during the period in which network audiences are counted and measured, is fortuitous for the movement.

Last week's nuclear "convocation," held each November since 1981, included debates, lectures and symposia at Harvard, Wisconsin, M.I.T., San Diego State, Utah, UCLA and some 490 other schools, says Lois Traub of the Union of Concerned Scientists.

More surprising has been the great number of campus rallies and protests over the placement of American missiles in Europe.

In September, two members of West Germany's Green Party -- an environmentalist and anti-nuclear political party that won over two dozen seats in West Germany's legislature last spring -- toured campuses in California, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

Green Party leader Petra Kelly, for example, packed the campus auditorium at the University of California when she spoke against Euromissiles deployment and Americans to mount political to stop it.

Some schools have responded. University of California at Davis a "No Euromissiles Week" last week. Yale, Massachusetts, New Mexico, West Virginia, and Pima County (Ariz.) Community College students have also held missile protests in recent weeks.

Organizers hope to translate November stirrings into electoral terms.

"The next big step will be elections," UCAM's Gottlieb says. "After this upcoming series of partisan, issue-oriented involvement the campaigns."

Grenada student will not get tuition refund

[CPS]-Students "rescued" from George's Medical School on Grenada by the multi-national invasion last week in the middle of their first semester may not get their tuitions back, may have to continue their schooling elsewhere, if they can at all.

"Right now, we're concentrating on making sure all the students (the island) arrived here safely," Mildred Eckhoff, a spokeswoman at St. George's headquarters in Shore, New York. "Then we'll be in the situation of what to do about schooling."

"We're trying to make alternate plans for them to complete semester, at least, but we don't know where that will be," she adds.

It probably won't be at medical schools, though.

"Most of the 17,000 medical openings each year are pretty filled up in advance," says the Singer of the American Association's (AMA) Department of Undergraduate Medicine.

Singer speculates the students from St. George's may up at one of the other off-shore schools "set up to attract American students."

Valdosta State may adopt semester system in the future

By PHYLLIS McCOY
Spectator Editor

There is a good chance VSC will follow the University of Georgia's example to convert to the semester system in the future, according to VSC Vice President Malcolm Rainey.

Rainey said departments at VSC have put it on their agendas to look at the possibility of the conversion from the quarter system to the semester system.

This action follows recent announcements by the University of Georgia to convert to the semester system in September 1985. According to a report in the UGA Red and Black newspaper, Bill Mendenhall, the University's associate vice president for Student Affairs, said he was confident the proposed switch would pass at the December meeting of the Board of Regents.

The proposed switch will mean the University of Georgia will be on the early semester system with the first semester going from mid-August until the first or second week in December and the second semester going from mid-January until May.

"This change means students taking three courses, three each quarter, would take five each semester or five one semester and four another," Dr. Rainey said.

Dr. Rainey also said he could foresee no problems with the University of Georgia changing while the rest of the state universities and colleges remained on the quarter system.

"We don't see any problems with students who transfer to or from the University," he said, adding the transfer would involve converting quarter hours into semester hours and vice versa.

"Three semester hours transfer into a little less than five quarter hours," Dr. Rainey said.

Effects of the change in systems were listed in a report prepared by University administrators in September. The advantages of the system include:

Conserving resources by having two registrations instead of three;

Having more time for greater depth in content of classes;

Providing more out-of-class time for students to prepare and understand course materials;

Creating more time for students and faculty to complete assignments;

Pushing the beginning of classes back to before the first two or three home football games; and

Providing the opportunity for re-assessment and restructuring of course and program offerings.

Dr. Rainey said the semester system was popular with students because they are able to look for Christmas and summer jobs earlier. He added that a majority of schools in the country are now on the semester system.

"UGA has more or less seen the handwriting on the walls. They're in the Big Leagues now," he said.

Toth recommended as permanent Dean of the School of Education

Dr. Floyd D. Toth has been recommended for approval by the Board of Regents as permanent Dean of the School of Education at Valdosta State College effective January 1, 1984. The announcement for recommendation was made by Dr. Malcolm Rainey, vice president of Academic Affairs, and Dr. Hugh C. Bailey, president of VSC.

Acting Dean of the School of Education since July, Toth came to VSC in 1974 as coordinator of vocational education. In 1977 he moved to the department of health, physical education and athletics as acting head and became permanent head the following year.

