VOLUME 1      GEORGIA STATE WOMANS COLLEGE, VALDOSTA, GA., DECEMBER 12, 1934.      NUMBER 4

Rev. J. H. Stanford Speaks to S. G. A.

PLEDGE IS ADMINISTERED TO CLASS PRESIDENTS.

Reverend J. H. Stanford of Adel, spoke to the student body at the regular meeting of the Student Government Association last Friday night, after the business of the club had been transacted. The meeting was presided over by Miss Henry Kate Gardner, president, who introduced the other recently-elected officers of the Association, administered the pledge to the class officers, and presented the speaker.

After the meeting had been opened by the singing of the Pine Branch Miss Gardner announced the election of Miss Kathlyn Taylor, Valdosta, as secretary and treasurer of the S. G. A., and Miss Mary Polhill, Sylvester, recorder of points. All students obtaining, in any manner, points toward their Georgia State Womans College emblem were requested to report them to Miss Polhill and have them recorded as won, in order to prevent loss and confusion. The class president pledge was taken by: Virginia Sheppard, Savannah, Senior Class; Ruth Jones, Thomasville, Junior Class; Emma Ambos, Savannah, Sophomore Class; Martha Cannon, Cairo, Freshman Class.

REVEREND STANFORD

Reverend Stanford delivered an interesting discussion of the subject, Religion and Its Relation to Student Government. He urged that we give religion some of the spirit we save for football, keep out the drabness, and enjoy it. In order to give religion its rightful place in our lives and hearts we must not forget the aim of the game and must work enthusiastically toward the central goal.

"Education," said Reverend Stanford, "is cultural development, adjustment to environment, harmonious development of all the human powers. In any of these definitions religion is a vital factor. There can be no pure

Prizes Offered

The Pine Branch has announced that prizes will be awarded for the best poem, the best essay, the best feature article, and the best short story by a Freshman, published in the magazine during the year. This year the Pine Branch is to be purely a literary magazine by the students, issued once each quarter. The above announcement should challenge the interest and ambition of all the students, and it is hoped that a large number will call forth their literary efforts and compete.

The first issue of the Pine Branch for this year will come off press Friday. It will be edited by the following staff: Leonora Dufour, editor; Ethlyn Massey, assistant editor; Kathryn Connell, Hulda Summer, Lillian Bragg, Antoinette Andrews and Lorene Johnson, contributing editors. The business staff is composed of Camille Rogers, business manager; and Marguerite McCall, circulation manager.

This issue, for the fall quarter, will contain a number of short stories, essays, poems, and feature articles.

Freshmen Organize In Search For Hat

The Freshmen are very enthusiastic in their search for the hat. Miss Margaret Cannon, class president, has divided the class into sections and assigned a special part of the campus to each section. Every nook and cranny is being examined as a possible hiding-place.

The hat in question is a gray felt hat left behind by Dr. Powell, the college president, when he went away to do war work. This hat is the cause of the friendly rivalry between the Freshmen and Sophomores each year. The Sophomore class hides it on the 19th of October. Since it may be searched for only on the nineteenth of the month, if it is not found by the opposing class on this day, the search is discontinued until the next month. In case the Freshmen find it, they in turn hide the hat, and the contest continues until January the nineteenth. The class then holding the hat is to be entertained by the losers. Apparently, the Freshmen intend to be the guests on the occasion, as they have been very active in their search.

Plays to Be Given

Many students are receiving invitations to the examination productions of the Play Production Class, Friday at ten o'clock. They are presenting the Tradesman scenes from Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream and The Knave of Hearts, an explanation of the old rhyme.

The class has been actively interested this quarter in the plays now playing on the legitimate stage. They have studied a large number of plays of all types, including the Pulitzer Prize winners, as well as the actual construction of the stage itself. As lab work, due to the absence of facilities for set building and make-up study, they have re-painted and re-upholstered the stage furnishings. Each member of the class is designing and constructing a miniature stage which will go on exhibit Monday morning.

Work was begun on the Shakespearean play at the beginning of the quarter. Each member was given a part, and the cast to present the play for examination was selected by popular vote. The final selection was: Quince, Mildred Turnbull; Bottom, Leila Urquhart; Thisbe, Virginia Tuck; The Moon, Mary Perry; The Wall, Dorothy Ogletree; The Lion, Chappie Bragg; other members of the class are the Duke and his court.

