Spectrum '82 vigil to begin Friday

Valdosta State College is to celebrate the opening of its new color television station, WVVS, on March 5-6 (Friday-Saturday) with a 30-hour marathon-telethon called "Spectrum '82." The sign-on event is to begin at 6:01 p.m. on Friday and to end at midnight on Saturday.

The station is to be carried on cable channel 12.

Dr. Bob Jones, associate professor in communication arts and director of the TV station said the event is to feature programs produced on campus, movies, short subjects, a special Saturday morning feature for children, the VSC jazz band, concert band and choir, a book sale and an auction.

"We hope to raise $25,000 through the auction," said Jones, "which is to be held in conjunction with the VSC Foundation and Rick Robins, Director of Development." Part of the money will go to scholarships and part to support telecommunications on campus.

Faculty members, students, Valdosta and area merchants and friends have contributed items to be auctioned. They include diamond earrings, luggage, framed prints, movie tickets, ceramic pieces, an antique vase, restaurant meals and gourmet meals for four cooked by faculty members and a variety of other items.

The idea of "Spectrum '82" was conceived last summer, according to Jones, and work got underway in December.

"We have worked 16 hours per day, seven days per week, to get ready for this," said Jones.

"It is entirely student oriented, operated and produced," he continued. "About 250-300 people on the campus are involved, including fraternities, sororities, the VSC Woman's Club and other organizations.

"We believe the 'Spectrum' will serve to emphasize our programming and to acquaint the citizens of this area on the capabilities of our students. We encourage people to drop by and see our new studio."

Tours for the public are to be given from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. on Friday and 9 a.m.-9 p.m. on Saturday.

The opening ceremony is to be carried live on WVGA TV 44, with other segments of the program picked up from time to time by that station.

Lynne Giddens, a senior telecommunications major, is student coordinator of the special program which Jones terms "a massive undertaking."

"We are really thrilled over our color TV station," said Miss Giddens. "We signed off

Scholarship available for studies abroad in Japan

Several scholarships of $1000 and $500 each are available for students on this summer's Studies Abroad Program in Japan. The program provides an opportunity to earn academic credit while exploring a fascinating culture in which the ancient and the modern are blended.

This will be the second summer for Japanese Studies in Kagoshima and Tokyo. The program begins with an introductory course in Japanese culture, taught in Kagoshima, Georgia's sister state in Japan. Coursework is done in English. Lectures at the university, several days of living with Japanese families, visits to fisheries, local industries, and a samurai village, receptions, directed reading, and sightseeing are all a part of this initial experience of Japan. The group then spends 10 days traveling. Visits include Kyoto and Nara, the ancient capitals of Japan, whose temples and palaces exhibit the ornate splendor of Japanese architecture.

The last five weeks are spent in Tokyo, where each student chooses two of the courses offered at Sophia University. Subjects include business and management, art, philosophy, history, economics, sociology, and literature. Students on the Japanese Studies Program can earn 15 hours of

Debate team scores high at intercollegiate tournament

Debate teams at Valdosta State College continue to rack up honors, according to Ken Colbert, instructor in communication arts.

At the Georgia Intercollegiate Forensics League Tournament held at Emory University last week, Tony Watson and Curtis Avera, both of Morven, placed third. Kellie Miley, Savannah, placed third in speaking.

"We are really proud of these students," said Colbert, "because this is a novice tournament and they were up against such teams as Emory, Mercer University, Morehouse College, Georgia State University, West Georgia College and Berry College.

"We have received an invitation to the District Six Qualifying Debate at Gallinburg, Tenn., March 6-8. Robert Watson, Warner Robins, and Curtis Avera will be going to this one."

On March 19-20 VSC debaters will be going to Fairfax, Va., for the Invitational Junior Varsity National Championship at George Washington University.

"It usually takes at least a couple of years to get invitations like these," he said. "This is our first year and we're very excited about this," said Colbert.

Phi Kappa Phi members are eligible for awards

All Phi Kappa Phi undergraduate members are invited to apply for the 1982 Phi Kappa Phi Graduate Fellowship, awarded annually. Fellowship recipients qualifying for full stipend will receive $4500. Fellowships are for fulltime first year graduate study. Recipients may come from any academic discipline. Deadline for application is December 31, 1982.

One nominee will be selected from Valdosta State College by the active membership of the local chapter.

For more information contact chapter president Dr. Bernard L. Linger, Room 243, Fine Arts Building, or the chapter secretary Ms. Ruth Kahler in the Art Department.

Focus 80's to center on North Atlantic

The Focus 1980's spring quarter lecture series at Valdosta State College will center upon "The North Atlantic Community: A Regional Partnership," according to Dr. William M. Gabard, Director of International Studies.

This year's Focus series will be held for ten consecutive Thursday evenings beginning April 1.

The lectures, which are open to the public without charge, will be held in Powell Hall Auditorium, Main Campus, at 8:15 p.m. Adjacent parking is available.

"The subject of this year's Focus series is especially timely," said Gabard, "in view of the various issues confronting the nations of the North Atlantic Community. New tensions and economic, military, and political crises, such as the Polish issue and trade with Russia, have come into sharp focus," he added.

The Focus series, an annual public service event since 1977, is sponsored by the Institute for Intercultural Studies, in cooperation with the Departments of History, International Studies, and Political Science.

This year's series will emphasize four members of the North Atlantic Community: Canada, the Federal Republic of Germany, Great Britain, and the United States.

"Students may enroll in either History 305/505 or Political Science 425/625-Topics: 'Focus, 1980's - The North Atlantic Community' for five hours credit," Gabard said.

Those who take the course for credit will meet also on Tuesday evenings during the spring quarter with their respective instructors, Professor Raymond Mensing of the history department and Professor William E. Carroll of the political science department. Registration for the course will be held on Wednesday, March 24, during VSC's spring quarter registration.