A native of Jenkins, Ky., the new dean received a B.S. in business administration from Eastern Kentucky and a master's of Education from the University of Cincinnati. He earned a Ph.D. from the University of Missouri in 1974.

Asked about his ambitions as dean of the school with the largest number of majors on the campus, Toth said it is to improve the quality of the teachers turned out at VSC.

"We're doing a very respectable job now," he said, "but there is always room for improvement. We will continually look at what we're doing and try to improve on it. Beginning next fall, students must have a 2.5

grade point average rather than a 2.25 GPA to get into the teacher education program. This may not make them better teachers, but it will insure they make better grades.

"We're proud of the fact that VSC ranks second in the state in cumulative passing rate for the Teacher Certification Test for the past five years, with a score of 92 percent, the highest in the state being 95 percent."

Dean of Students should not take on the role of the police

By PHYLLIS McCOY
Spectator Editor

"The Dean of Students' role is not that of being the police," said Dr. John Wester, the Associate Dean of Students and the person in charge of disciplinary measures at VSC.

"We are not in the business of harassing students. We only act when we have a complaint," he added.

According to the Code of Ethics outlined in the Student Handbook and approved over the years by the Student Government Association, "The aim of disciplinary action is the redirection of student behavior toward the achievement of academic goals."

Anyone in trouble with the college and wondering what rights a student has should consult the Student Handbook where students' rights have been clearly outlined.

According to Dr. Wester, students have legal constitutional protections the college must abide by. "The courts have said the school must have a written procedure and must follow it."

In other words, discipline at VSC is not arbitrarily handed down by the administration. Students have written and approved the Code of Ethics in the Handbook.

So what happens to a student when he or she gets into trouble at VSC?

"First, the student will be charged with a specific violation from the Student Handbook," Dr. Wester said.

The student will then receive written notification of these charges and will be asked to either visit Dean Wester and/or set a date for a hearing by the Student Judicial Committee.

"We are a civil court. We cannot put anybody in jail. The worst we can do is sever someone's relationship with the college."

"If criminal acts are involved charges will be brought by the college or by the party involved," Dr. Wester said.

Students have the right to a hearing by a committee of their peers, or they can choose to waive their rights.

Dr. Wester said most students choose to waive their rights. He said the best example of this would be visitation violations in the dorms.

"Most dorm situations are handled through the head resident, resident assistant and the student."

"We try to counsel students to correct behavior before taking it to committee," Dr. Wester said.

The Dean of Students' office presents charges and recommends sanctions to a Judicial Committee made up of eight students (two from each class) who are appointed by the SGA president and approved by the Senate. The committee makes the final decision.

"Ninety percent of the students prefer to deal with an administrator rather than a committee of their peers because nationally students tend to deal more harshly with them," he said.

A student has the right to appeal a Judicial Committee decision to the VSC Judicial Committee appointed by President Hugh Bailey. This committee is made up of five faculty members and two students.

"If I think a student should be suspended, I won't make that decision. I take them to a committee and let them decide because I'm concerned with fairness," he said.

Some laws, such as search and seizure laws, apply differently to a college campus.

According to Dr. Wester, a search warrant is required to enter a student's room in a residence hall if the head resident has reason to believe the student is violating a federal, state, or local law. For a violation of the code of ethics (a non criminal case which will not be prosecuted) such as visitation violations, the head resident or resident assistant does not have to have a search warrant.

The administration feels strongest about disciplinary matters involving violence on campus, Dr. Wester said.

"We'll take outside measures if necessary if violence is involved. People can't take being punched in the nose."

"In high school you get sent to the principal. In college you get sent to jail for those kinds of things," he said.

Two fraternities take on each other

Members of two campus fraternities were involved in an altercation in the early morning hours of Monday, November 21, according to a Public Safety report.

Six members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and eight Delta Chi's were involved in the fight which broke out in the back parking lot of the SAE house at approximately 4:50 a.m. The report states that sticks were used.

The incident reportedly began when a car being driven around the SAE house by Delta Chi member was hit by a mudball thrown by an SAE. It was then that the Delta Chi's gathered in the parking lot of the SAE house.

Public Safety states that during the previous week, several incidents were reported at the two fraternity houses. Paint was thrown on the side service area is another of Toth's ambitions.