The Knave of Hearts is a comparatively new assignment. Each member will appear in at least one of the productions. The main cast for the Knave is as follows: Blue Hose, Elizabeth Larisey; Yellow Hose, Mary Agnes Roane; King of Hearts, Jessie Langdale; Lady Violetta, Catherine Morgan; The Knave of Hearts, Mary Nell Carlyle; Chancellor, Leonora DuFour; Ursula, Doris Swindle.

Comedy Presented By French Club

"La Dame de Bronze et Le Monsieur de Cristal," a contemporary one-act comedy by Henri Duvernois, was presented Saturday night, December 8, by the French Club under the direction of Miss Treanor.

Before the curtain rose a short resume in English was given, and the cast announced by Lucy Hammond. The play portrayed Monsieur Sourcier, an artist and dreamer, who had escaped from his nagging wife into the solitude and tranquility of a mad-house. There, pretending to be of crystal, he enjoyed perfect happiness and freedom until his wife came to join him, declaring herself to be "La dame de Bronze." In the first scene an inmate, thinking himself a dandified prince, burdened with the cares of his country, offered to buy Sourcier's picture and named him Commander of his Order. The doctor, Alique, entered to take the Prince away and told Sourcier that a friend, Monsieur Passandeu, wished to see him. Passandeu, also an unhappy husband, learned from Sourcier the secret of his feigned madness, and was thinking of installing himself in the mad-house when Sourcier's wife arrived.

Louise Hardy played the part of Sourcier with much expression and animation and with an ease of manner and speech. She portrayed the emotions of her character admirably.

As the over-bearing Madame Sourcier, Carolyn Brim played her role superbly, convincing the audience of her determination to dominate her Eugene.

The part of Alique, brisk, professional head of the Home, was well acted by Mary Alderman.

The character Passandeu was portrayed by Doris Young. Louise Driskell made a very dramatic and elegant Prince.

This was the first presentation of a play in French on this campus. It is hoped that the French Club will stage other performances as entertaining and creditable.

Consul Addresses University Women

The regular monthly meeting of the Valdosta branch of the American Association of University Women was held last Thursday afternoon at the Woman's Building.

Mr. C. M. Hitch, former consul to England, Switzerland, and New Zealand, was guest speaker. He spoke to the club on the interesting subject of "An American Consul Looks at Foreign Countries."

A double trio from the Glee Club sang English, Welsh, and French carols. The girls who participated in the singing were: Florence Tharp, of Leesburg; Joy Miller, of Albany; Edith Bennett, of Savannah; Elizabeth Sims, of Thomasville; Evelyn May, of Quitman; Louise Odom, of Ashburn; and Pearl Wilson, of Cordele.

The carols were "Deck the Halls," "O Holy Night," "Snow Storm," "Sleep Holy Child," and "Silent Night, Holy Night."

Larisey Announces Pine Cone Theme

The 1935 Pine Cone will be built around the theme The Four Best Years of My Life. This announcement was made by Elizabeth Larisey, editor, as the Canopy went to press.

Miss Larisey stated that the rate at which the work on the annual is progressing is entirely satisfactory. The Pine Cone is rapidly shaping into definite form. She was enthusiastic about the Art Committee which will produce, if present quality of work is continued, a unique year book.

The cover was selected a few days ago during the visit of Mr. Long, representative of the Foote and Davies Publishing Company, publishers of the annual. The new artificial-leather book binding is a decided improvement over the previous varieties, according to both the editor, Miss Larisey, and Mr. Long. The page-plan of the annual is expected to be an added improvement over former Pine Cones.

THE ADVANTAGES OF ATTENDING A SMALL WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Recently we overheard the following comment: "I am tired of going to a small woman's college. I want to go to a larger co-educational institution." And we have been debating the question ever since.

One of the strongest arguments for attendance at a school of this type may be found in the bulletin of the College for 1934-35. "The Georgia State Womens College is a four-year liberal arts college. As such it is the purpose of this institution to supply the essential basic education for social living with reason as a guide to action, and with intellectual attainments tempered by ethical, social and religious motives. The individual is encouraged to establish an effective command of all her powers and to choose wisely value for purposeful living."

"Through personal transmission from the faculty and through fresh points of view of traditional intellectual materials the student is guided toward a broader knowledge, a keener intellect, and a finer character."

In a larger woman's college or in a large university it is impossible for the faculty to give much individual attention to the student. There are too many, and it would be fair to neither the students nor the professors. Our campus is particularly fortunate in this respect, for the faculty and student body are very congenial in their relationships.