Kicking off the lecture series on April 1 will be Dr. Richard W. Leopold, Professor Emeritus of American diplomatic history at Northwestern University. He will lecture on "The North Atlantic Community: Its Concept and Formation."

Resident Assissant evaluation issued

By Luanne Manning

The VSC Housing Office has issued Resident Assistant Evaluations to all the Residence Halls. Students are asked to evaluate the R.A. on their hall or floor.

The evaluations are intended to try and interpret how the R.A. is perceived by the residents, and the effectiveness of the R.A. in terms of attitudes and general feelings toward the R.A. by the residents. The evaluations will be discussed by their Head Resident with each Resident Assistant, to help the R.A. see what his or her weaknesses and strong points are as seen by the residents. Participation in this survey by all students occupying on-campus housing will be greatly appreciated.

Ice scandal uncovered

Beauregarde L. Reade

Of the many, sometimes blistering, letters to the editor last week, the most interesting was submitted by Brady Shierling. Brady requested that we pursue a story relevant to all student at VSC - the price of ice in Alaska.

We aim to please.

I have just returned from investigating the situation. Fortunately, my limitless Spectator expense account ran out and I was forced to return from the "Great White North."

You were right, Brady. The situation up there is ugly.

You would think that ice in Alaska is plentiful and relatively cheap. It's cold up there, and that condition would be common to places with great quantities of ice, right?

Wrong

Only the northern regions of Alaska are frozen all year. During the summer, you can even see grass in the southern part.

When it gets warm in the South, the Northerners have 'em where it hurts. The Southerners need ice for their Lipton tea. They're at the mercy of the Northerners.

Call Sears

Why not remedy the situation by getting a refrigerator? Listen, if you worked at Sears and somebody ordered a refrigerator and you asked where to deliver it and they said Kodiak Island, Alaska how long would it take you to hang up?

Not long.

So, with no forthcoming aid from Sears, those poor South Alaskans are forced to bear untold hardships by paying jacked up prices for ice-cube to the Northerners. Here are the current rates:

One dozen one inch cubes = $1.50

One dozen two inch cubes = $3.85

One seven inch cube = $7.97

One real big ice cube =

One real big ice cube = $11.75

One bigger than that = $15.85 and up

It's outrageous! Something must be done about it!

Talk with the Governor

I went directly to Juneau to talk to the Governor. I was taken in awe by the beauty of the 65 foot Capitol Igloo. I almost slipped on the front steps. Ah, the unforeseen perils that befall a reporter in pursuit of a story!

The Governor was cordial enough. He took off his walrus skin mitten and shook my hand. I asked him how his secretary could type with walrus skin mittens on. He said she couldn't type without them anyway.

"I am aware of the situation," the Governor said. "As you can see, I had to smuggle a refrigerator in myself. As a matter of fact, I have a suit pending against me from Sears for making repeated prank phone calls."

It was at this point that I began talking to myself. This is not a good sign as far as sanity goes, but what I said made sense. "Beau," I said, "This story is leading nowhere. Why ain't you in Georgia where it's kinda warm?" My walrus skin underwear was itching real bad at that point.

Then, the Governor said something that made it all worth while.

My Scoop

"It's all the Russians fault," he said. "They're causing the ice problems. Siberia's not as cold as it used to be. They're buying as much ice as they can, and they're paying prime rates for it." It's the American way...sell to the highest bidder.

But things aren't over yet. When I got back I called Duke Petty, the greatest patriot in America since John Wayne died and the head of Uncle Larry's Commando Squad.

Petty and company jumped on their Cessna fighter and he said, "we'll take care of it. I'm gonna talk to ol' Ronny first, then we're headin' for Alaska. No pinko commies are gonna make Americans suffer while I'm still breathing." He saluted, recited the pledge of allegiance, and took off.

We can all rest just a little easier now. The situation is in good hands. Hats off to Brady Shierling for having the courage to bring this touchy, international situation before the public eye.

Letter to the News Editor

Dear Jim Hendricks:

I recently read your letter to the editor where you stipulated, and I quote, "Frequently I will interview people if they request it." Well, Jim, it's about time. I think that you have a truly professional attitude towards the field of journalism, and I, for one, would like to congratulate you. I think that your idea about interviewing anybody, even the common student if they would just ask, is great, and I eagerly await my turn to be interviewed (I'm sure that you have had many requests by now). So please consider this letter a request to be interviewed. I don't have much experience at this, in fact, if you agree to interview me, it will be my very first one. Be that as it may, I trust that we can find something to chat about (I like baseball). Like my grandmother used to say, "you got to start somewhere."

I think that you are on to something big here. You could do weekly interviews with the average, run-of-the-mill student. Every week the newspaper is filled with articles on those academic whizzes who receive all kinds of awards, or who are doing something of great achievement, while the majority of the students go unnoticed. Let's face it, it gets boring. With your new idea, you can show the other side of the student body. (We deserve some recognition.) You could interview the student with the lowest G.P.A., or the student who has been placed on academic probation and/or suspension the most? I'll bet that these people are real interesting and will provide a different insight into campus life. Somebody has to rank at the bottom of the senior class. And what about those VSC graduates who haven't made it in the real world yet? I'm sure an interview with you is just what they need to lift their spirits. These are only my suggestions, and I have confidence that you do much better. However, I'm anxious to hear from you.

Congratulations again on making a grade of "A" on your article. Keep up the good work.

Sincerely,
John Robbins

Georgia architecture displayed

By Leah Herrin

"Architecture in Georgia: A Photographic Perspective" is on display in the Fine Arts Gallery. The presentation will be shown from March 1-30, 1982.

