Lassiter Speaks On Far Eastern Question

That Japan will not be able to absorb China, and that her present efforts are tending to develop a spirit of nationalism within the Chinese people, were opinions expressed by Dillard B. Lassiter, who spoke at GSWC Wednesday evening at an open meeting of the Valdosta chapter of the A.A.U.W.

Mr. Lassiter's talk covered a wide variety of topics relative to the present conditions in the Far East. He began by sketching the history of China's relations with England, Russia, Germany and America. He described America's trade being gradually cut down in Manchuria by the Japanese tariff laws. He spoke with the understanding of one who was present during the period in which Japan accomplished her aims.

Warder Discusses Spanish War

Relating her harrowing experiences as a world traveler, Miss Imogene Warder, American writer and lecturer, will speak in the auditorium Monday morning, March 3, at 10:30. Miss Warder will tell about the Spanish revolution as she observed it and the conditions in Spain today as compared with those of former times.

To gather material for lectures and writings, she went to Spain to make a study of homes, costumes, and condition. The revolution produced many unbelievable catastrophes which she witnessed, but due to very strict censorship have never been published in American newspapers. After losing all of her baggage.

Campus regulations, referring to dating privileges of freshmen and juniors were discussed, as well as regulations concerning the wearing of ankle socks to dinner.

It was requested that further regulations be made concerning the playing of the nickelodeon in the recreation hall, to avoid disturbing those who were studying.

To The Alumnae

Association, we dedicate this issue of the Campus Canopy. In so doing, we are glad of the opportunity to recognize in this group an organization vital to the life of the college.

In this issue we present to them the current happenings on campus, as well as ideas and plans for the future at GSWC.

Our activities house will soon be completed; excavations have been made for the new library building; the swimming pool has just been painted. In this background of changed surroundings, we present the activities of the college, as the alumnae knew them.

To the graduates of GSWC, we present a picture of the activities in which they participated. This is the college which they have helped and are still helping to grow by taking part in campus affairs as students, and by exhibiting an active interest in the college now. We hail the Alumnae Association as an outstanding college group.

All The Axes

have been ground. Obviously, everyone did not take advantage of the opportunity to speak their minds at the Student Government forum early this week.

Well, the chance was given them. Now is not the time to express dissatisfaction.

Nevertheless, one point seems to be troubling a number of the underclassmen. This point, a feeling of suppression, should be cleared up now, once and for all.

It is not the object of the Student Government Association to deprive any group of their rightful privileges. In the democracy which exists on our campus, every individual has rights of which no one would willingly deprive them.

Freshmen are not deprived of mentorship just because they are freshmen. It is done because their experience with Student Government has not been sufficient that they could fulfill such an office suitably. Upperclassmen, who have experienced the set-up which the freshmen think they want, are very definite in their assertions that such a system would not be advisable. Such an attitude as this should satisfy the freshmen.

No upperclassman has anything but the benefit of the whole group at heart. The fact that some of them will soon leave Student government behind them, does not lessen their desire for perfecting the system.

Courts held—
Privileges fled—
Hope's dead.
Lessons read,
Then bed,
For two weeks they are to the campus wed.

Carter was not in the best of health

With candy and flowers, Bob showed how he felt.

Their romance certainly is advancing along,

For Sunday he's bringing her a dog.

It isn't right to see "Flossie" moping

And we really are not joking.

That tooth-ache is getting her down;

What'd we do without Flossie around?

Monday for Poppell may have been a blue day

But it was "RED" on Sunday and Tuesday.

You should have seen Fryer's face,

When the court discussed her case.

She had better start being good
Or either start knocking on wood.

Anna and June weren't acting quite normal

For their true-lovers came to the formal.

Payne has Harry all to herself
For Lilly has put him "on the shelf."