"We'll try to do a better job of serving the schools in our area," he said. "By personal contacts we hope to determine what their needs are and to use the expertise at VSC to help them improve their school systems and methods of teaching. We also want to help meet the needs of teachers who want advanced degrees in subjects not offered here, such as home economics or library media specialists. We want to develop new programs or cooperative programs to help them get those degrees." Toth and his wife, Elizabeth, make their home in Valdosta with their three sons, Mark, 21, a student at VSC; Troy, 15, and Eric, 13. Their daughter, Beth Cowart, recently married, also lives in Valdosta.

'Black Experience' class offered

The English Department will be offering a new course Winter Quarter entitled, "The Black Experience: Wright, Ellison, Baldwin, Angelou." The course, which will be taught by Shirley Hardin, will provide students with the opportunity to broaden their literary horizon in the area of Afro-American Literature.

The course will include two works of Richard Wright, Uncle Tom's Cabin, published in 1936, and his most important work Native Sons, published in 1940. This novel is considered the forerunner of modern Afro-American novels because it changed the course of Afro-American Literature. Prior to 1940, Afro-American novels avoided racial issues.

Works of Ralph Ellison will also be discussed, including his well-known novel Invisible Man. This work deals with one man's alienation and struggle for visibility. Writings of the renowned James Baldwin will be focused upon. His most popular work, Go Tell It On the Mountain, published in 1955, will be studied. This work deals with the spiritual conversion of a 7 year old boy growing up in Harlem, New York. Works of Maya Angelou, including two of her four autobiographies will also be discussed.

According to Mrs. Hardin, any serious student of Afro-American Literature should be aware of the

Hutch's Hunches

By TODD HUTCHESON

It's bowl time; time for Hutch's Hunches to make it or break it on the picks. So far this year I haven't gone out on the line too much. But now it's time.

The hardest picks are, of course, the New Years Day games (actually this year they will be played on January 2).

The granddaddy of them all, the Rose Bowl, has the lowly UCLA Bruins going up against the highly explosive Illinois Illini. The only thing the Bruins have going for them is that they've played in the Rose Bowl in recent years. Nevertheless, the Illini will win by 9.

The Sugar Bowl has Auburn against Michigan. I have mixed feelings on this game because Auburn-Alabama still has to be played. If Auburn stays healthy (ie., Bo Jackson, Lionel James) they will beat Michigan by 2.

The Orange Bowl will decide the national championship. Top ranked Nebraska takes on fifth ranked Miami. If by some strange occurrence Miami beats the Cornhuskers they will be champs. If Nebraska wins the same outcome will occur. Nebraska by 8.

The Cotton Bowl should be called the defense bowl. Second ranked Texas takes on the Georgia Bulldogs. This game could end up a 0-0 tie. But to your surprise I'm picking the Bulldogs by 3.

And the last and worst day after New Years Day bowl, the Fiesta Bowl, puts Ohio (8-3) versus Pittsburgh (8-2-1). I can't really say about these two teams as I haven't seen either of them play. But going on their name alone I will say the Buckeyes by 7.

In other bowls around the country: Iowa over Florida by 1 in the Gator Bowl, Oklahoma State over Baylor by 14 in the Bluebonnet Bowl, North Carolina over FSU by 4 in the Peach Bowl, Boston College over Notre by 10 in the Liberty Bowl, Washington and Penn State tie in the Aloha Bowl, Southern Methodist over Alabama by 8 in the Sun Bowl, Brigham Young over Missouri by 12 in the Holiday Bowl, and Kentucky over West Virginia by 1 in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Look for the January 11th edition of Hutch's Hunches to see how I did. Hopefully I can do a better job than a monkey.

The eighth annual Cystic Fibrosis Tip-Off Tournament started Sunday before only a handful of people. The first game was between Longwood College and St. Leo College. Longwood led the game throughout beating St. Leo 65-56.

One reason the Blazers lost was that Marlon Jones was held to only four points in the second half; Jones was covered man to man while the rest of the team played zone. Lee Green scored 18 points and Tommy Conley pumped in 12.