The display is the work of five photographers showing architectural details on various buildings throughout Georgia.

Mr. Donald C. Penny, a VSC professor and director of the Fine Arts Gallery, calls the display, "the work of five outstanding Georgian photographers, not just a documentary but a collection of beautiful photographic work."

A lot of these buildings will be familiar to Georgians, an example is a photograph of the Crescent House in downtown Valdosta.

The photographs show examples of specific architectural details. An example is a photograph of the Birdsville Plantation in Millen, Georgia which displays Corinthian columns.

"The photographs are as much displays of art and photographic work as they are examples of architecture," Mr. Penny added.

Along with the photographs are detailed pieces of architecture lent by members of the Valdosta Heritage Foundation. These pieces are mouldings, a stained glass window, a door and a gate.

The photographers on display are Dennis O'Kain, coordinator of the show and a former ironworker; Paul Beswick, an architect for nine years before becoming a professional photographer; David Kaminsky, a faculty member at Savannah College of Art and Design; James R. Lockhart, photographer for the Historic Preservation Section of the Department of Natural Resources; and Van Jones Martin, a photographer in "Southern Accents," "American Preservation" and "New York Times Sunday Magazine" publications.

To be presented along with the photographic display is "Main Street," a film on downtown revitalization, followed by a short discussion by Lynn Menne entitled "Main Street In Georgia: A New Look at Old Towns" in the Fine Arts Gallery, March 3 at 7:30 p.m.

A workshop on restoration techniques will be held by members of the Valdosta Heritage Foundation on March 10, room 112 Fine Arts building at 7:30 p.m.

The Fine Arts Gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. except on Friday when it closes at 1 p.m.

VSC beach trip scheduled

By Buff Becker

The annual VSC Beach Trip is the end of next month, and now is the time to make plans if they have not already been arranged.

The weekend of April 30 through May 2, will be a busy time for Panama City Beach, Fla., as hundreds of college students flock to the beach, many of whom will be VSC students.

Since most accommodations are taken near Beach Trip time, those planning to attend need to get in their reservations.

For those not accustomed to Beach Trip activities and accommodations, the VSC fraternities each stay at different motels in the Panama City area, where VSC students are offered many advantages.

Invitations for accommodations are extended on a first-come first-served basis, and many special activities, dances and a number of special activities, dances, and bands, are a part of Beach Trip weekend.

Those wishing to be a part of Beach Trip activities should see members of fraternities for more information. Some lists are posted in the different fraternity houses for those wishing to sign up for motel reservations.

Carter wins Mr. Ebony

By Katrina Jones

Andre Carter was chosen Mr. Ebony 1982-83 at the fourth annual Mr. Ebony Pageant, Friday in Whitehead Auditorium. The pageant was presented by the Kappa Upsilon Chapter of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc.

Carter was presented a trophy by the sorority and was draped with the green and pink cape by past Mr. Ebony, Kenneth Trimmons.

Trimmons presented a trumpet solo, "Feelings," accompanied by Douglas Edwards. Trimmons also performed a song he wrote, "The Lonely Man," after taking his final walk.

Other entertainment was provided by Soror Donna McCloud, The Troubadors, Michael Robbie, and Bruce Edwards and the South Side Warriors.

Arvin Berry was awarded the Congenialty Award and chosen first runner-up. Nathaniel Chachere was second runner-up, and Marvin Martin, third runner-up.

Hypnotherapist to preform at VSC

Tom DeLuca, noted hypnotherapist and entertainer will be performing in Whitehead Auditorium on Monday, March 8 at 8 p.m. DeLuca's show is sponsored by the College Union Board.

Born and raised in upstate New York. Attended the University of Miami, Coral Gables. Received a B.A. in Communication and Psychology. Received M.A. from Sangamon State University, Springfield, Illinois. Presently working on Ph.D.

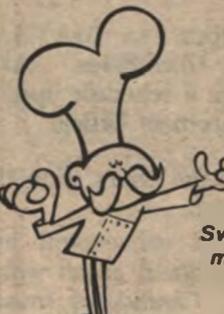

Four and one half years ago, Tom began work as a hypnotherapist dealing with psychosomatic disorders. In that time period, he has become increasingly aware of the fact that most of one's problems, emotional as well as communicative, stem from a negatively programmed unconscious mind.

As a result of this work, Tom has devised rapid and unique forms of communication with others in therapeutic or entertainment situations that enable him to induce hypnosis almost instantly, as well as influence another's mind through unconscious communication.

In his own words, Tom DeLuca gives his unique philosophy towards his work: "I look at hypnosis and unconscious communication as a freeing of creative human potential, to change stagnant lifestyles and achieve goals."

Tom DeLuca's show and discussion afterwards will hopefully provide you with the most entertaining and educational aspects of Hypnosis and Unconscious Communication available today.

Correction to erroneous article

TKEs defeat CHIs to win College Bowl

An erroneous news article appeared in last week's paper stating that the Delta Chi's won the Winter quarter College Bowl competition. The team representing the Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity, however, was the actual winner of the contest.

Four teams participated in the College Bowl on Friday, February 19. In the first round of play, the Chi's and the ZTAs were victorious. These teams competed in the winners round with the Chi's coming out on top. The TKEs defeated Lowndes in the losers bracket to advance to the next round. The TKEs then won two straight matches to become the competition winners.

According to TKE Vice-President David Bobo, "it seemed to me that we felt an obligation to show that we, contrary to popular belief, have the ability to excel academically and we're proud of the efforts of the whole team."

Congratulations are extended to the TKEs for their victory in this quarter's College Bowl.

CORRECTION:

By Luanne Manning

I apologize to Tau Kappa Epsilon for last week's article "Chi's Win College Bowl." The Chi's did not win the bowl, as I had heard. The TKE's were the winners of Winter Quarter '82 College Bowl. I hope the TKEs will accept my apology.

