These players are Mike Ruff (catcher), Chuck DeVane (holds batting average record), Rick DiNopoli (12-0 as a sophomore, but hurt last year with a pinched nerve and this year with a motorcycle wreck, but will be able to play), and Michael White (who is improving with every game). These players have experience and should make things happen when they play.

Valdosta State also plays many tough Division II teams including Eckerd, Central Florida, and Troy State. This Saturday is the last weekend to see the Blazers play baseball before the fall season is over.

The team that they will be playing is the Valdosta Red Sox. This is by far the best hitting team that VSC has faced. So come to Blazer Field and watch. Game times are 11:00 a.m. Saturday and 1:00 p.m. Sunday.

Be responsible

Tips for drinkers

Alcohol beverages have been a source of relaxation, pleasure and conviviality, as well as nourishing the body, restoring and preserving health. Yet history shows that irresponsible use of alcohol can be destructive to individuals, families and societies.

Problem drinkers are defined as persons experiencing negative behavioral consequences resulting from alcohol use. Using this definition, 10 to 15 percent of the students surveyed at various universities around the country were considered to be problem drinkers, and 30 to 45 percent said they had driven after several drinks during the previous year.

The answer to the problem is not prohibition, but rather prudence. The question is not so much whether to drink or not to drink, but rather, if you choose to drink, how to be a responsible drinker. It is hoped that this will provide some advice and a few guidelines to help.

If alcohol is used in a responsible manner, chances are that one will never experience a drinking problem. Thus, alcohol will be something to enhance social relationships rather than impairing or destroying them. For the person who has made the decision to drink, here are some ways to avoid overindulgence:

1. A person who frequently drinks alone to escape from reality, boredom and loneliness.

2. A person who sustains bodily injury as a consequence of drinking.

3. A person who excessively denies he has an alcohol problem when approached about his behavior concerning alcohol.

4. A person who suffers from chronic hangovers and wants a drink to relieve the hangover.

5. A person who under the influence of alcohol does something he/she would not do otherwise.

6. To learn about alcohol use and how you can prevent abuse problems: Call or write: BACCHUS of the United States, Inc. c/o Campus Alcohol Information Center; University of Florida; Gainesville, Florida 32611; Telephone: (904) 392-1261

Writing Center in West Hall

Writing Center is an advantage to VSC English 101 students

By LORI ROGERS Spectator Staff Writer

The Writing Center, located on the second floor of the West Hall Annex, is a major advantage for all English 101 students. "The Writing Center has two main purposes," said Dr. John Hiers, Professor of English, "to give writing laboratory experience to students and to allow them to have individual conferences with their English teachers."

The Writing Center offers free tutoring in composition to any English 101 student. According to Hiers, some teachers require students to be tutored but any English student may use the tutoring services. The tutors are upper-level peer students who have received excellent grades and display unusually good writing skills. Two graduate student, Roberta George and Kathryn Young, are in charge of the writing lab. The Writing Center also houses a 12TRS80 microcomputer and a Daisy Wheel printer. These may be used by any composition student. Hours for the free tutoring are as follows: Mon-Thurs 9-10 am; Mon & Wed. 4:30-5:30 pm; Mon-Wed 7:00-10:00 pm; Tues & Thurs. 7:00-9:00 pm. All tutoring is held in the Writing Center conference room.

Fall blood drive begins today

By LEIGH ANN HAMMACK Spectator Staff Writer

On November 9-10, the Mark Stevens Blood Drive will be held in the south wing of the VSC cafeteria.

According to Fluker Stewart, head of College Relations, each campus organization is responsible for sending representatives to coordinate the blood drive.

The blood drives are held twice a year. The blood drive held in the spring is sponsored by the Student Government Association.

The lowest amount of blood donated was in 1982 when only 180 pints were received. The donors are to be informed that they can designate their pint of blood to a particular organization; however, if you see the need for someone else to use it, the blood will be used.

The Red Cross had requirements that force them to make certain that people are capable of giving blood. The process takes approximately 45 minutes. After the initial routine checkup, the person is sent to the donor tables for their donations. After their donations, the donors will be sent to the Canteen for replenishment of the body's lost fluids. Stewart would like to encourage students, faculty, and citizens to donate if possible. "We are grateful for your participation in past years and plan to see you in the coming years," he stated.

Those responsible for coordinating the blood are as follows: Set-up and Breaking-down equipment, Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Lettering of all posters for advertisement, Alpha Delta Pi; Distributing posters throughout Valdosta State College and the city of

Debate team fares well in recent meet

VSC's debate team traveled to Emory University for the Peachtree Classic Debate Tournament Nov. 4-7.

Susan Bunn of Tallahassee, Tracy Hornsby of Donaldsonville, Delle Driskell of Albany and Andrew Taormina of Valdosta participated. Driskell and Taormina posted a 5-1 preliminary record and was top-seeded in their division going into the elimination rounds of the tournament. VSC defeated teams from Emory University, The University of Georgia, Samford University, The University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill, and West Georgia College.

VSC then defeated Valencia Community College in the quarter-final round before losing to UNC in the semi-final round.