"Here, in a friendly and democratic community, a young woman will be privileged to know the value of intellectual integrity." In a small college there is an excellent chance to develop the community spirit, while in a large college it is every person for himself. On our campus there is much more incentive for the young woman to participate in extra-curricula activities than there is in other large institutions. There are activities in which each student may participate in reaching her highest attainment. The Student Government, the Y. W. C. A., and the two athletic societies, as well as one departmental club, are open to every girl in college.

There is never the danger of new "isms" which shake campuses where the foreign element is very prominent. There is not the time in our program, or the inclination. While our thinking is revolutionary in a great many phases, it is constructive for the social order.

Frequently there is some reference to our lack of Greek letter societies. As we look around in college circles we find that fraternities are being done away with, even in such strongholds as Yale University. We can see no reason for the feeling that we are an inferior institution without them. The "rushing" system has done more to cause a sense of inferiority among students than any other single cause. We can see no reason for the desire that we have a system that does not feature fair play and equality as its chief requirements, but rather wealth and an automobile as its chief bid to prominence on campus.

There are many reasons for the preference shown the smaller college, but no clear-thinking person can fail to recognize the above advantages as being more nearly the ideas of a democratic society.

KAMPUS KALEIDOSCOPE

We are very glad to hear that so many people are being suspected of writing this column—it relieves our mind greatly . . . . The strain was telling . . . . But the complaints! . . . . "Things are too veiled," you say . . . . Well, suppose we do mention names . . . . Then it (the complaining) is even worse . . . . So, in brief, we will never long for Winchell's job . . . . With all of New York and the rest of the country complaining . . . . What a life!

Are you all ready? Here goes . . . Just suppose now—if you were a little girl, and you had forgotten to write to three boys since the holidays, wouldn't you worry about Christmas too? . . . . We are ourselves, but not for the same reason . . . . Bootsie—some pin! . . . . Is that the way Atlanta affects people? . . . . And speaking of pins, what has happened to a certain pin we mentioned once before? We didn't mean a thing by the remark, just something to fill up the space, so don't get so excited—next time we'll veil the whole thing . . . . See what we are talking about? . . . . If they are mentioned we're blamed, and if they aren't—oh, you think up an answer . . . . Have you seen the stores in the shopping district? . . . . We are still wondering where Santa Claus is . . . . Can't somebody produce just one? . . . . Just for old time sake? . . . . And then there are weddings taking place all around us . . . . Of course there is our favorite campus romance about to become our favorite example of perfect wedded bliss . . . . Then there is the surprise marriage which took place not so long ago . . . . And news comes from Sylvester that Frances DuPrie is now Mrs. Mack Park . . . . But what has us puzzled is the fact that Christmas is the time when they could get a lot of presents anyway, but in the middle of June—Love must be grand! . . . . Lots of the Valdosta girls got a break Thanksgiving, with Emory, Georgia and Tech lending favorite sons for the holidays . . . . How does it feel to be captain of a championship team, Rachel? . . . . And defeat will cost you something, Tree . . . . Myra, you had better be careful and not get them all mixed up . . . . Too many at one time is dangerous, you know . . . . Imagine anybody being able to play a part in French! . . . . When we have such a time in English . . . . Maybe after the holidays we will be a little better to you and name a few more names each time . . . . Because we're going to take out an insurance policy then . . . . Adieu! . . . . Your old faithful reporter.

CINEMA CYNIC

Leila Urquhart

The picture of the month arrives in Valdosta tomorrow and will play through Saturday. Private Dick "Canary" Dorcy, Dick Powell is spurred on to West Point and honor by Kit Fitts, Ruby Keeler, daughter of the Superintendent of West Point. They met and quarreled in Hawaii, came together on Flirtation Walk, stiff with a foolish pride that love finally broke down, of course. Say whatyou may, girls love uniforms and those of West Point or Annapolis are particularly thrilling. Perhaps neither the Midshipmen nor the Cadets would like the comparison but you know that you like both of them yourself, now don't you? Anyway, you know about the famous Kissing Rock located on Flirtation Walk that is to fall on the head of the girl who refuses to be kissed beneath it, and that is still standing through the years. Put the glamour that is West Point, the voice that is Dick Powell and the acting that is Ruby Keeler together and any picture would be worth seeing. It's all in Flirtation Walk and personally I could not be paid to miss it.

I was almost dissolved in my tears when the Canopy did not make an appearance last week, due to our Thanksgiving holidays, and I could not dissertate on the glories that are Garbo. Of course you all saw The Painted Veil but I just could not refrain from mentioning it for I am a deep-dyed-in-the-wool, true Garbo fan.

