to do better academically.

Additional privileges have been granted to students having Dean's List standing, the extent of the privileges varying with the various classes. Average students keep the privileges now in force, while fewer privileges are allowed to those having unsatisfactory standing, or failure.

"We hope that this is a step," said Mary Hudson, S. G. A. president, "toward creative student government. Students have worked out and accepted this system. Students themselves recognize this as being the best and only system. Connecting privileges with scholastic standing—the first step made by S. G. A. in this direction."

Sunday Tea Will Honor Doctor Smart

Under the joint sponsorship of the English and French Clubs, a tea will be given in the Rotunda Sunday afternoon. It is scheduled to follow immediately the Music Appreciation Hour which is being conducted this year by Mr. Herbert Kraft of the Music Department.

Guest of honor will be Dr. W. A. Smart of Emory University, who will be on campus as principal speaker in the Religious Emphasis Week exercises. Margaret Abernathy and Helen Joiner, presidents of the English and French Clubs will preside at the tea table. Members of each club will assist with the serving.

Y Brings Smart To Campus For Lecture Series

Dr. W. A. Smart of the Theological School of Emory University will be on campus November 20 and 21 as guest of the Y. W. C. A. for Religious Emphasis Week

On Sunday, Dr. Smart will speak at the church hour, 11:00-12:00 in the auditorium. In the afternoon from 3:00-4:00. Dr. Smart will speak in the rotunda and in the evening again in the auditorium from 7:30 - 8:30.

Dr. Smart will give individual conference periods on Monday morning to those seeking them. Elizabeth Garbutt, Y president, will arrange these conferences at a time convenient for those who wish them. On Monday evening, Dr. Smart will make his last speech.

The themes of his talks will consist of ideas suggested by students among which are Sane Rather than Emontional Religion and Social Aspects of Christianity.

Miss Garbutt added that through the student's expression of enthusiasm for Dr. Smart, he was being brought back for the third consecutive year.

The aim of Religious Emphasis Week is to bring the students to rethink their philosophy of religion. With a person of Dr. Smart's wide variety of experiences in this type of work, the Y. W. C. A. feels that the campus it fortunate and hope that the students will take advantage of this opportunity.

World Affairs To Be Reviewed At Forum Monday

Topics to be discussed at the next open Forum of the I. R. C. are "Great Britain and the Effects of Peace with Honor" by Ora Kate Wisenbaker. "Italy and Germany, the Jewish Persecutors" will be given by Ann Parham. Josephine Graham will give "Result of Recent Elections in the U. S."

"The Fortnightly Review", a bimonthly publication has been received by the club from the Carnegie Endowment Fund. The yearly allotment of books has also been received by the club.

A run-over election will be necessary to determine whether the secretary of the club will be Penelope Tullis or Marjorie Combs.

Sponsored by the Pine Cone, a snap shot contest will be held on campus beginning November 14 and continuing through December 14. Any student wishing to enter the contest, is requested by editor Clara Mae Sasser to start their photographing now.

Three prizes will be awarded for the best pictures submitted. Action and candid shots, representing life on the campus are the type desired. The pictures must be taken on campus by college students.

Howard Will Lead Frosh To Hat Victory

Williams Is Elected Club President

Meeting on Wednesday evening in the Administration Building, the Sociology and Social Service majors organized a departmental club and elected officers. Mary Virginia Williams was named president with other offices to be filled by Frances Middleton as vice-president and Essie Skinner, secretary-treasurer.

A committee of five was appointed by the president to draw up a constitution and bylaws. This group, headed by Laura Duncan includes Mary Du Bois, Ruth Whisonant, Ruby Jean Rogers and Mary Helen Pullen.

Faculty advisors for the group are Dr. Joseph Durrenburger and Dr. Eleanor Nims Brink.

The object of the club is to become acquainted with various branches of Social Sciences and to study the vocational opportunities open to persons with training in the Social subjects.

Those admitted to membership were: Dorothy Brown, Emily Cumming, Dorothy Dalton, Mary Du Bois, Laura Duncan, Loulse Howell, Frances Hug, Reba Mangham, Frances Middleton. Mary Helen Pullen, Ruby Jean Rogers, Essie Skinner, Linda Summer, Ruth Whisonant, Mary Virginia Williams and Gordon Williford.

Don't Miss

... the Travelogue, sponsored by the Seniors this evening in the auditorium at 7:30 o'clock. Admission is 5c.