Confessions of a Frustrated Chewer

by Ralph Moore

Have you noticed that a "chaw" is replacing the hotdog in America's theme "baseball, hotdogs, and apple pie?" From the press box to centerfield, everyone save the batgirls seems to have a dip, plug, or pinch. The practice of using some form of tobacco, either alone or in combination with gum, has become so typical of baseball that Sports Illustrated devoted a special issue to the vice. Most players and fans try several different possibilities: the traditional pouch, plug, and the recent craze, smokeless tobacco. Although some reach the stage of junkie, where any form of tobacco will suffice, most find a favorite form and brand and stick to it.

I'll never forget my first encounter with 'backy. That one should have been my last, but every competitive person has been told "when the pony throws you, get right back up on him." Anyhow, I was about 12 when a friend, whose father was a softball coach (which made him an official distributor), suggested that we sneak a chew. Everything was fine for about seven seconds. I got a sudden surge of I-don't-know-what, and suggested we run to my grandmother's house. Someone, years earlier, had placed a steep, four-foot ditch between by grandmothers yard and the road. After praying for help and resorting to all fours, I conquered the ditch. I somehow managed to become the perfect center of the universe; everything began spinning around me. Back on all fours, I made it to the back porch. Once on the porch, I put a death grip on a column. My friend had begun to have problems of his own, doubling over as he clutched his stomach and produced undecipherable noises. "Have you been chewing tobacco?" my mother asked as she came out of the door. "Tobac???...rrrrraaalllfff," I innocently replied, losing my grip on the column. I won't mention the name of what we were using, but I must confess that anything in a white pouch with red writing and green trim on it gives me chills.

When smokeless tobacco came around, I knew that the right stuff for the lightheaded chewer was here. Earl Campbell endorsed it, and considering everything ol' Earl and I have in common, I had to send off for a free sample. I had a quarter pound dip going before I was out of the Student Union good. I got back to the dorm just in time for a friend to warn me. "You're green," he informed me. Two minutes later, I was begging him to call an ambulance.

Blazers drop 4 to Tigers

By Roberta George

It was an interesting weekend for Coach Tommy Thomas and the VSC Blazers (remember the Chinese curse; may you live in interesting times.) The weather and the Clemson Tigers conspired to give the VSC fans a very gloomy four game series. Clemson is rated number five in the nation; possibly number one, according to some umpires, and their estimates are not exaggerated. It was evident on the field and at the plate, the Tigers were stronger in every aspect.

Being outgunned did not deter the Blazers, and they battled in each competition; though, their only real opportunity came in the second game. A steal to second base by Richie Johnson was called debatably out. Jerome Register, always a competitor, protested and was ejected from the game. This crucial call was made in the sixth inning and could have given VSC the edge they needed. Unfortunately, Clemson had the breaks as well as the skill.

Kip McLeod's pitchers had their problems, with only Fugett and the young Dennis Rich going the distance. They held Clemson's scores down to three and one runs respectively. It was a baptism of fire, and they will see no better hitters the rest of the season.

The scores: 10-5 and 1-0 in the first series, and 8-3 and 3-0 in the second series are misleading. Clemson is a Division 1 school, and VSC is a Division 2 school. While not wanting to lose any game, losing to a higher division is no disgrace. The difficulties the Blazers have had in these first ten games against top competitors is not an indication of their true caliber. Each team they've lost to has held superior classification in their division. Blazers still have a perfect record in their conference.

However, all is not lost. I've befriended a little green can of smokeless that has all the kick of bubblegum. I admit there is an element of tackiness in the sport, spittin' and all. And removing a wad can be as revolting for viewers as having to watch someone mine for nose gold. It even increases the incidence in cancer of the lip, gum and tongue. Despite these arguments, baseball, Earl, and I will never be the same again.

Three-way tie in women's intramurals

By LaFaye McFarland

Ladies intramurals at VSC is winding down to an interesting finish. Three teams are presently in first place: ADPi, KD, and the Foxxes all have only one loss. ROTC has two losses.

The other teams participating in intramurals are: (1) ZTA, (2) Mg's, (3) BSU, (4) Phi Mu, and (5) Sprotsters. This is the last week for ladies' intramurals. The games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday nights. The top four teams will be playing for the championship. A schedule of all the games, including the championship game is posted in the College Union.

Blazer stats

By Ralph Moore

At this point in the season, five Blazers are above .300 in batting averages. Freshman outfielder Rob Busch is swinging at .375. Richie Johnson, VSC's speedy centerfielder, sports a .346 average. Greg Waits is close behind at .344. Mark Murad has managed a .333 clip in limited action. Another Freshman, Tony Bowden, connects on a .320 consistency.

Bobby Hurtt holds the statistical title in the pitching ranks. A 1-0 record and 0.00 ERA gives him the edge. His win came in the 12-0 VSC win over Georgia College. Dennis Rich has a successful start to his credit. In two games Dennis has worked 12 innings, held opponents to a 2.13 ERA, and stands 1-1 for the season. Wayne Fugett leads the mound staff in innings pitched, compiling 15 in two games. Blazer bats have not supported his hurling efforts, yet he maintains a 2.94 ERA.

In other categories, shortstop Greg Waits leads in hits, with 11, and doubles, with 3. Wayne Fugett, handling first base chores when not on the mounds, has 2 roundtrippers to head that list. Johnson sits atop the stolen base charts with 4. Richie has also drawn the most bases on balls, accounting for 10.

The team is batting .261, while opponents average .293. VSC has given up 70 walks, but taken only 40 bases on balls. The Blazers have given up 19 errors, and opponents have allowed 16.