Did you know that Claudette Colbert's mother, a Parisian and one of the most beautiful women ever to appear in Hollywood, declined a leading role in Cleopatra, starring her daughter, because she felt that one actress in the family was enough.

No one has anything on Elissa Landi, ever. If Hollywood ever fires her, may that day be afar, she would not need to worry in the slightest. She writes books, sings, is wonderful in a ballet, but her latest is palm reading and she has just received a license to practice the mystic art of hand line reading.

In the entire picture Limehouse Blues (another of my going-back-to-review pictures) where she played with George Raft, Jean Parker wore but one dress, did you notice that? If it escaped your attention it certainly did not escape that of Jean—she was so depressed by it all that she wailed long and loudly at every shot. When the picture was completed Director Alexander Hall presented Miss Parker with a gorgeous evening dress, just to make her feel better.

Fast-talking Lee Tracy is on at the Palace in I'll Tell The World, with Gloria Stuart, who is rapidly going places in the film world. As a list of pictures for the week we have at the Ritz, Father Brown, Detective, and at the Palace, George O'Brien in When A Man's a Man and the First World War. The Painted Veil and Flirtation Walk are the two highly rated pictures of the week.

On both nights there were picture show parties of Freshmen and Sophomores. The picture was enjoyed not only by the students who saw it, but also by a large number of the faculty members.

Miss Alys Dawn Cullens entertained with a steak supper in honor of her visitor, Frances Smith, of Waycross, at the Junior House on Saturday evening. She was assisted by Miss Leila Urquhart.

CLUB NEWS

The International Relations Club held its monthly meeting Tuesday evening, at 7:30, in the Converse Parlor. After the minutes and roll call, which each member answered with a current event, a very interesting program followed. Book reports on Crisis Government and Heritage of Freedom were given by Miss Shelley Sparks, of Fitzgerald, and Miss Martha Gay, of Quitman.

The Fine Arts Club's Annual Bazaar, which was held in the Art Dome, was an event of December 6-8. The students of the college were able to obtain gifts at prices from five cents to a few dollars.

Miss Frances Smith, of Waycross, was the week-end guest of Miss Alys Dawn Cullens.

SEEN IN THE SHOPS

The city streets are at their loveliest now. Christmas trees line the walks, and myriad colored lights brighten up the town for the holiday season. And the shop windows are fairylands for both old and young. Toys, household goods, furs, jewelry—gifts of every description! For Christmas is the time when no person begrudges spending.

Now is the time for college girls to think of the gifts they are going to take home with them. Exams are only a few days away, and after that, there will be no time for it. Looking around in the different shop windows, we have noticed a few of the things that we think might interest you.

Varnedoe's is the answer to the question of "What shall I give somebody special, and where can I get it?" We noticed some wine-red glassware that would delight the heart of any domestic soul. And there were some attractive plaques that any artistic person would treasure. And the lovely handkerchiefs that come from the same place are a tradition.

Friedlander's also has a number of gift selections that are unusual. And we noticed several outstanding winter styles in their display. One dress especially appealed to us. It had a metal cloth top and little knotted ties. Metal cloth, as you know, is very good this season.

At Mrs. Whittington's, where you can always be sure of finding something that will please you, we noticed several very different looking handbags. And the lingerie displayed in the window caught our eye immediately. One pair of lounging pajamas of a nice green color aroused our envy to no end.

Churchwell's window is one of the most appealing in town. A number of novelty gifts were shown, but the one that appealed to us the most was the modernistic flower made of glass, which would be the ideal gift to give a person who delights in the odd and exotic. We also noted some attractive footwear for those of you who are in need of such.

Vinson's and Bennett's are displaying lovely sets of cosmetic combinations Evening-in-Paris, Shari, Houbigant, Coty, Old English Lavender and Harriett Hubbard Ayer are prominent.

VESPER PROGRAM

Thursday night at Vesper, Miss Amanda Barksdale gave a very interesting talk on "Worship," the scripture being taken from John 4:14 through 16 verses.

In her talk Miss Barksdale stressed the fact that worship is a vital part of our lives and in order to live a fuller and more complete life we must worship in truth and spirit. She brought out the fact that people worship because they feel the need of the help of a Supreme Power and because of fear and admiration of God, and of beauty and wonder. She told of how the Church helped us in our worship; by putting us in a silent, serious, and meditating mood, it somehow enables us to come closer to God, and lastly, if we have a heart of faith and the desire to worship, we will be drawn closer to God.

SPORTS

Due to the holidays and conflicting schedules, the annual Thanksgiving athletic games have been called off. As the fall quarter closes, the two associations, the Kappas and the Lambdas, are tied as to association points. It seems as if the associations are well matched this year and the one which succeeds in getting its name on the honor plaque will not do so by a large majority.