Monday night's consolation game pitted Valdosta and St. Leo had a better outcome for the Blazers. The Blazers thoroughly beat the Lions 77-63. The Blazers led at halftime 35-31 and never relinquished their lead. Although he did not score, Don Latson came into the game at the start of the second half and giving the Blazers that little extra they were looking for. Tommy Conley had 20 points, Marlon Jones 17, and Leon Jones 16.

In the championship game Florida International beat Longwood by a score of 65-58.

Valdosta's Lee Green was the only Blazer to make the All-Tournament team. Green scored a total of 35 points, had 14 rebounds and three steals.

ST WINS SOCCER TITLE: TOP KAPPA ALPHA IN FINAL. LUMEL LEADS INDIAN. UPPER BROWN IS THIRD.

Valdosta, Ga. (CHI) - St. Patterson won the first ever BAC championship, by a 3-0 team as they stopped Kappa Alpha 3-1 in the final of the indoor soccer championships.

The Indians were led by Patrick Caldwell, who scored two goals in the match, which added to the two he scored in a 3-0 semi-final win over HUTC. KA reached the finals by stopping Upper Brown, 3-2, in OI.

KA was forced to play back-to-back matches, and their brilliant front-line of Tommy Crutchfield and Willie Strickland snuffed the exertion. Frank Porter and Darrell Sewell scored Upper goals in their loss, and the team won third place over HUTC.

SW gained the play-offs with a hard fought 4-3 win over rival SE Patterson, despite a great performance by the Dolphins' Mickey Ferguson. Upper won the National crown with a 6-2, upset win over the Heads Yankees. Sewell had three scores, while Porter added two.

Chamber singers to give Christmas concert

A concert of choral music, chiefly for the Christmas season, will be presented on Whitehead stage at Valdosta State College on Tuesday, November 29 at 8:15 p.m. Featuring the VSC Chamber Singers, under the direction of Ruth Sisson, and the VSC College Singers, directed by Judy McLaurin, the program consists of four major works: Pergolesi's Magnificat, an eighteenth-century setting of the "Song of Mary" from the Gospel of Luke; selections from Benjamin Britten's Ceremony of Carols; Johannes Brahms' Alto Rhapsody, a moving setting of a Goethe poem, arranged for male chorus and contralto; and the Christmas Cantata by Daniel Pinkham, a contemporary setting of the Christmas story, composed for chorus and two brass choirs.

According to Ruth Sisson, the program represents a birthday celebration, in that three of the four composers were born in years ending in '33. "Therefore, we are celebrating Brahms' one hundredth birthday, Britten's seventieth, and Pinkham's sixtieth, as well as the birth of the Babe in Bethlehem."

Featured artist in the evening's concert is Laura Hillman, contralto, who will perform the Alto Rhapsody. Mrs. Hillman, associate professor of voice at Florida State University, is the recipient of the Young Artist Award by the New York Singing Teachers' Association, and of a Vocal Education League of New York, both awards affording full Town Hall recitals.

Additional solos will be sung by Carol Mikkelsen and Judy McLaurin of the VSC voice faculty, and by voice majors, David Mayer and Randy Worde. Accompanists are Mrs. Carol Goff, organ, Wayne Helmly, piano, and the double brass choir.

Spontaneous protests rock college campuses

[CPS]—A huge number of campuses hosted spontaneous protests of U.S. participation in the multi-national invasion of Grenada October 25th.

"I don't want to sound grandiose or anything," says Joel Isbaker, a member of the University of Iowa chapter of the Progressive Student Network and an organizer of some regional protests of American policy in the Caribbean, "but this may be the largest spontaneous upsurge of student anger since the hostages were taken in Iran."

There have been an uncountable number of protests, the largest thus far being a gathering of 10,000 in New York City.

On campuses themselves, 2000 Berkeley students rallied while 1200 gathered at the University of Wisconsin in Madison.

Most of the actions, however, attracted smaller numbers and were at schools less well known as political hotbeds.

Four to five hundred students showed up at each of the gatherings at New Hampshire, Iowa, Northern Iowa, Nebraska, North Carolina, South Carolina, Antioch, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Washington and Southern California, among scores of others, in the days after the invasion.

More are to come, organizers say. Regional protests are scheduled on at least 70 campuses on November 10th, followed by a national rally in Washington, D.C. on November 12th.

Because the protests, rallies and teach-ins have been so spontaneous and relatively unplanned, no one has even a reasonably accurate count of how many campuses were involved in the events.