"This is three for three this year," said Kent R. Colbert, Director of Forensics. "This team has posted better records and has gone further in elimination rounds than last year's teams at the same tournaments in the same divisions. I was also very pleased with the effort and improvement of Bunn and Hornsby at this (their first) debate tournament ever. Our program takes great pride in working with experienced as well as novice participants," said Colbert.

VSC will next attend the Florida Swing Debate Tournament in the end of December.

Students chosen to attend Model U.N.

Eight students at Valdosta State College have been chosen to participate in the National Model United Nations Assembly to be held in New York on April 17-21, according to Dr. William M. Gabard, Director of International Studies and faculty advisor to the delegation.

"This will be the tenth year in which VSC has sent a delegation to the prestigious assemblage of students who represent over 125 major colleges and universities throughout the United States," said Gabard.

Those students chosen by a faculty-student committee to be participants in the 1983-84 session are: Fred Cole, David Levy, Jim Tunison, Jr., Vic Hartman, Elizabeth Wyrick, and Ramona Blanton-Boyettt, all of Valdosta.

Others selected were Virginia Williams, Camilla; and Richard Stallings, Columbus.

"The delegation is awaiting word from the NMUN regarding a country assignment. VSC has requested a Central American country to represent," Gabard noted.

"We will have on campus during the winter quarter a renowned professor of diplomatic history from the National Autonomous University of Mexico as our Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence. We want to utilize her expertise in the role of the United States in Central American," stated Gabard.

"We feel that representing a Central American country will present a timely challenge," Gabard noted.

New computer lab

Title III to establish new computer lab

By SONJA LEWIS Spectator Staff Writer

The Title III Special Needs Program is now in the process of establishing a micro-computer lab which will be available to all students.

According to Dr. Joe Gore, CAI Coordinator of the Title III Special Needs Program, the new lab, projected to be finished by the end of this quarter, will be located on the main floor in the library.

The lab is being financially supported by a grant that was given to create a micro-computer lab for faculty as well as students.

members to utilize micro-computers in the instructional process," said Dr. Gore. "Also it will hopefully help students become more familiar with computers."

The lab will provide from 12 to 16 computers for students to use independently or for class assignments; It will enable students who are familiar with word processors to type themes, term projects, or whatever is necessary.

The lab will operate the same hours that the library is open with someone to assist anyone who needs assistance. The Title III program will have further information concerning the lab as the lab progresses.

Latin America topic of two courses

"Problems in Latin American Civilization" will be the theme of two FOPICS courses offered simultaneously by the Departments of History and International Studies during the Winter Quarter.

The course is History 305 505 or Intercultural International Studies 317 517 B and will be offered at Period K Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6:10 until 8:25.

"The FOPICS course will be taught principally by Dr. Martha Strauss-Neuman, Professor of History at the National Autonomous University of Mexico, who is VSC's Fulbright Scholar in Residence for the Winter Quarter," said Dr. William M. Gabard, Director of International Studies. "The other instructor will be Dr. F. Lamar Pearson, Professor of Latin American History at VSC."

Students will have an opportunity to take a course which will "adjust" to the course of events in Latin America, noted Gabard. It will deal with such topics as tensions in the Caribbean Basin, the rising might of U.S. power in Latin America, Latin American revolutions and dictatorships; nationalism and liberation movements; church-state relations in Latin America; and East-West rivalries in Latin America.

According to Gabard, Dr. Strauss-Neuman is a noted expert on diplomatic history in the Western Hemisphere and is eminently qualified to conduct the lectures and direct the discussions on the themes listed above.

"In view of the recent events taking place in Latin America, it is particularly timely that there will be offered a course to discuss vital issues which involve the United States and Caribbean countries," Gabard concluded.

Dr. Strauss-Neuman is the first of two Fulbright Scholars-in-Residence who will be on VSC's campus this year. During the Spring Quarter, Professor Alvaro Sanchez-Crispin, professor of Economic Geography, also of the National Autonomous University of Mexico, will be on campus to coordinate the FOCUS series on Mexico.

Hutch's Hunches

By TODD HUTCHESON

Valdosta State College had many of its football records erased the books after the Blazers victory over Kentucky State Saturday night. Among the records broken were: longest scrimmage for a touchdown - 53 yards by Henry Chubb; most rushing - 162, by Tracy Soles; most rushing play - 59 by [unclear] and most yards rushing - 327 by the team.

The Blazers overall record over two years in out-of-state games is a very respectable 5-2-1. Their record for in-state

1-1-1. The Blazers dressed out 68 players for Saturday's game those 68 players, 50 were either freshmen or sophomores. Did you know that VSC is being scouted by the NFL's services for possible prospects? Pretty impressive for a young!

For the second game this season the Blazers had serious converting extra points. One kick was spoiled by a high another was missed wide of the goal posts. The Blazers also a 2-point conversion try.

The Lions of North Alabama have all but wrapped up their conference title as they whipped up on Mississippi College to their conference record to 6-0.