Charlie is now on Lilly's horizon
And her two weeks is just

"plzen."
Who is it that keeps calling E. J.
It happens regularly every day.
Nice work, E. J.; what's your technique?
We would also like popularity to give us a peek.
Billy left an unjolly Jolly Monday of this week,
But we aren't kidding when we say Anne really weeped.
The "flower" of the Freshman class
Is getting around with quite a dash.
Hue keeps calling a certain "Daisy"
Careful, it's a crime to run a man crazy!
The day never rolls around
But what Will Spain visits the ground
Could it be loves she has for the mail man?
Martha Sue and Brooks are going strong
We all hope they won't hit bumps all along.
Mary Virginia is not the same
For, as you know, Marvin came.
On Thursday Ruth dates Bing, Joy dates L. A.
And then rolls around another day.
Joy dates Bing and Ruth L. A.
Don't ask me how it got that way!
Emma's just the luckiest of us all,
A bid and a visit to Florida and a telephone call.

Here And There

Mama! That man's here again. Yes, Jesse is back on the air waves. Jack Benny finished off an artistic mutilation of that much characterized bandit last week, so now Fred Allen is going to try to go him one better in tickling the risible (laughing) nerves of the "dear unseen audience everywhere." They tell me a real actor re-lived the honorable role at the Ritz Tuesday night, too. So hold on to your trains, girls Mr. James is in—but definitely!

So Hedy is going Cinderellaish on us—Ambition conquered an almost overpowering modesty and she did "Ecstasy." And that, my dears, is my moral. As a result, demure little Miss Lamarr lost a millionaire husband, a country, and a language, and soon a new country. Dear me, isn't that sweet and touching now? Some folks say she's a star. It's good they left it at that!

Let's have a little alphabet now. A WPA crew tore down the wrong building last week. When the last brick was ditched, they were let in on the secret. What cards these government flunkies are!

Easiest role in Hollywood—getting a natural for the role of Brigham Young. — Remember him? he believed in the Mormon idea of multiple wives.

Things that would do—Dick Dix— Newest of the make-believe city's coinings: "scare-conditioned," (all for the love of Karloff). Remember G. G. S. last week. Movie colony folks are all referring to Mr. Pshaw now. Tall talk—Arthur Treacher reciting!

Crosby fans, keep your seats! Bing hasn't lost his voice—he's found a singing teacher.

Fidler recites Groucho Marx's story "about the down and out actor who had lost everything but his professional superstition. The poor fellows pants were so shiny that he was afraid to sit down hard, for fear he'd have seven years bad luck.

When The

late Marshal Josef Pilsudski, for nine years dictator of Poland, appreciated the menace of Nazi Germany to the peace of Europe and then tried to tell his fellow statesmen about it, all he got for his pains was a couple of cold shoulders. Pilsudski proposed to France to join a "joint preventive war" against the newly-awakened Germany. This was very soon after Herr Hitler had come to power. When France turned down his proposal he sent an ultimatum to Germany which said: "Do you want war or peace? If war, our army marches tomorrow morning. If peace, sign here."

As Germany had just then begun her re-armament process, a war was the one thing to be avoided at all costs. Herr Hitler chose peace and signed a ten-year non-aggression pact with Poland. Unexpectedly enough, the pact has been scrupulously observed and there are no signs of Hitler's breaking his word.

After the death of Pilsudski, the youngest of his ministers, Colonel Beck, became the "guardian of Pilsudski's testament." As Poland's foreign policy is more important than her domestic affairs, it is Colonel Beck who heads Poland's foreign policy, if not in Eastern European politics.

Last week Beck was playing the political game for all it was worth. Having recently visited Hitler, received Minister von Ribbentrop (former German Ambassador to U.S.), and signed a commercial treaty with Russia, he entertained the Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano. It was intimated that Italy proposed to allow Poland a "cut," probably in the form of an island, in return for aid against France in the probability of a Mediterranean war.

Standing foremost as the greatest single worry of Poland is the fear that someday the Reichonchr and the Red Army will want to fight—and that they might choose Poland for a battlefield.