Indeed, in light of the outpouring and President Reagan's November 2nd announcement that he'd soon be withdrawing American troops from Grenada, organizers are reluctant to predict how many people will show up at the November 12th "March Against U.S. Policy in Central American and the Caribbean."

"More than 100," jokes Mary Price of the November 12th Coalition, which is organizing the event.

She does say that "Since Grenada, mobilizing for this demonstration has taken a profound leap."

Someone, for example, donated money to run some 200 buses from New York to Washington, D.C. for the day.

There are skeptics about the depth of student anger over the issue.

In a counter-demonstration at American University in Washington, the conservative Young Americans for Freedom (YAF) showed that "College students do support the president," says Deroy Murdock, head of the Washington YAF chapter.

"Now that the situation seems to be winding down," Murdock figures YAF's "original mission" of demonstrating campus support for the president is over.

The polls show the American people support the invasion," he says. Any more demonstrations would be preaching to the choir."

Murdock says his Washington rally was "not an isolated incident. Students have shown support for invasion on campuses in 'California

New England, and some of the League schools," he says, though he did not name any specific schools.

Isbaker agrees campus opinion is probably split on the issue. "There's definitely polarization on all campuses," he says.

The November 12th Coalition Price adds that "public opinion is on this one." She notes the public opinion polls that show support for invasion were taken immediately after President Reagan's televised explanation of his policy and well before reporters were allowed onto the island to make independent observations.

Angry shouting matches between students for and against the invasion at rallies at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, Chicago, Arizona, among others, would suggest the debate is still wide open.

Among some of the other campuses where students organized invasion demonstrations were

State, Johns Hopkins, Charleston, Florida, Texas, Oklahoma State, several University of California campuses and Oregon State.

And despite Murdock's contention that his "mission" is complete, intends to demonstrate alongside anti-invasion marchers in Washington on November 12th.

The anti-invasion marchers, says, will ask Congress to make reparations to Grenada—the Administration already has Congress for money to help parts of the island—and to pursue similar policies in the future.

Grenada, she says, "has precedent. If we allow this to happen, it can happen in Central America. It can happen in

It can happen anywhere where there is an administration that sees West confrontations even in places like Grenada."

Actions of a few hurt the Greeks

It's time to give it to the Greeks again. But who goes "one bad apple doesn't spoil the whole bunch" accurate.

The Greeks are responsible for a good many projects and fund raisers. Each fraternity has works on each year. They have all made a deal with Valdosta State College and to the Valdosta community.

But last week a few members from two fraternities took the entire Greek system back to the age of Hellenism. The reputation Greeks have worked so hard at building when 12 members of two fraternities started swindling. The trouble is that people in the community now collectively, and they think the only thing Greeks beat each other up.

Why did all this happen? Perhaps it happened because of another for reasons which don't make sense now. It does not look good for the college. It's because, as some will say, "boys will be boys."

Well, gentlemen, if this is the case, then it is a good thing to live in the world where assault is against the law for boys, whether Greek or independent, to not from provocation is difficult for men but not impossible.

One small consolation to the Greeks can be that in learning not all is solved by show of force. students occurred a few weeks ago in the parking lot, I believe. The Greek fight got out of control, because everyone is waiting for the Greek stories about them being hell-raisers.

The question now becomes what do we do with as men who insist violence is the answer to the world? Valdosta is their whole world? problems? It's masculine attitude which has gotten us in wars.

Perhaps Aristophanes had the right idea when Those familiar with the plot will remember the war play took it upon themselves to end the war. Women of the warring factions got together and sexual favors from their men until they agreed was worth the try. Anything would be worth using their brains instead of their brawn.

Back to the Greeks (the fraternity kind, that is) the escapades of last week is that the productive organizations were hurt as a result of the actions. Greeks certainly didn't deserve that.

Gifts for those who've been naughty or nice

Antonia Trollope

They say that sex is a lot like snow; you never know how much you are going to get, or how long it is going to last. If that's the case, Antonia Trollope is wishing for a white Christmas.

Let's face it folks, Christmas is the season for giving, and who is more qualified than Antonia to give. (So, if you hear the patter of little feet in your home on Christmas eve, it may not be old Saint Nick.)