Lady Blazer head coach Charles Cooper led his team to a 16-8 year, but an ineligible player will keep the team at home during the NCAA tournament.

Spotlight on Sports

by Bart Miller

In one of the most disappointing developments in recent VSC history, the Lady Blazers were not invited to the Division 2 national playoffs. Early reports said that VSC was "passed over" in favor of three California teams. Some said that VSC's record and strength of schedule were factors that worked against the Lady Blazers.

Anyone who is familiar with VSC's situation would realize that this is untrue. VSC's overall record was 16-8, with 15 of their 24 games against Division 1 teams. VSC was also rated #8 in the national polls, so the argument didn't wash.

A quick phone call to the NCAA office in Shawnee Mission, Kansas resulted in a better answer. Cindy Smith, an NCAA official who sat in on the tournament committee, said that "Valdosta State was definitely considered. The committee knew that VSC had an excellent record and played a tough schedule. However, Valdosta State also had a player who was declared ineligible for NCAA tourney play. They (the committee) felt that her contribution to Valdosta's overall record was significant and, therefore, decided against inviting them."

The problem, now that VSC is going to stay home for the tourney, is how can an ineligible player manage to play at VSC. This problem is not uncommon at other schools, but it is the first I've heard of here at VSC. What should bother people is that this incident tarnishes all of VSC's accomplishments in the field of sports. It would now appear to outsiders that VSC has adopted a "Win at all costs" attitude.

I hope that was just an oversight on someone's part and that it won't happen again. It cost VSC dearly, not only in not receiving a bit, but also in the minds of the community.

Campus clashes common around U.S.

(CPS)- About 30 Iranian students were just settling down to watch a movie at a Metropolitan State College classroom in Denver when a mob of shouting, club-swinging countrymen burst into the room. They set upon the movie-goers with canes and ax handles. Fighting back, the movie-goers managed to drive the attackers out of the building just as the police arrived. About a half-dozen people were injured before the melee was subdued.

But the September incident in Denver among Iranian students - whose short history on American campuses has been punctuated frequently by controversy and clashes - was just one of many often-violent confrontations on campuses this fall around the United States.

And as the cycle of protest and violence continues, increasing numbers of Iranian students are reportedly falling deeply into debt, and becoming dejected over the prospect of returning home, where many have already lost family members. Iranian student observers say an increasing number of Iranians are suffering nervous breakdowns under a strain exacerbated by the Reagan administration's unwillingness to grant them political asylum.

But the cycle of confrontation between pro- and anti-Khomeini students who are fighting the Iranian revolution on American campuses promises to pick up even more as the war in their homeland escalates.

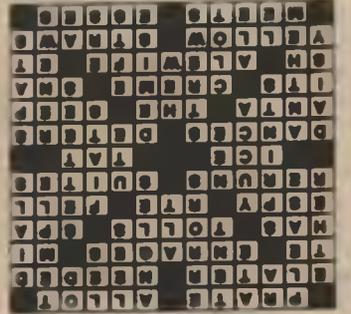

"Things flared up here about a month ago," says Sam Stanton, a reporter at the University of Arizona. "Both pro- and anti-Khomeini groups would set up booths side-by-side on campus and then start shouting at each other."

Things soon turned violent, Stanton says. "One (Iranian) group would jump someone in a parking lot, then the other group would strike back. They travel in groups here now for their own self-protection."

A major brawl reupted in September at the University of Iowa when "eight or nine" Khomeini supporters objected to the posting of an anti-Iranian-government poster and physically attacked other members of an Iranian student group.

KAs Festivities Highlighted

By Sam Torrey

Beech Mountain Ski Resort was the location of the eleventh annual Kappa Alpha Old South.

The week-long event included dinners, dances, and the traditional Kappa Alpha ceremonies on campus, which began on February 23 and ended on Sunday night, February 28.

Monday night, the brothers took the Southern Bells to China Garden for dinner. Tuesday, activities started at 4 p.m. with free beer and sandwiches at Jeph's Sandwich Shop, and then it was Tuesday Night at the Movies at the KA house. King of the Road was the place for the Share Croppers Ball. Wednesday night, the band was Liquid Pleasure.

The pre-ski trip festivities on Thursday started with formal pictures, with the brothers in Confederate uniforms, in front of the Crescent. Following this at 4 p.m., was the procession in uniform around campus with the pledges dragging the cannon. Invitations and roses were given to the dates of the brothers in Langdale Circle. Along with the invitations the scroll was also read. After the reading, the KA's proceeded to front campus to fire the cannon to symbolize their "secession from the Union." Two Chartered buses left from the KA house at midnight to go to Beech Mountain.

Saturday night was the Old South Ball. Due to weather, the band, the Backstabbers, was not able to make it but a stereo was provided by the Chapter.

After a week of festivities and skiing, the KA's returned by bus at midnight on Sunday, February 28.

Famous historical figures to appear at VSC

Four men famous in world history will make their appearance on the Valdosta State College Campus during Spring quarter. They are to appear in costumes typical of the era in which they lived and will be available to talk with and answer questions posed by students.

If the voice of Adam Smith sounds like that of Galileo or Karl Marx or Martin Luther, and if the voices of all of them sound like that of Dr. Louis Schmier, professor of history, there is a reason.

Dr. Schmier is to teach a course called "The living Curriculum," listed in the curriculum as World History 101. He is to wear costumes and make up as similar as possible to the famous men he is to portray.

Dr. William Frech, professor of history and secondary education, Dr. Bob Jones, professor in communication arts, and Dr. Schmier have joined forces through a faculty research grant for improving classroom instruction to work out the arrangements for the class.

"What it is," explained Frech, "is that the traditional lecture method of teaching will be replaced by a series of costume presentations in world history. Dr. Schmier will be the performer.