It has not yet been decided whether soccer and fist ball, or American ball and fist ball will be the two organized sports for next quarter. No matter which two will be chosen, lively competition can be counted on as both organizations are determined to be the winning club this year.

Last Tuesday evening the Athletic Council had a dinner at the Fire Place. The dinner was given in honor of Miss Annie Belle Weatherford of Savannah, president of the Lambda Athletic Association who will receive her A. B. degree at the end of this quarter.

Sports have given way during the past week for rehearsals for the Christmas Festival. Many beautiful dances are being practiced and the entire student body is eagerly anticipating the event.

SOLVE THIS ONE BY NEXT WEEK

A man having a seven gallon measure and a four gallon measure and no other container of any description goes to a well to get exactly five gallons of water. How does he do it.

REV. J. H. STANFORD SPEAKS TO S. G. A. (Continued from Page One)

peace, there is no harmony and cultured joy without religion. In its passage through the ages the original meaning of the word has been lost to many. Through either conscious effort or unconscious faults they have hidden the true meaning under a fictitious mask to fit their own lives. If we stop long enough we find out that religion means to bind back, that is to bind our souls and hearts back to Christ."

Self government is recognized throughout the world as the fundamental base for all civilization and education. The Bible itself says, "He who hath no rule over his own soul is like unto a city whose walls hath been broken down. Quoting Reverend Stanford: "The shortest and only perfect way to self government is through Christ."

Democracy requires intelligence which must be morally sound and practically efficient. If it does not rest upon a firm foundation, with a definite master, it will turn like the serpent and poison to degeneration its originators and become a curse in place of a blessing. Christ is an efficient master of intellect, morals, personality and religion. To make Him master of our nation would mean everlasting democracy.

The meeting was closed by the singing of the Alma Mater by the entire student body.

NOTICE

Due to examinations and the Christmas Festival, there will be no large issue of the Canopy until after the holidays.

LAMBDA NOMINEES POSTED

Annie Belle Weatherford of Savannah, who is receiving her A. B. degree at the end of the quarter exams, will leave the office of president of the Lambda Athletic Association vacant. Miss Weatherford has been very active in athletics during each of her four years in college. She has served as an officer in the Association on several occasions, and was president of the Junior Class last year. The Lambdas will suffer a distinct loss with her graduation, especially in the ranks of American ball, which she played with proficiency.

A nominating committee consisting of Henry Kate Gardner, Esther Smith, and Pearl Wilson have submitted the following names, to be voted upon in the near future, as candidates: president, Una Ritch, and vice president, Margaret Hudson. Both of these nominees have proved their athletic prowess. Una Ritch has been a loyal supporter of the Lambdas for three years, while Margaret Hudson, who entered college last year, has been one of the most brilliant all-round players that the Association has ever produced.

Unless other nominees are suggested the above candidates will automatically be elected unanimously.

RENTAL SHELF IN LIBRARY

One of the newest additions to the library is the rental shelf installed this year. Students may rent the latest fiction from this shelf, and the money received from the rentals will go toward the purchase of other important works during the year. The shelf is rapidly becoming one of the most widely used in the library.

Several new books have been added to the shelf recently. Some of the more popular books are:

- So Red The Rose—Stark Young.
- Stars Fell On Alabama—Carmer.
- Forgive Us Our Trespases—Douglas.
- Just Plain Larnin'—Shields.
- I, Claudius—Graves.

THE WEEKLY POSER

Last Week: Q. There were three horses running in a race. Their names were Ronny, Sonny, and Honey. Their owners were John, Jack, and Jerry, although not necessarily in that sequence.

Ronny broke an ankle during the race.

Jerry owned a red and white three-year-old.

Sonny had previous winnings totaling $30,000.00.

Jack lost heavily although his horse almost won.

The winning horse was easily discernible against the background of a red and dwhite painted fence.

This race was the first race that the horse owned by John had run.

What was the name of the winning horse, and the owner?

Ans.: Jerry's horse could not have won, because a red and white horse could not have been easily discernible against the background of a red and white painted fence. Jack's horse did not win if it almost won. Therefore John's horse must have won. Ronny could not have won with a broken ankle; and Sonny could not have been John's horse because he had previously run. Therefore, Honey must have been John's horse, and the winner.

Miss Carolyn Greene, of Columbus, spent the Thanksgiving holidays in Savannah, as the guest of Miss Betty Vaughan.