It was definitely a classic! The annual Georgia-Florida game won by Georgia 10-9 on a 99-yard touchdown drive. Although score may not indicate it, this game was very exciting for those who were fortunate enough to attend it. Coach Vince Dooley once again able to bring his team to Jacksonville and beat a team. Hats off to the coach in the SEC.

Georgia's defeat of Florida brings the game this week Auburn and Georgia to a climax. The game will decide who the Sugar Bowl on New Years Day. If Georgia wins they Sugar Bowl automatically as this is their last SEC opponent Auburn wins they still have to defeat Alabama to win the outright.

I believe Auburn will beat Georgia by 10 points. The Tigers too many backs that can explode on touchdowns at any moment. Dooley wins this game he deserves National Coach of the Year. Dogs have one advantage over the Tigers - the game is "betweens." The Tigers, however, were the last team to beat the Athens.

The chances of Tennessee going to the Sugar Bowl as I believe slim to none even if they do defeat the rest of their opponents. There are bowls interested in the Vols however.

Look for Miami-Nebraska in the Orange Bowl; and who knows the rest of the Bowls, we'll know after this weekend.

Why did the Atlanta Falcons fire Leeman Bennett? They should be tied for first place in their division but instead they games back of the pace. The Falcons have some of the personnel in the NFL but fail to pull out the big games.

Look for the Dolphins to make a repeat trip to the Super Bowl. Dan Marino is turning into a Griese prototype. He has brought a winning attitude and winning ways since taking over the quarterback.

SGA meeting held

On Tuesday, November 1, 1983, the Student Government Association's Senate began its weekly meeting at 8 p.m. in the College Union's Camellia room.

First on the meeting's agenda was the inauguration of all incoming Senators by Dean Ken Ferrell. All Senators pledged to represent their constituents to the best of their ability without personal bias and to place Senatorial obligations above personal matters which could conflict with those obligations.

Following the inauguration ceremony, SGA Secretary Janine Metzger read to the Senate the minutes of the last meeting.

SGA President Buddy Cawley occupied the majority of the Senate's remaining time with a speech, a list of his committee appointments, and discussion of the actions taken so far on some of the many bills past during last year's Senate meetings. The Senate studied President Cawley's committee appointments before voting for their approval.

Each Senator listened when Cawley discussed last year's concerns on campus, opening the dry room in Patterson Hall 24 hours a day, obtaining bulletin boards which would be placed in the related solely to the Student Government Association, and improving available parking space.

After discussion of these and issues, the Senate was required to table three matters until next because of a Senate rule requiring bills to be voted on a week following their introduction.

BLAZER SPORTS

Blazer offense rolls

By EDDIE TRIMBLE Spectator Staff Writer

The VSC Blazers played at home Saturday night against Kentucky State University. The Blazers beat the Thorobreds by the score of 32-20.

The first quarter saw both teams play very poor football with fumbles killing both sides' chances for moving the football.

Then the VSC offense started to get hot and Tracy Soles ran a quick trap up the middle for 43 yards. The Blazer offense continued to move the ball down the field and Soles scored from two yards out to give VSC their first six points in two weeks. The Keith Moore PAT was good. This gave the Blazers an early 7-0 lead.

The Blazer defense could not be out done by the offense so, Quinton Reed intercepted a Darryl Bender pass at the Kentucky State 34 yardline. But the offense could not take advantage of this and the first quarter ended.

The second quarter saw the VSC defense play their very best in stopping the Kentucky State attack. When the Blazer offense got the football again, Terry Mallory scored from one yard out to give the VSC Blazers a 13-0 lead. The PAT was good and with 7:01 left in the second quarter it looked like an easy victory, until the second half began.

The second half turned into an offensive show with VSC scoring 18 more points and Kentucky State scoring 20.

The third quarter saw VSC's Jerome Jackson score on an option pitch to make the score 20-0. The PAT was no good.

Kentucky State got on the board with 7:05 left in the third quarter to make the score 20-7. But, the Blazers were not through scoring yet. With just 56 seconds left in the third quarter Henry Chubb scored to give VSC a 26-7 lead. The PAT was again no good. After this scoring drive the time ran out and Blazer fans could smell victory.

The fourth quarter saw Kentucky State score very quickly to make the margin a 26-14 game. Then VSC put six more points on the board with a fine run from Tracy Soles to give the Blazers a 32-14 lead. This time VSC went for a two point conversion and failed. VSC's defense kept Kentucky State from scoring until there was only 19 seconds left on the clock. Kentucky State scored to make it 32-20. But, VSC held the ball and time ran out giving the Blazers their third win of the season.

VSC is now 3-5 on the year and will journey to Livingston this Saturday night.

Tracy Soles receives congratulations

Blazers win 3 of 4 games from Red Sox

By TODD HUTCHESON Spectator Sports Editor

The Valdosta State Blazer baseball team ended its fall practice on a high note this weekend. The Blazers took three out of four games from the hard hitting Valdosta Red Sox.

The weekend raised Coach Tommy Thomas' expectations for the year a little higher. "We hit the ball hard, this was our best weekend yet," said Thomas. This was the first time that Thomas used a potential starting lineup and it showed.