"We're going to find that hat, Saturday," said May Howard. newly elected Freshman president, when interviewed about the plans for the class for the year. "At a meeting during the week, we divided up into groups and are going to cover the campus 'til we find it."

"The class is wonderfully cooperative," she continued, 'And I just know we're going to do things. Everybody came to the meeting and everybody seemed to be ready to get out and hunt."

The president was most enthusiastic about activities for the year, saying that the class was going to give "a wonderful dance for the Juniors." She admitted that the most pressing problem to date however, was the Hat Contest, and that definite plans in other directions would have to wait until after November 19.

Attended Savannah High

May Howard was elected president of the freshman class in the final election held Monday, November 14. May attended Savannah High School where she graduated, and was out standing among the students.

She was a member of the swimming and tennis teams and of the dramatic club. In the Who's Who poll of her graduating class she was elected most popular, best all round and most athletic girl. She was also president of the Quis Qui Sorority. The newly elected president is a pledge of the Phi Lambda division of the Sports Club and a member of the swimming team.

Mary Elizabeth McLin, Albany; Maxwell Williams, Cordele and Eleanor Turnbull, Moultrie were also nominees for the office. The election held Friday, November 11, resulted in no one candidate getting a majority of the votes. The run off election on Monday was held between May Howard and Eleanor Turnbull, as the candidates having the highest number of votes.

Odum Sets Play - Attendance Record On New York Trip

— By Geraldine Bowen —

Agents, plays, dinners, old friends, art exhibits and food demonstrations adequately filled Mrs. John B. Odum's visit to New York.

Mrs. Odum said that in between seeing booking agents for the Artist Series programs, she attended five plays. She saw the youthful Broadway prodigy Orson Wells, Director of the Mercury Theatre, in Dante's Death.

Robert Morley presented one of the most brilliant characterizations she had ever seen in the play, Oscar Wilde. Our Town with Frank Craven and Abe Lincoln in Illinois with Raymond Massey were also included on her list. Mrs. Odum stated that the cracks made at government were the most entertaining and amusing features of Knickerbocker Holiday with Walter Huston.

Besides seeing five plays, the versitile English professor visited two art exhibits. One was the famed "Cloisters" given to the Metropolitan Mueseum of Art by the Rockerfellers. The Cloisters are medieval European chapels and buildings which have been transplanted to America.

Having to decide between hearing Dorothy Thompson and Thomas Mann speak on international affairs and seeing the 1938 Annual Exhibit of Contemporary American Painting, Mrs. Odum chose to see the art exhibit. She stated that abstraction was the chief characteristic of the paintings.

Dropping in at Macy's during one of her spare moments, Mrs. Odum saw many things of interest. Noteworthy among the exhibits were food demonstrations and examples of needlepoint.

Before returning to Valdosta, Mr. and Mrs. Odum dined at the Hofbrau House in New York with old college friends. Two years ago they were guests at the Hofbrau House in Munich.

Thanksgiving -

... not that of our pilgrim forebearers, but that of the youth of the nation which they founded. Ours is not the heritage of hard winters in a bleak, unfriendly land, thankful at last for a good harvest and Indian friends, but to these first settlers are we indebted for those things which are ours today.

Counting our blessings-peace in a world plunged in war; thanks for the arts of peace.

Thanks for the knowledge that is ours-the cumulative Tearning of centuries - the ancient scribes, the monks copying manuscripts, scholars, professors—the heritage of the great minds and works of the ages.

For friends, we give thanks; thanks for their constancy, their understanding.

Thanks for disappointments, for obstacles, taking away from the monotony of continual successes, making an adventure of ordinary experlences.

Book Week -

is upon us-it came before we realized it and before we can make very many more people conscious of the fact, it will have slipped a-Way.

Regardless of the fact that book week closes tomorrow, now seems as good a time as any to survey your reading habits. Indications are that the use of reference books has increased during recent years, while the use of fiction books is omen is worth considering,

Librarians credit curriculum changes for the rise in the dafly use of reserved books from 96 to 226 for the two preceeding years.

Present indications are that the up-trend will be continued during 1938-39.

Although there has been a slight drop in the daily circulation of non fiction this year, indications are that the reading habits of the students as a whole, are on a high level. Among the most popular books in the library at present are; With Malice Toward Some, Halsey; Blue Marigolds, Miller and Our Town by Wilder.