"The whole course will be revamped and organized around these men and the time in which they lived. We chose Smith, Galileo, Luther and Marx because each represents a different segment of history: Smith for economics, Galileo for science technology, Luther for religion and Marx for political theory.

"Students will have an opportunity to interact and question and character portrayed. One of our hopes is that this will arouse interest in those students who are not particularly interested in history. Another is that it will inspire students to read on their own and that factual information will be retained longer. We realize that some students are not history oriented and we hope this will change their attitudes."

The method, which Frech calls "an innovative approach," has been tried on other campuses on a limited basis but never on an institutionally supported basis in an attempt to stimulate students, he said.

Video tapes are to be made of the classroom procedures and when the method has been perfected Dr. Jones is to video tape the procedures in the theatre with the idea of building up a bank or series of tapes to share with other classes, civic clubs, area high schools, or other interested groups, according to Frech.

Meanwhile, Frech is working on a teaching manual for high school instructors as to what to look for and how to prepare students for such a course.

"If we have a bank of these tapes," he continued, "it could open up a whole new interest to students. They could identify the personalities with their teachings and the impact they made on history, as well as teach them to think at higher levels of reasoning."

Senate President honored at March 3 Senate meeting

Outgoing SGA Vice-President Virginia Williams was honored as she conducted her final meeting by a resolution commending her for her service to the Student Senate. The resolution passed unanimously.

The election count from the February 24 general elections was allowed to stand as is. Senators Jim DeWitt and Pam Jabon were excused from poll duty on the March 3 run-offs. Former senators Willie Thomas and James Hendricks will also be working the polls.

Nadine Aldridge, David Parks, and Cheryle Chandler were fined $10 each for campaign violations. Mac Daniel was fined $11 for placing posters up on North Campus which is prohibited in the Election Code. Jo Anne Hudson and Richard Dooley were fined $1 each for leaving one poster each up after the time allowed by the Election Code.

Rules Committee Chairman Rick Williams announced that all senators that did not work last week's polls at their assigned times will be required to attend the next Rules Committee meeting for possible action.

Luanne Manning was elected to the post of Elections Committee Chairwoman. There are three senate positions open. They are: off-campus, sophomore, and graduate.

Phys-ed teacher studies brain link

MADISON, WI (CPS)—In 1980, Dr. George Stelmach, a phys ed/dance teacher at the University of Wisconsin, received a $107,000 grant to study how the brain tells the body what to do.

"It has practical application to everything we do—speech, the aging process, whether we fly an airplane or use a typewriter," enthuses Stelmach, who also heads the university's Motor Behavior Laboratory.

He envisions a day when his work could aid sufferers of Parkinson's disease, or improve sports performances.

But Stelmach's grant came from an unlikely source: the U.S. Air Force, which presumably wants to learn more about pilot's reaction time than pole vault records.

Stelmach's uncertainty over taking the money is going on more frequently at major research campuses these days as the Pentagon, taking advantage of receding memories of college anti-militarism, muscled its way back into academia in a big way.

Military research on campus, in fact, is virtually the only segment of the higher education budget to grow in recent years.

The Pentagon's campus spending has rocketed from $495 million in fiscal year 1980 to an estimated $709.7 million for 1982, according to the National Science Foundation, which monitors federal research finances.

The same sum would pay the salary of 215,000 fully-tenured professors making $33,000 a year, or swell the U.S.'s total teaching corps by more than 40 percent.

Even though they can't use the money for new professors, colleges are undoubtedly the main beneficiaries of the Reagan administration's $20 billion research budget. Over the previous three years, campuses have enjoyed a 70 percent increase in military research grants.

CPS — It will be long time before Rutgers University historian Warren Susman forgets as awful night in December, 1980. It was the night John Lennon was killed. "By the next morning," he recalls, "There wasn't a blank wall left on campus. Someone had gone around and written 'Lennon Lives' on every building."

"It is the first thing I've seen that actually moved this generation, and brought them together. There were genuine tears. They couldn't hold back their emotions."

Susman, like many others, wondered why. The Beatles, a product of a different era, had split up in 1970, when most of the students now on campuses were small children. Susman wondered if the explanation wasn't that students of today were growing up without a culture of their own.

They "just don't have the heroes that the students of the sixties did. They lack that charismatic relationship with leaders that student used to have."

The professorial buzzwords for the phenomenon seem to be "Sixties envy." Many radio stations play only music recorded ten-to-15 years ago instead of New Wave, punk or other, more modern musical trends. A scanning of college newspapers nationwide shows a continuing tendency of students to compare themselves and their concerns to those of the protest decade.

"I've had students say to me that they resent the way sixties music gets more airplay than their own music," says Clayborne Carson, a historian at Stanford.

George Ward, a professor at Bowling Green State University's Center for the Study of Popular Culture, feels sorry for today's students.

"Throughout the seventies, they expressed the feeling that 'We missed the big one, we missed the great decade. We had disco and the Me Generation. What a bore.'"

But though the influence of the 1960s continues to be strong, Ward says there is evidence of what might be called an original "eighties culture."

"New Wave and punk are real, and came out of the seventies," he says. "It was a reaction to the over-commercialization of rock. Punk is taking the music back to the garage band to capture its vitality."

Liberal arts holding on to sixties

(CPS) -- One of the most significant reasons battered college liberal arts departments are holding onto students in the eighties is the sixties, according to a number of History and American Studies professors around the country.

Classes that focus on the events of the 1960s and try to explain their meaning to a new generation are becoming increasingly popular, they say.

The courses have names like "Youth in the 1960s," "Popular Culture in the 1960s," and "America and Vietnam," and are offered everywhere from the universities of Oklahoma and Kansas to Yale and Stanford. They are, moreover, in much demand. In a time when most social sciences courses are suffering dramatic enrollment declines, 140 students recently signed up for Penn State's 1960s history class.