In the first game Saturday (a 7 inning game) the Blazers beat the Sox 10 - 0. The Blazers pounded out 15 hits - with five doubles and two home runs.

In the second game the Blazers outlasted the Sox to take a 16 - 11 win. The Blazers had 16 hits among those hits were three doubles.

Third baseman Greg Waits was by far the best hitter on Saturday as he went 6 for 6 with three doubles.

On Sunday the Blazers split their double-header with the Red Sox. In the first game the Blazers used the long ball to overpower the Sox 10 - 9.

VSC had 11 hits with one double, one triple, and an amazing four home runs. The Blazers were shut out in the nightcap game 4 - 0 as they managed only four hits.

The best pitchers over the weekend were Octavio "O" Narante and Bruce Begue. Neither man let the Sox come across the plate during his stint as pitcher.

Coach Tommy Thomas does have a few things to worry about between now and the regular season. First, the pitchers gave up too many walks. He also has a defense which made too many mistakes. And finally he must cut seven people from the team today to bring his limit down to 25 players.

The brightest spot of the Blazers fall season was Mike Jones. Jones hit a sensational .464 with 13 hits, 9 RBI's, 3 doubles, and Valdosta, Ga. (CNS)-- Ferris Horton, Karen Howard, Delta Chi and Lora Clark started for Hopper, as the first-place Flyers rolled over rival ADPI 15-3, 15-2 last Tuesday. The Southern League's only undefeated volleyball team then capped off the week by dropping at Valdosta 15-5, 11-15, 15-8. Hove and Christine Crawford were the top servers in the 3-set match with the Pirates.

ADPI rebounded from the Hopper loss to rout Kappa Delta 15-4, 15-7. Balanced scoring from Cole Griffin, Ginger Dale and Becky Joyce was the key. Hove and Christine Crawford were the top servers in the 3-set match with the Pirates.

Phi Mu upset the OPIes 15-4, 15-13 to permit ADPI and the independent Pies to remain in a second-place deadlock. Lori Zibell led the Cuties in the loss, while Wanda Carter was the hit setter.

Unable to play "up" for two big matches, ZIA topped the Mu's 15-12, 15-11 behind both Hove and Horton. Lisa McClinton and Amy Lukken were the Phi Mu leaders. Lily Parrish and Lisa Peavy helped Kappa Delta stay in the first division, as the team staged a comeback to drop the OPIes 15-8, 15-11. Jill Ferrall continued to play well for the vicious A-U's. Lounke broke a five match losing streak by blasting fading Hoptist 15-6, 15-6. Angie Cojina, the loop's leading server, was the Pirate ace.

Sherry Frew was the top point getter for the now 3-4 Flyers.

BUCKET: The Spectator has confirmed the Johnny Chastain will no longer be a member of the Wesley squad. The Thomsville native left the team after a talk with Coach, Gene Pollett, allegedly concerning playing time at the QB slot. Chastain was concerned about getting ready for the B.C. game, and said "I can't get ready sitting on the pine." Pollett confirmed Chastain's defection, and stated, "The team voted to not ask him to return. He's gone."

The loss of Chastain will certainly dim Wesley's hopes of facing Delta Chi at the BAC Bowl, and sheds new light on the International League show-down with O.B.

KAPPA ALPHA 26, PI KAPS 0

Kappa Alpha opened their League play with a surprisingly easy 26-0 win over the Pi Kaps. Leading 5-0 at the half, Charlie Sweet threw for 3-second string TD's (two to Mike Danzing), in the 1st win. It was the Pi Kaps first League set-back after an earlier win over IKK.

Sweet was 32-48 (263-yards), while the Southerners help Pi Kaps ace, Lee Hupin (13x35) to 163-yards in total offense.

PI KAPS 6, O.B. GAMECOCKS 0

David Black hauled in a 60-yard pass from Lee Hupin, for the game's only score, as the Pi Kaps dropped the O.B. Steelers from the unbeaten ranks, 6-0.

Black's reception broke up a defensive battle, and evened the Kaps record at 4-4. The Gamecocks are now 6-1.

"It was not in the year 1 A.D. because we know from historical records that Herod died in 4 B.C. The Jewish historian Josephus records an eclipse of the moon about the time of Christ in the spring of B.C.," he said.

"We need to figure when Christ was born," said Dr. Marks, who was educated in classical languages at Fordham Preparatory School, physics at Fordham and astronomy at the University of Michigan.

The year 6 B.C. was a striking one for astronomical events. Marks continued. It was during that year a triple conjunction occurred between planets Saturn, Jupiter and Mars.