Christmas is one of my favorite times of the year; chestnuts roasting on an openfire and all those things. Christmas is the time of year when I especially enjoy being with friends, sipping egg nog, and reminiscing. Christmas is the time of year when you are filled with good wishes towards all men (well, I happen to be filled with good wishes for men all year long).

Antonia has a few wishes for some special people in her life, and I'd like to share them with you.

For the unknown white woman (and you know who you are), I hope that you always travel upwards in the elevator of life. (Just remember--you can't keep a good woman down.)

Theresa B., hang in there. You'll get yours in "1984." What will it be? Whips, chains, or Wesson oil?

Mitch Clarke, you have no idea what I hope happens to you, but I promise you'll love it! Many men have!

Doug Stavey, my Christmas wish for you is that you learn just how perverse Antonia Trollope is. Try it, you might just like it.

Debbie and Penny, you have just won three free lessons from the Antonia Trollope Finishing School. "Finish what?" you may ask--that's lesson two.

Phyllis McCoy, I talked to the football team, and they loved it. They'd like it again next season, OK? (Maybe we'll double date?)

Todd, I hope that your disposition is the same in the future as it was last evening. You were a pleasure to work with!

To the WVVS crew, a very merry Christmas. (By the way, do you think a commercial-free grant could be arranged for me over New Year's?)

Burt Baker -I hope you grow three and a half inches in 1984!!!

Brian B., Richard Gere is envious of your swagger. I wish I had a swing like that on my front porch.

Dean Wester, you are a pleasure to work under. And may all your Christmases be white.

Bridgette Manson may your new year be filled with numerous digs. You know what I mean, dear.

JP White, Antonia loves you baby. And if you swear you've been a good boy all year, I have a special gift lined up for you.

L.J.--Considering your occupational hazards, it is my sincere wish that you never have congressional aides.

Uncle Ed, first of all, I've taken the liberty of hiring a private investigator to search for the mysterious missing mustache. I hope it turns up. My wish for you in the new year is that you never have to date Rosie, and if (God Forbid) you do, don't take her to the Varsity.

Well, there are countless others of you that Antonia has plans and/or wishes for, but you'll get yours in person. I must be off, duty calls. Merry Christmas to all, and to all a GOOD NIGHT!

Actions of few hurt the Greeks

It's time to give it to the Greeks again. But, wait! The old saying goes "one bad apple doesn't spoil the whole bunch." This is very accurate.

The Greeks are responsible for a good many community service projects and fund raisers. Each fraternity has a special cause it works on each year. They have all made a decent contribution to Valdosta State College and to the Valdosta community.

But last week a few members from two fraternities decided to set the entire Greek system back to the age of Hercules. The good reputation Greeks have worked so hard at building was wiped out when 12 members of two fraternities started swinging at each other. The trouble is that people in the community now think of the Greeks collectively, and they think the only thing Greeks do is get drunk and beat each other up.

Why did all this happen? Perhaps it happened because one group was provoked by another for reasons which don't seem important now. It does not look good for the college. Perhaps it happened because, as some will say, "boys will be boys."

Well, gentlemen, if this is the case, then it is definitely time to grow up and live in the world where assault is against the law. It is time for boys, whether Greek or independent, to realize walking away from provocation is difficult for men but not impossible.

One small consolation to the Greeks can be that they are not alone in learning not all is solved by show of force. A fight between students occurred a few weeks ago in the parking lot. A group of independents, I believe. The Greek fight got more attention, of course, because everyone is waiting for the Greeks to prove all those stories about them being hell-raisers.

The question now becomes what do we do with boys masquerading as men who insist violence is the answer to the world's (and to some Valdosta is their whole world) problems? It is this decidedly masculine attitude which has gotten us in wars since time began.

Perhaps Aristophanes had the right idea when he wrote Lysistrata. Those familiar with the plot will remember the women of that Greek play took it upon themselves to end the war between their men. Women of the warring factions got together and decided to withhold sexual favors from their men until they agreed to stop fighting. It was worth the try. Anything would be worth the try to get men to use their brains instead of their brawn.

Back to the Greeks (the fraternity kind, that is). The bad part of the escapade of last week is that the productive members of these organizations were hurt as a result of the actions of the few. And the Greeks certainly didn't deserve that.

how many campuses were involved in the events.