Similarly, Stanford and Wisconsin, among others, recently sponsored "Sixties Weeks" during which political celebrities like Jerry Rubin and Allen Ginsberg appeared on panels to discuss the controversial era.

In what amounts to a "down time" for the social sciences, such panels and courses are the only ones currently enjoying steady increases in enrollment, says Robert K. Murray, a historian at Penn State.

"We don't have any hard data to prove it, but there is no question that classes in popular culture or contemporary topics about the sixties have increased in enrollment" across the country, says Robert Gladowski of the American Studies Association.

"Students now are showing a great deal of interest in that time, which seems so incredibly long ago to them," adds Dr. Mary Young, vice president of the American Historical Association. Students "are very curious to understand what happened."

The people who teach the courses -- many of them former activists themselves -- attribute their students' interest to a nostalgia for the era and even an anger that its persistent influence may retard the development of a peculiar culture of their own.

One teacher in her mid-thirties, for example, reports a fed-up student telling her, "You guys had all the easy issues. It's harder on us."

"Current students don't really understand why there was so much turmoil then," Penn State's Murray observes. "They're not very sympathetic to their older brothers and sisters who still haven't found themselves." The students now are deadly serious. There is very little frivolity, and they're motivated to get ahead as fast as possible."

Jack Nachbar, a professor of popular culture at Bowling Green State University, adds, "The sixties idea of sitting around all day and getting high just makes no sense to these kids. The confidence in middle class affluence as a given just no longer exists."

Because the 1960s and 1980s are so different politically and economically, teachers have found a cynicism among current students about what their predecessors of the sixties did and what they left behind.

"What we have produced," says Warren Susman, a historian at Rutgers University, "is a new generation that is bright, interested in the past, but with an absolute belief that nothing they do can make a difference." At the same time, Susman adds, "Students sense that (sixties students) had a culture of their own. At least the young had their own experience. Students today have a bewilderment that the legends could really be like what they have heard. They don't have that sense of mystery, that sense of adventure that the sixties students had."

The professors have an especially difficult time teaching about the Vietnam war.

Says Susman, "This group (of students) just doesn't seem interested in foreign affairs. Even isolationism is too strong a word. Their attitude is the Vietnam war was stopped, but so what? They're very, very dubious about everything, and they've given up that sense of heroism that students used to have."

But H. Bruce Franklin, himself an anti-war activist once fired from Stanford for participating in campus protests, disagrees.

Franklin, who now teaches "America and Vietnam" at Rutgers' Newark campus, says, "Many students see the sixties as something that was their antecedent, and there's a great deal of curiosity about that time. The more they hear about it, the more they see its relevance to their own lives."

At the University of Rochester, history Prof. Jules Benjamin finds, "The students come in pretty open-minded. In a strange way they want to be convinced if the war was good or bad. I get a few hawks and doves, but most don't have strong convictions."

He characterizes his students as "more cynical, but they're angry with their own cynicism."

They have a wistfulness that they missed something creative and romantic. They might turn it down, but they're longing for a cause."

At Stanford, Prof. Clayborne Carson's "students have a feeling that the earlier generation might have had a greater political influence than they do now, but they blew it."

But current students "didn't see (Students for a Democratic Society) or (the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee) at their prime. What they remember is the residue like the SLA (Symbionese Liberation Army). It's hard for students to see these groups as something that had the capacity to win their political goals."

But Carson notes, "There are probably as many students around now who have the same ideas as their peers in the sixties, but they keep those attitudes under wraps."

Murray, however, attributes the harsher professional observations about the differences between student generations to the age of the people who teach the sixties courses.

Believers react to scientists prediction of destruction

(CPS) -- All the planets of our solar system are moving toward the same side of the sun. They'll all be aligned by March 10, 1982. Strange gravitational pulls and pushes will result, some believe, and the Earth will suffer tidal waves and earthquakes. It might even be destroyed.

Those most worried about the so-called "Jupiter Effect" have turned not to survivalists or clergymen, but to the secretaries at college and university astronomy departments across the nation.

The secretaries report their phones have been ringing off the wall as people call to find out how the upcoming astronomical phenomenon will affect them.

"I guess about the most unusual call I've gotten was from a woman who was planning a vacation in Florida this spring," relates Bernice Stevenson, astronomy department secretary at Yale University.

"She said that she didn't want to waste money on a vacation if there was going to be earthquakes and clouds of ash floating through the air."

Stevenson says that the astronomy department has received a number of calls from people who want to know if the end of the world is truly at hand.

"We're getting three or four calls a day, it seems," says Patty Swanson, astronomy department secretary at the University of Alabama. "We had a scattering of calls all through the fall. But they've really picked up in the last month."

Likewise, the University of Wisconsin receives several calls a day, and astronomy Prof. Ed Churchwell expects that "the closer it gets to March 10 the more calls we'll get."

The University of Washington was so besieged by phone calls inquiring about the so-called "grand alignment" that its astronomy department installed an answering machine with a pre-recorded explanation of the heavenly event.

"Nobody here has the time to keep reiterating the same thing over and over," says

UW astronomy department secretary Charlotte Arthur. "We had to go with the recording because it was just getting out of hand."

All the concern over the planetary phenomenon stems from a 1974 book called The Jupiter Effect, in which two British scientists predicted that the alignment of the planets in early March will cause severe earthquakes, volcanic activity, and massive tidal waves.

Although the "Jupiter Effect" theory has since been retracted by the authors, John Gribbon and Stephen Plagemann, and generally scoffed at by the scientific community, many readers take it to heart.