"For the Wise Men," Marks explained, "this triple conjunction had important astrological significance. Saturn, the planet of the Jews, and Jupiter, the planet of kings, met not once but three times in the House of Pisces. Was this a sign that the King

Hopper and Dillon engage in an unusual father/son discussion

Francis Ford Coppola's production of the S.E. Hinton novel Rumble Fish is, how shall I say this, well, interesting. Set in the heart of America, downtown Tulsa, Oklahoma to be exact. Rumble Fish is the story of how a group of teenagers come of age. The story derives its title from a breed of tropical fish called rumble fish who are so violent they have been known to attack their own reflections. The characters in Rumble Fish are involved in highly volatile situations, and in the end, some of them destroy themselves because of their own violence. The movie stars Matt Dillon as Rusty-James and Mickey Rourke as the Motorcycle Boy, his 21 year old brother; their alcoholic father is played by Dennis Hopper. The Motorcycle boy had been the hero for Rusty-James and his gang. The Motorcycle boy is even referred to as "royalty in exile" by one of Rusty-James' friends. The Motorcycle boy has been out of town for some time, due to a run-in with the local police. In his absence, Rusty-James has modeled his life after him and has set a goal to be just like him. What Rusty-James has failed to realize is that the Motorcycle Boy has few redeeming qualities, and Rusty-James could find better role models to follow. To complicate matters, the members of Rusty-James' gang expect Rusty to be just like the Motorcycle Boy, something that Rusty cannot do. Rusty-James' girlfriend, played by Diane Lane, wants Rusty-James to be just himself, but being himself is not enough for Rusty. The movie is filmed entirely in black and white, because the Motorcycle Boy, who is the central figure in the movie, happens to be color blind. It follows Rusty-James and the Motorcycle Boy through various escapades, including a gang fight and an especially touching scene where the two brothers talk about their mother, who deserted them years before. The main thrust of the movie is that Rusty-James can't live up to his brother's reputation, and his brother can't live it down. The movie is realistic in its portrayal of the lives of under-privileged teenagers. You won't find Rusty-James disco dancing with some empty-minded valley girl type. Rumble Fish is an honest, moving account of life, and Francis Ford Coppola has created what may well become a classic.

Governor is no friend of ours

J.L. Powell

The Georgia Department of Education has identified $4.8 million to cut from the present budget for public education at the request of Governor Joe Frank Harris. The major cuts will come from department operating expenses; public libraries; vocational-technical programs junior colleges, area vo-tech schools and high schools; supervision a assessment of student and beginning teachers; and staff development. Apparently, the esteemed governor is attempting to generate reserves the state budget by asking for a one percent cut in the total state budget for fiscal year 1984, which began on July 1. Several questions can be raised about these budget cut requests. First of all, the budget for FY '84 is the work of Governor Harris and his budget staff; it was approved by the 1983 Georgia General Assembly which rubber stamped everything that Harris introduced. Why, after some four months into FY '84, is the governor asking for cuts? Was the '84 budget so ill prepared that, unless the cuts are made, Georgia can't make it through until FY '85? Secondly, one of Harris's many campaign pledges was that he would strive to improve Georgia's vocational-technical education systems. (I made no such promises about overall academics in Georgia, so we can't fault the governor if Georgia's standardized test scores, SAT for example, don't improve.) As most adults are aware, nothing in this world is free. How does the governor intend to raise the level of education without paying the price of improving academia in this state? Another of Joe Frank Harris's campaign promises was no new state taxes. I thought his promise was absurd then, and I still think it is. You cannot possibly expect to raise the quality of service provided by the state without paying the price. I understand that the taxpayers of this state happen to be one) feel their taxes are a heavy burden to bear, but promising to not institute new state taxes could be even worse than having to pay these taxes. What will happen in four years, or eight years, when a new state administration finds it necessary to raise taxes by a large percentage to compensate for small, periodic tax increases that were made under the Harris administration? Will the Georgia taxpayer be able to pay for Harris's campaign promise? It all appears to me that the governor is compromising one campaign pledge for another. He is sacrificing the education program in this state to make good his promise not instituting new or raising current state taxes. Charles McDaniel, state school superintendent, was not pleased with the cuts in education, but stated, "...We will try to provide the best education possible for Georgia children with the funds we have." Have you heard anything good about education in Georgia lately? I ranked at the bottom of the list on national average for SAT scores. Georgia students in recent times have consistently ranked below the national average on standardized tests. It is obvious that what we have is not nearly enough. Harris should be pouring funds into education so that children in Georgia can receive a quality education, an education worth ranks second to none. If Harris is trying to save his own neck, politically speaking, then it is sad, sad that Georgia school children are footing the bill. If the cost of not raising taxes means the quality of services provided by this state will be reduced then the cost of the governor's campaign promise is great.

Look and listen for something special this Thursday on WVVS. What you'll hear is what Assistant Station Manager Ed Kester has dubbed Mersey Thursday. What you'll be hearing is a Beatles tribute in which every third song from 7am to noon will be a Beatles tune then the High Noon program will feature nothing but Beatles' music. According to Kester the idea was developed in order to do something a little different. "The name Mersey Thursday was adopted from The Mersey Beat which was a Liverpool music magazine that was the first to feature the Beatles," said Kester. "And of course Mersey is the name of a river that runs through Liverpool the home of the Beatles." If you are one that enjoys the music of the past and especially the Beatles, tune in tomorrow for Mersey Thursday from 7am-1pm only on 91FM, WVVS

Andropov's absence not missed

Guest editorial - Fred Cole

Interesting that the control of half the world may soon lie open, but not visibly, either to the other half or to the Soviet people themselves, who must wait to be told their fate.