Colonel Beck's foreign policy can best be described as a man who plays the horses, but who has a small bet on each one, just in case. He keeps a few bets on each country possible. In the Czech affair, while he sided with the Rome-Berlin axis, he kept a small bet on the democracies by withholding his signature from the Communist pact.

While European statesmen do not like Colonel Beck, they cannot help but admire his diplomatic successes. In all, he has accomplished ably what he set out to do.

The Last

match games of the quarter were held on Wednesday afternoon. The fact that a dual Kappa victory ended a predominantly successful quarter for the Kappa team, is not as significant as the fact that spirited playing was shown throughout.

The Sports club is divided into teams for the purpose of competition. It is their aim to encourage good sportsmanship and healthful activities.

Throughout all the games of this quarter, both teams have carried on a spirited, friendly rivalry. Their spirit has been fine. Both Lambdas and Kappas have upheld the ideals of the club.

Next quarter, with both teams holding an almost equal number of points, the play for plaque honors promises to be interesting. Nevertheless, it is clear by now that the contest will continue as heretofore, the teams satisfied with a good game, no matter which is the victor.

From An Uneasy

What's In A Name

— By Dr. Marian E. Farbar —

A new one for you today, and I can guess that you never heard it: GERIATRICS. It is the name applied to the study of longevity; not only in terms of the duration of life but also physical and mental health in old age.

Some people may ask why this subject is given to college students, and we answer that we are strong on knowledge in advance and not regret in retrospect.

80 Years Old

A recent study of 25 aged persons (13 men and 12 women) 80 years of age or over, who are still active and in good health, affords us some notable facts. These persons were driving their own automobiles, some were still working for their livelihood, and many were active in play.

Most of them were genuinely interested in a variety of hobbies and all were mentally active and alert. Socially, 30 per cent of them belonged to the upper class, 50 per cent to the middle class, and 20 per cent to the working class.

In this study, as in practically all studies of longevity, it was found that heredity is the fundamental factor. Each, save one, of the 25 persons studied had immediate relatives who lived beyond 75 years of age.

Unusually Good Health

Few had suffered any serious infections, though practically all had suffered the usual childhood diseases. The group had had comparatively little surgery.

None of them had ever been overweight. Four of the women had been about 20 per cent overweight for short periods while young.

Possibly the most interesting fact brought out was that none of them had ever been in any sense reformers or faddists in their personal habits. Moderation and temperance was their guiding rule.

Eating Habits

They did not reveal any special dietary habits. All had eaten meat once day throughout their lives. Forty per cent of the men used alcohol in moderation, and 60 per cent used tobacco. Coffee was used by 60 per cent of the group.

These persons were versatile in their activities but moderate in all things. All of them were, or had been, married, although several had no children.

Baume Plays At Tea Sunday

Honoring the freshman class, the Valdosta chapter of the GSWC Alumnae Association gave a tea in the Rotunda on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Avalva Griffen headed the committee in charge of the arrangements for the entertainment.

On the tea table, decorated with pastel appointments, was a bowl of pink gladioli and delphinium. The Rotunda was bright with its vases of spring flowers. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Marvin Vinson and Mrs. Curtis Jackson. They were assisted in serving by Mrs. J. C. Parrish, Jr., Mrs. Melville Harris and Mrs. Jamie Carroll.

Emile Baume, eminent French musician, was unexpectedly on the campus for a few hours on Sunday afternoon and gave an informal recital for the guests. This visit was his second since his performance on an artist series program last year.

Sextet Sings For Wymadausis

Presented on a program at a meeting of the Wymadausis club of Valdosta on Wednesday, Mar. 8, was a sextet composed of members of the GSWC Glee club. Mrs. Lloyd Greer was in charge of the program and made the introductions.

"Sympathy" and "The Rosary" were the songs selected by the sextet. The group was composed of Margaret Carter, Pardee Greer, Jackie Abrahams, Eleanor Morgan, Sue Nelle Greenlee, and Rosalind Taylor.