"We tell them that the world will not come to an end because of that," explains the University of Wisconsin's Churchwell. "The planets actually won't even be aligned. They'll primarily be in a 90-degree quadrant of the sky, kind of bunched together, but not lined up in a straight row like some people think."

While the planets will be trade and industry about Canada, Germany, and Great Britain will be shown on April 8.

Ray L. Caldwell, of the Office of NATO Affairs, U.S. Department of State, will speak April 15 on "The North Atlantic Treaty Organization: A Military Perspective."

On April 22, the Consul General of the Federal Republic of Germany in Atlanta, Dr. Ernst Ingendaay, will offer a "West German Perspective of the North Atlantic Community."

On April 29, "Political/Economic Issues in Europe: Similarities and Diversities" will be the subject of a lecture more closely aligned than at any time in some 179 years, the effects on the Earth will be unnoticeable, astronomers say. But that hasn't deterred people from calling observatories, television stations, and astronomy departments to make sure.

"People mainly want to know if it is true, if the planets are really going to be lined up in a straight line, and what really to expect," says Swanson. The university has scheduled special presentations of "The End of the World," dealing with the subject, which they advise curious callers to attend.

"We try to discourage them from being alarmed and excited by Dr. Cedric L. Suzman, Educational Program Director of the Southern Center for International Studies in Atlanta.

Dr. Wayne Lord, a specialist in East European studies, will speak on May 6 on "North Atlantic Trade in the Soviet Shadow." Lord is the Director of International Projects, Gold Kist, Inc., and Fellow, Russian Studies, at the Southern Center for International Studies in Atlanta.

The Acting Consul General of Canada and Senior Trade Commissioner in Atlanta, Ray Guy, will give "A Canadian Perspective of the North Atlantic Community" on May 13.

plain to them that the theory has been retracted. But I'm afraid the damage was done before the retraction was issued," Swanson says.

"People call more out of curiosity than anything else," says Arlo Landolt, observatory director at Louisiana State and secretary of the American Astronomical Society. "We tell them it's happened many times in the Earth's history, and will probably happen many more. If anyone wants to see the event, it'll be visible in the morning sky. And then many more. If anyone wants to see the event, it'll be visible in the morning sky. And then there won't be much to see."

A member of the European Parliament, Mrs. Ann Clwyd, of Wales, will represent the Commission of the European Communities in Washington on May 20. She will speak on "Unification of Europe."

"A British Perspective of the North Atlantic Community" will be the subject of a lecture on May 27 by Trevor Gatty, H.M. Consul General, Great Britain, in Atlanta.

Concluding the series on June 3 will be a senior U.S. State Department official, Dan Gelber, Director of the Office of Western European Affairs, Bureau of Intelligence and Research. Gelber will speak on "The North Atlantic Community: A United States Perspective."

 "The difference is that its influence is so much smaller than that of the popular music of the sixties. It's a much smaller group of people than the hippie thing."
 Ward contends, "There is and was a real punk scene in New York, Los Angeles and, for a time, Austin (Texas). The Austin punk scene was very, very big in the mid-seventies, but the media didn't pay any attention to it because of Willie Nelson and the progressive country movement. But both were going on at the same time."
 Ward says the preppy fad is also indigenous to the eighties.

 "It is very big, and has moved all the way down to the junior high level. Kids want $35 L.L. Bean shirts. It's a dominant scene on campus, but it shouldn't be misunderstood. It's said that this is a lot more conservative generation and a flashback to the fifties. That's an oversimplification. A lot of the students who dress preppy still take drugs and have very different sexual attitudes from that of the 1950s. The stereotype is just too easy."
 Most observers agree that the one sixties phenomenon that's been absolutely banished from campus today is the hippie lifestyle.

 Jack Nachbar, a colleague of Ward's at Bowling Green, notes, "Today's students really can't figure hippies out. They ask, 'Why would people want to dress funny like that, with their unkempt hair?' It just doesn't make sense to them."
 In his class Nachbar plays the album from the Woodstock music festival in 1969. When he comes to "That part where Country Joe (McDonald) says, 'Sing louder. How are we going to stop this war if you don't sing any louder than that?', they all laugh and say, 'Singing won't stop the war.'

"They just can't understand that childlike mentality," Nachbar believes.
 Morris Dickstein, author of Gates of Eden, a study of American culture in the 1960s and an English professor at Queens College in New York, agrees.
 "Students today certainly have a culture of their own. The 1960s aren't holding them down. It's just that when you have such a surge of original expression as you had in the sixties, the culture just can't sustain it that long. The time right now doesn't have the path-breaking sense that the sixties did, but it's a time that assimilates what has already been done, and makes something new out of it."

 our black and white television studio last spring which we had on campus for several years. But this color station this is very exciting. We had to rework several classrooms to make the studios. There's been a lot of work involved but we think it's going to be just great."
 "Everything is running smoothly and we've got more than enough material to carry us through the 30-hour marathon. We have a telephone number which we hope the public will use to make bids for the items we're auctioning or to make pledges on the goal we've set for ourselves. The number is 247-3323."

"The departments of history and political science are cooperating in the Focus series for the first time," Gabard noted. "Their two instructors for the courses, Professors Mensing and Carroll, are eminently qualified," he said.
 A graduate of the University of the South, Professor Mensing holds both the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Emory University where he majored in English and European History. A member of numerous professional organizations, he holds the rank of professor at VSC where he has taught since 1964. In December he participated in the U.S. State Department's Scholar-Diplomat Seminar in Europe where he received briefings from top government, military, and civilian experts.

 A newcomer to VSC's political science department, Professor William E. Carroll received his bachelor's degree from Trenton State College in New Jersey. A M.A. graduate of Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, he expects to receive his Ph.D. from the institution where he concentrated in comparative government and political administration. He holds the rank of assistant professor at VSC's political science department."