When it becomes necessary to replace Andropov as General Secretary of the Communist Party, whomever emerges will dominate a country with one-sixth of the earth's land surface and 270 million people from more than 122 nationalities. His hold on the Communist Party and its 17.5 million members will give him control over the armed forces, security agencies, the media, the courts, the economy, education and science. The Soviet people will have no say in picking their leader. When it comes to power, the 270 million people in the Soviet Union count for naught. Real control is in the hands of the Communist bigwigs, who do what they want when they want.

In the most likely soon to be post-Andropov era, the Soviet Union can moderate their conduct - which, by implication, means choosing more moderate rulers - and thereby earn a respite from conflict abroad that may be their last chance to tend to their home front. However, if the succession struggle is resolved in favor of ideologues and expansionists, they can continue pursuing an aggressive course and thereby risk an almost inevitable, potentially cataclysmic confrontation with the United States. On top of that, the stagnation and deterioration of their economy will accelerate as more resources are wasted in an arms race that the U.S.S.R. can neither afford nor in the long run, every hope to win.

J.L. Powell

The Georgia Department of Education has identified $4.8 million to be cut from the present budget for public education at the request of Governor Joe Frank Harris. The major cuts will come from departmental operating expenses; public libraries; vocational-technical programs in junior colleges, area vo-tech schools and high schools; supervision and assessment of student and beginning teachers; and staff development.

Apparently, the esteemed governor is attempting to generate reserves in the state budget by asking for a one percent cut in the total state budget for fiscal year 1984, which began on July 1. Several questions can be raised about these budget cut requests.

First of all, the budget for FY '84 is the work of Governor Harris and his budget staff; it was approved by the 1983 Georgia General Assembly, which rubber stamped everything that Harris introduced. Why, after only some four months into FY '84, is the governor asking for cuts? Was the '84 budget so ill prepared that, unless the cuts are made, Georgia can't make it through until FY '85?

Secondly, one of Harris's many campaign pledges was that he would strive to improve Georgia's vocational-technical education systems. (He made no such promises about overall academics in Georgia, so we really can't fault the governor if Georgia's standardized test scores, SAT for example, don't improve.) As most adults are aware, nothing in this world is free. How does the governor intend to raise the level of education without paying the price of improving academia in this state?

Another of Joe Frank Harris's campaign promises was no new state taxes. I thought his promise was absurd then, and I still think it is. You cannot possibly expect to raise the quality of service provided by the state without paying the price. I understand that the taxpayers of this state (I happen to be one) feel their taxes are a heavy burden to bear, but promising to not institute new state taxes could be even worse than having to pay these taxes. What will happen in four years, or eight years, when a new state administration finds it necessary to raise taxes by a large percentage to compensate for small, periodic tax increases that were not made under the Harris administration? Will the Georgia taxpayer be able to pay for Harris's campaign promise? It all appears to me that the governor is compromising one campaign pledge for another. He is sacrificing the education program in this state to make good his promise of not instituting new or raising current state taxes. Charles McDaniel, state school superintendent, was not pleased with the cuts in education, but stated, "...We will try to provide the best education possible for Georgia children with the funds we have."

Have you heard anything good about education in Georgia lately? We ranked at the bottom of the list on national average for SAT scores; Georgia students in recent times have consistently ranked below the national average on standardized tests. If the cost of not raising taxes means the quality of services provided by this state will be reduced then the cost of the governor's campaign promise is too great.

In freezing weather one year ago, Leonid Brezhnev, President of the U.S.S.R., and General Secretary of the Communist Party, stood on the platform above Lenin's tomb in Red Square, and watched a grand display of military might in celebration of the Soviet Union's most important holiday, the anniversary celebration of the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, which brought the Communist Party to power. Three days later, on November 10, 1982, he was dead, ending a reign of power spanning 18 years and five U.S. presidents, and setting off a scramble for power among Politburo members in which General Yuri Andropov, head of the nation's secret police, the dreaded KGB, emerged as Brezhnev's successor.

Exactly one year later this week, Andropov failed to attend both a gala Kremlin session opening the anniversary celebration and the Red Square Revolution Day parade itself; the first Soviet chief ever to do so. This clearly indicates that Andropov most certainly is in very bad health and may even be near dying. Furthermore, he has not been seen in public for 112 days and is known to suffer from kidney and heart trouble and Parkinson's disease. In view of these developments, Soviet succession may need our scrutiny once again.

Andropov evidently remains very much in control however, it's a good bet that yet another internal battle for, arguably, the world's most powerful position is under way. We in the West have infrequently had the opportunity to observe the behind the scenes maneuvering, the palace plots and the charades which have characterized Soviet succession. If indeed Andropov does die, it will be only the fifth time since the 1917 Revolution supreme power in the Soviet Union will have changed hands. How

Responding to response

To the Editor:

This is in response to the response to the cheerleaders' plea for more fan support at football games. First of all the stuff about the students supporting the program financially, although true, made it sound as if that's all we students should do for the team, which is not true. The football program was begun, if we remember, in response to student demands for football at VSC. Not only that, but the school officials went so far as to let us vote to decide the matter and it was approved by a landslide. It seems to me that it would be sad to know that the student body that got a football at VSC would not be willing to support the team by going to their games. To think that the team itself should think that we won't support them with nothing but money and not our cheering them on is in itself plain wrong.