Mary Winn Greer accompanied the singers at the piano. As a solo she played a number by Sergei Rachmanioff.

Eleazer Speaks To Student Body

Mr. R. B. Eleazer, secretary of the Commission on Education and Race Relations, spoke to the GSWC students on Wednesday morning on "The Bi-Racial Situation in the South." Mr. Eleazer urged the students to put their thinking concerning this matter in the realm of reason and not of feeling.

The Commission of Inter-Racial Relations was established in 1919 to aid the period of strained relations that existed following the World war. He briefly sketched some of the work of the commission.

Mr. Eleazer closed his address by outlining a program of education that will help solve this problem.

He also spoke to Dr. Joseph Durenbergers' class on Contemporary Georgia and to Dr. Punke's Education class.

English Club Plans Contest

Thursday evening plans were made for a reading contest sponsored by the English club during the Spring quarter. This contest will be open to the entire student body; it is hoped that it will improve the reading habits of all the students.

The list of books to be read will be placed in the library upon completion. Further plans will be announced next quarter by Margaret Abernathy, president of the club.

Art Close to Life

Mr. Bernd-Cohen has taught as well as painted. He was invited to head the John and Mabel Ringling Art School in Florida after his return from Paris, and he also taught and lectured before many other similar organizations. His interest in making an audience appreciate and understand what an artist is trying to do is a field in which he excells. He feels that people want to have a keener insight into the world about them so that art may be a thing closely related to life, and not reserved for leisure moments.

He has been credited with being the development of art in the South. In his talk on "Approach to Modern Art," illustrated with slides, reproductions, and paintings, he will present, step by step, the development of contemporary art through the last century.

gage she narrowly escaped into France on a British warship.

As the eyes of the world have been centered on the Spanish peninsula for the past few months, she will give her unbiased opinion and present a true word picture of conditions as she observed them. Her topic is not only one of the moment, but it is historical. Many places that she will describe have been destroyed forever. Miss Warder states, "I compare our glorious free country to some of these less fortunate countries, and emphasize that Americanism is the best 'ism' of all, and the only 'ism' that we care for in America."

In addition to her discussion of the war and events leading up to the outbreak, she will relate many of her other unusual and interesting experiences. She has been on a walking trip through Andorra, a tiny republic in the Pyrenes; she has interviewed Emperor Haile Selassie. Near Palos she visited the Rabido monastery where Columbus spent five months before sailing to the New World in 1492. She has witnessed the famous Easter procession in Seville and has seen the Alhambra and the Alcazar in Toledo.

Miss Warder will appear in colorful Spanish costumes, characteristic of old Spain. She will have on display her collection of Spanish tile, pottery, linen, posters, and souvenirs. By recording she will play some typical Flamenco music.

Miss Warder's travels have extended throughout the world. Some of her former travels include a 2,000-mile bicycle trip through Ireland, and a 9,000-foot climb, alone, through the pathless, snowy Alps to the St. Bernard monastery. From the Arctic Ocean she traveled 700 miles down the rivers and iaks through the wilds of Russian Lapland; she has made a trip through the harems of Africa.

Educators and civic minded Americans express the same opinion of Miss Warder as an

One of the most contested issues proposed was that of changing the manner of electing editors of the publications. It was suggested that the editors be chosen by a nominating committee rather than by popular vote.

All the proposals brought up at this time will be referred to committees for consideration. They will later be brought up before the whole student body for discussion and voting.

May Court to be Chosen

The May Court will be selected by a committee made up of the May Queen, Maid of Honor, Miss Annie P. Hopper, dean of women, and Miss Leonora Ivey, Director of Physical Education.

"It is interesting to note that both the winner in the election and the runner up led in the straw ballot," said Miss Ivey, who conducted the election. Miss Ivey further stated, "The votes were most scattered among the senior class in the first election. However, in the second election, there was only one vote's difference for the position of Maid of Honor."