It is encouraging to realize that the library is being used for studying purposes. Nevertheless, with the continual addition of worthwhile fiction to the library, it seems that there should be some way for students to manage extra out-

Letters To The Editor -

Have you for just one short moment stopped to make a close analysis of the girls who help work their way through college by dining room work. If so, you will see many of the most desirable characteristics ever found in any girl. First we can say she is very ambitious, having an eager desire for advancement in this complex society of ours. She sees the things in life she wants and goes after it, however great the goa'l may be.

This brings out another trait, that of perseverance which is a great asset to anyone's character. There also is no limit to the courage she has, to push onward even when the odds seem against her on every turn in life. This intense desire for advancement may mean sacrifices both great and small. However, this means little to her if she is making progress toward her goal.

If you would only stop for a minute and analyze these girls you can see what I've said in the above paramore ways than one help.

Be more considerate of the girls and their feeling, after all they are human and to have feelings. They are not to be treated as a slave to jump like a frog every time you said hop! They do the best they can to serve and please you, yet for some reason this doesn't seem to be enough. Some of you speak to the girls in such a commanding manner it affects their personal feeling, making many more obstacles for them to overcome before reaching their goal. If then, instead of speaking in a haughty manner, ask her in a pleasant way the things you need. She would be more than glad to get them for you. Even a friendly "Thanks" helps her along her way.

Again I say stop, and reconsider, be nice and considerate of the girls and they will in turn be more obliging to you. This will bring more harmony and happiness to the campus than any other small bit you can do.

- A Student.

Here And There —

Well keeds, it's Book Week! From the looks of the library survey for this week, you've all stayed pretty close to the lighter side of life.-What with, "With Malice Toward Some" - (no cracks) —and, "You Can't Take It With You"-Then La Nicotine Highway seems to go over as big with you as it is with the would be intellectuals of "Our Town", But seriously now-whether youh've done it willingly or not, you're bound to have absorbed something of the general unrest about tthe good old Czechs and Papa Mussolini. Well the Library has Wiskemann's "Czechs and Germans" and Steiner's "Government in Fascist Italy" for you to be in the know. It's a bargain too-the first one throws in a bit about Hitler, for good measure. . . . But if you want a tip right from the heart, take a peek at Stuart Cloate's "The Turning Wheels", and Clyde Brion Davis' "The Anointed", the're worth it.

Now that that's over with, we'll get down to the chitter chat.-..-It's raining and Americus has a tight-rope walker for a citizen-Peter Lorre cherishes a horse-chestnut on accounta because he doesn't like rheumatism. -Here's a record- out of sixtysix pictures, only eleven had bath-tub scenes-nice going!

Miss Thompson —

I have just heard your plea for the Jews who are being persecuted by so-called civilized nations. It has moved me deeply to hear you, a woman of world-wide importance, voice of the thoughts of thousands of men and women throughout the country. I agree with you thor-oughly in that something must be done to help these unfortunate people.

What is to be done rests in a large extent to what the U.S. A. does. She is more or less of a peacemaker in such moves. It is only fitting that she should make the first move, because of the principles for which she avowed stands, freedom of race, religion, and speech.

I think that in whatever plan the U.S. can devise, the people will stand by to offer help and support.

It is unthinkable that in a civilization known to be the finest that the world has ever known such bigoted, narrow, and stupid measures should be inflicted on any race no matter what color, race, or creed.

Once before the United States went to war to deliver an oppressed race and now it is known that that race was never more down-trodden than these unfortunate Jews in the so-called empires led by Hitler and Mussolini.

It is high time that the awful truth about the merciless persecutions of the Jews by these dictators be brought home forcefully to the American people. It is also necessary that some plan be devised whereby these homeless and penniless Jews can be gradually assimilated by the democracies of the world. I would like to offer to you my heart-felt thanks and congratulations for the splendid speech made on the radio. I sincerely hope that it brings a large response.

Yours truly -

Ora Kate Wisenbaker.

. . to the editor some weeks ago, which we could not print, due to space limitations, made a plea for a wider range of social activities between faculty and students. The letter was written by a freshman before she had gained very much familiarity with the customs of the college.

In answer to those who wish to meet their professors on a social basis and know them "as personalities as well as instructors," we are glad to point out the way that this is accomplished on our campus. We share our college life with

During this quarter, various faculty members have been our guests at Sunday dinner. This is a particular occasion which faculty and students may share.