The cheerleaders are themselves at fault for not seeing what the real problem is. It's not hard to figure it out. Last year, VSC's crowds at games were larger than this year. Also, the team last year had a big better record in the win-lost column. It all comes down to this: a winning team will draw a winning crowd and exhume a bit more enthusiasm out of the student body. This is not a problem unique to our college; last year, the Kentucky Wildcats produced a 0-10-1 record and drew barely twenty-one to twenty-eight thousand people to a stadium that seats fifty-four thousand. This year, the Wildcats are 5-2-1 overall and are now drawing near fifty-one to fifty-three thousand people every home game. The reason we may feel distraught here at VSC and perhaps feel unique is that it appears we are headed for our first ever losing season.

Regardless of the teams' record we will need to physically support them. They are our team, representing our school and I, for one, am proud to claim them as my college's Blazers.

So what if it's near impossible to find a worse mascot than a Blazer. I think we should feel good to go to a game and yell "Go Blazers!" a few times. Contrary to popular belief it does not or deface one's image. This losing attitude of the student body will pass over with a Blazer victory. Until this happens, let's all plan to show up when Georgia Southern rolls into town and give our team a good and memorable last hurrah. If our greatest rivalry game of the year can't draw a substantial crowd, then the cheerleaders have reason to complain, and reason to worry.

A Phantom Football Fan

Greeks stand up for themselves

To the Editor:

The writer of the "irresponsible Greeks" letter has obviously written a parody. Throughout his letter, he stresses the irresponsibilities, uselessness, and narrow-mindedness of the fraternity and sorority systems; I believe this illustrates a manifestation of pure narrow-mindedness on his part.

Greeks, as a whole, are not irresponsible; granted, each has those brothers who do not act like young adults. But fraternities and sororities have made outstanding contributions to campuses and communities across the country. Speaking for my own fraternity, the Kappa Alpha order, I would like to point out that greeks are represented in the Student Government Association, the College Union Board, and almost every honor society on this campus.

Greeks also contribute great amounts of money to national philanthropies, and every fraternity, and sorority at VSC supports its own charitable organization. Kappa Alpha, for example, raises an average of $5400 annually for the heart fund from this campus alone, while the National Fraternity raised over $90,000 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. I would like for the "Responsible young Adult" writer to name any non-greek voluntary-action organization which raises a comparable amount for charity, and remember, KA is only one of a number of greek organizations performing this service!

Further, as to the statement that fraternities are "comfortable environments for relatively narrow-minded individuals," that line fails as it stands. Fraternities and sororities survive because of the differences of the members which compose them. Fraternities teach their members to interact with people from other geographic and social backgrounds, a vital part of a well-rounded education.

Fraternities and sororities are not the insane, irresponsible perverts portrayed in National Lampoon's Animal House. We are your neighbors, your brothers and sisters, your classmates, your campus leaders. In the community, Greek alumni from VSC are state court and superior court judges, attorneys, doctors, business leaders. Open your minds!

Look at the Contributions and good points of fraternities and sororities. I think those outweigh our shortcomings. I believe I speak for all

Piqued but proud

To the Editor:

I am a black student at VSC and proud of it. However, I was not proud at all of the actions of some blacks who were at the C.U.B.'s Talent Show last Wednesday. The mostly black audience was rude and abusive to many of the white performers which don't exactly show what white folks would call "class." The black singer that you all pushed so hard was just singing along with a record and sure enough didn't deserve any more than second place. His "flashing" and near crotch grabbing was kinda stupid and really an embarrassment. But the worst was when you clowns got up and boo'd when Randy only won second place. How the hell can we keep trying to overcome 200 years of oppression when I say that.

Please sign my name. I'm proud to be one of the 800-plus greeks on this campus!

Sincerely,
Rick Ivey, No. 1

oppression when we show our ass whenever a bunch of us get in the same room with white people.

I'm hopin' that next year we can go to the talent show for the sake of watching some performances - good or bad, black or white - and leave all the rest of this bullcrap to the folks who make civil war movies. It's either that or maybe it's back to "separate but equal" talent shows so this don't come up again. Oh yeah, one more thing, would you clowns at the Sunday night movie shut the hell up so I can hear what's goin' on? If you're the one of them fools that has to talk during the movie - then I'm talkin' to you!

Mulvey speaks at S.A.M. meeting

Mr. Edward J. Mulvey, Head of North American Operations at SAFT, gave an enlightening speech at the November 1 S.A.M. (Society for Advancement of Management) meeting.

Mr. Mulvey proved that determination can allow a business person to advance to incredible heights in the business world. He advanced from a street gang member in New York City to the President of SAFT America.

In addition to the title of president of SAFT, he holds the following titles: President, Photowatt International Inc.; Director, Photowatt International Inc.; Director, SAFT Batteries Ltd.; and Director, SAFT American Inc. He recently received the "Communicator of the Year Award" from Toastmasters International.

Mr. Mulvey's management philosophy has attributed much to his success. He is a firm believer in respecting the customer's needs because the customer can determine the success or failure of a business. He described one way to understand the customer is to "step into their shoes and understand the customer's needs, problems, and fears." Early in his career, the quality of work as well as the quality of education became important factors in his management philosophy.

He was given a large amount of responsibility in his career; therefore, he made sure that he knew his customer was totally dependent on his knowledge about the product. Freedom allowed Mr. Mulvey to learn by making errors.

He believes that "if you don't make errors you can't advance." His advice to the audience was "Don't be afraid to fail or do. You can only be successful part of the time."

He said that each time a person perceives that someone is doing something better than him, he should find out why. Mr. Mulvey closed his incredible speech by saying: "Keep pushing your mistakes aside and keep on until you get it right."

S.A.M.'s fund raising event turned out to be a success. Brian Bickett was the lucky winner of a keg of beer, munchies and cups.

The next S.A.M. meeting will be January 10, 1984 at 3:00 in room P-200. A program will be planned. All students and faculty are welcome to attend.

If you would like information about S.A.M. or would like to become a member of S.A.M., please contact Allison Boatenreiter in the management office at Pound Hall or call 333-5963.

Price, Daugharty honored at meeting of Republicans

Valdosta State College students John Price and George Daugharty were honored in Tifton, Georgia on October 30, 1983 at the Second Congressional District's gathering of the Georgia Republican Party.

Price and Daugharty were recognized for their work toward what will become the Valdosta State College Young Republican's Club.

The Young Republican's Club will attempt to promote Georgia's two-party political system and will strive to encourage more college students to vote, join political organizations, support vocally as well as economically the candidate of their choice.

At the gathering, Price and Daugharty voted to approve a resolution to President Ronald Reagan. The resolution commended Reagan's actions in Grenada which have exceeded "in its goal of protecting Americans" on Grenada and eliminating a Marxist base of operation.

Accident c...

By PHYLLIS McCOY
Spectator Editor

According to a report made by Georgia State Patrol Trooper Benny Ray Brooker, 20, of Valdosta, was driving one of the two vans used to take members of the VSC Gospel Choir to a performance at the St. Marks A.M.E. Church in Thomasville.

Dampier said Brooker lost control of the vehicle and ran off the road, travelling 80 feet on the shoulder before coming back onto the pavement.

A campus memorial service organized by the Black Student League and others for Charlene Ray, 19, of Waycross, and Randy Boyd, 20, of Warner Robins, will be held Wednesday at 4 p.m. in Powell Hall Auditorium.

The two VSC students were killed and 10 others injured late Sunday night when the van they were riding in overturned on U.S. 84, six miles west of Quitman.

Memorial services are scheduled for victims

Arrangements have been announced for the memorial services for Randy Boyd of Waycross, two VSC students killed in an auto accident Sunday night.

Memorial services for Boyd will be held Nov. 17 at 1:00 p.m. at Warner Robins Air Force Base.

Services for Charlene Ray will be conducted at Community Holiness Church, Marion St., Waycross at 2:00 p.m. Nov. 19th.

A campus memorial service will be held Nov. 16 at 4:00 p.m. in Powell Hall Auditorium.

"Our entire college community is shocked and saddened with the tragic circumstances that surrounded our Gospel Choir's performance in Thomasville on Sunday evening," President Bailey said in a statement to the press Monday.

"While every effort is being made in the Valdosta and Thomasville hospitals to be certain the needs of the students in those institutions are being met, our hearts and prayers are with the families of the two fine young people who were killed," Dr. Bailey said.

"There were teams of physicians, nurses, lab technicians, etc., in both emergency rooms who moved immediately into action as the students were brought from the scene of the accident. We are all most grateful for the dedicated efforts of those highly trained people," Dr. Bailey continued.

He added, "I've been in administration 14 years and that's the first time I've seen anything like this. I hope it's the last."

Stevens blood drive falls short of its goal with 289 pints

The annual Mark Stevens Blood Drive held on the Valdosta State College campus Nov. 9-10 netted 289 pints of blood, according to Fluker G. Stewart, coordinator of the drive and Director of College Relations.

Each year Mrs. Joe Stevens and her son, Jody Stevens, give trophies to the fraternity and sorority donating the most blood in the drive named in memory of their son and brother, Mark Stevens, a VSC student who was killed in a gun accident about eight years ago.

This year Sigma Alpha Epsilon won the fraternity trophy competition with 54 pints donated. Phi Mu sorority won the sorority competition with 17 pints given. Since both the SAEs and the Phi Mus have won the trophies three years out of five, these trophies will be retired and the Stevens will furnish new ones in 1984.

"We are very pleased with the support and cooperation given by the students," said Stewart. "Although we did not get the 400 pints we had hoped to, we look forward to next year's Mark Stevens Blood Drive when we hope for a better total."

Students at VSC will have another opportunity in the spring to give blood when the Student Government Association sponsors a similar drive.