Faculty Are Sociable

There is always a good faculty representation at social functions. Who knows but that you might sit next to "dear teacher" at a musical, and laugh about Popeye over a cup of tea?

Faculty members chaperon our dances. You don't find them unapproachable. They are always gracious, glad to meet your date and to small talk if you sit down to give the stepped-ontoes a rest.

Today, the Sports Club is holding the first of this year's Faculty Teas, of which the first were given last spring. This offers an opportunity for participation in sports with professors who may have the same interests as you.

Don't think that we are throwing you at one another. Just because you happen to be members of the same community, is no reason why you have to associate. But, on the other hand, a spirit of friendship and companionship is a fine thing to create, and we are glad to point out the ways that this can be accomplished.

Stage Door Chosen By Club As Annual Play

On Tuesday evening, November 15, tht Sock and Buskin Club held its first program meeting of the year in the play-production room of the Administration Building.

Two one-act plays comprised the program. The first play was directed by Anna Richter, and the parts were played by Rachel Crittendon, Ruth Burroughs, and Elizabeth Allen. The second play was directed by Doris Harper, and those taking roles were Mildred Wilson, Martha Sue Griffin, and Marion Orr.

After the program a business discussion was held. One of the issues discussed was the play of the year which will be "Stage Try-outs will be held before Christmas and are open to any member of the Sock and Buskin Club. The stage version of "Stage Door" is not based on the same plot as the movie. Each year the club gives a play, which is their most important offering to the campus.

Sketching The Seniors

Fun to be around, interested in people, Mary Du Bois has light brown hair, green eyes, indented chin-is assistant activities editor of the Pine Cone this yearmember of Fine Arts Club-was member of "Y" Cabinet last year -Sports Club member for two years.

Mary is artistically inclined, loves to model clay-sketches likes to dance - hunts - sailboats fascinate her. Mary is always partial to people who are on wrong side of the fence, because she believes there are good qualities in every person, if they are brought out.

Daring-a teaser - Mary has always wanted to be chased by a policeman — played hookey lots in High School - she has definite and fundamental ideas about religion and believes in direct answer to prayer.

Mary wants to marry a farmer who plays golf, between harvest.

Her favorite colors are blue, white, and black - Mary has worn nail polish no more than five times in her life, but if she did wear it, she would choose the deep, deep red, which would not be symbolic.

Works up-town as a bookkeeper in the afternoons — adores rollercoasters — despises bridge, but goes for football, peanuts, and onions - Finds no interest in Charlie McCarthy - likes poems — thinks boys are more trustworthy than girls as friends, can't understand girls-

Mary is majoring in Social Science, and wants to work in that field after graduation. She would like to go to Williamsburg. Va. on the Senior trip, as it is near Baltimore. Usually against all accepted institutions - has kept a dairy but rather spasmodically. Mary loves to sleep and hates to study. Is slow and easy about everything — looks grand on rising in the morning, considered quite attractive.

Blonde, petite. Mary Jo Cook is optimistic—as a general rule likes everybody, but can take violent dislikes to some people. She is quiet, not subject to mel-

Learning how to dance-Mary Jo is also an ardent roller skater -A familiar sight skating with Anne Jolley in front of New Dorm. She looks like a little, tiny girl with her short dresses.

Calls herself fickle, Mary Jo says that a different boy appeals to her every week. She is attracted to novelty bracelets-collects white horses as a hobby - is wild about acroplanes. Her one ambition is to learn to fly, and flew this past summer to Cubainsists she is going to learn how so that she can fly around the world.

Hates boats, because on a deep seafishing trip became deathly seasick. Mary Joe is like a child about peppermint candy — eyes sparkle when smiling - likes to walk bareheaded in the rain buys hats, and hats, and hats, but doesn't like to wear them loves cold weather beset of all knits, and has lots of self-knitted sweaters. She doesn't care for diamonds, but white opals make a special appeal.

Played paper dolls more than anything else when a child dislikes football - favorite flowers are chrysantheums - much in favor of G. S. W. C. adopting a standard class ring — likes sport clothes in tweed.

Mary Jo is majoring in English, and finds Shakespeare to be the best of all. Prefers Ronald Coleman to all actors - plans to go to University of Georgia to take graduate work - adores kittens.