Indeed, in light of the outpouring and President Reagan's November 2nd announcement that he'd soon be withdrawing American troops from Grenada, organizers are reluctant to predict how many people will show up at the November 12th "March Against J.S. Policy in Central America and the Caribbean."

"More than 100," jokes Mary Price of the November 12th Coalition, which is organizing the event.

She does say that "Since Grenada, mobilizing for this demonstration has been a profound leap."

Someone, for example, donated money to run some 200 buses from New York to Washington, D.C. for the day.

There are skeptics about the depth of student anger over the issue.

In a counter-demonstration at American University in Washington, a conservative Young Americans for Freedom (YAF) showed that "College students do support the president," says Deroy Murdock, head of the Washington YAF chapter.

Now that the situation seems to be winding down," Murdock figures it's "original mission" of demonstrating campus support for the president is over.

preaching to the choir."

Murdock says his Washington rally was "not an isolated incident."

Students have shown support for the invasion on campuses in "California, New England, and some of the Ivy League schools," he says, though he did not name any specific schools.

Iosbaker agrees campus opinion is probably split on the issue. "There is definitely polarization on the campuses," he says.

The November 12th Coalition's Price adds that "public opinion is soft on this one." She notes the public opinion polls that show support for the invasion were taken immediately after President Reagan's televised explanation of his policy and well before any reporters were allowed onto the island to make independent observations.

Angry shouting matches between students for and against the invasion at rallies at the University of Massachusetts-Amherst, Chicago, Arizona, among others, would suggest the debate is still wide open.

Among some of the other campuses where students organized anti-invasion demonstrations were Kent State, Johns Hopkins, Tulane, Charleston, Florida, Texas, Oklahoma State, several University of California campuses and Oregon State.

And despite Murdock's contention that his "mission" is complete, he intends to demonstrate alongside anti-invasion marchers in Washington on November 12th.

The anti-invasion marchers, says, will ask Congress to make reparations to Grenada--the Administration already has Congress for money to help parts of the island--and to promote similar policies in the future.

Grenada, she says, "has been a precedent. If we allow this to happen, it can happen in Central America. It can happen in Nicaragua."

It can happen anywhere when we have an administration that sees West confrontations even in places like Grenada."

Praise for Spectator

To the Editor:

Last year I grew tired of reading all the negative Letters-to-the-Editor, and so I wrote a mega-positive letter praising the changes that were made in the format of the paper, especially the ones Mitch Clarke made in the sports section. Because this is my last quarter at grand old VSC, I wanted to remind the intelligent students of the wonderful job this year's Spectator Staff is doing.

Phyllis McCoy is doing an excellent job as Editor-In-Chief--now the editors make it home (after lay-out on Tues.) before dawn.

As for Mitch, well, what can I say? He was super-great last year as Sports Editor, but he's MEGA-super-great this year as Associate Editor. Just like wine and cheese, he improves with time.

The Entertainment Section is better than it has ever been, thanks to Theresa Bryant. She is really on top of the entertainment world at VSC.

Todd Hutcheson has done well with the Sports section--except for the articles Mitch wrote last year. I hated the sports stories. I still don't love the sports stories, but Todd's stories are like, really okay, ya know?

Finally, to all the hardworking people I haven't mentioned (primarily because I don't know them personally) all looks good!

Have a Merry Christmas, Spectator Staff.

Affectionately yours always!

Praise for Blazers

To the Editor:

October 15, 1983 was a bleak night for Coach Jim Goodman and the V.S.C. football organization. The team record dropped to one win and five losses following a 11-37 whipping by Jacksonville State University. The distinct cry of "HOW BOUT THEM BLAZERS!" suddenly turned into a diminished whisper when conversation turned to Blazer gridiron exploits.

However, that was only the first half of the season and the second half resulted in four wins and only one loss. Congratulations to the coaching staff, players, and supporters of Blazer football for a job well done in overcoming critics and opposing teams to salvage a respectable season.

"The baby's got to crawl before he can learn to walk," stated Coach Goodman after the Jax State loss. The final game victory over Georgia Southern and a remarkable finish gave evidence that the baby is getting on its feet.

On behalf of all students who believe in the united solidarity and exciting energy of a good college football game, here's to the V.S.C. football program. HOW 'BOUT THEM BLAZERS?"

In conjunction with Black Awareness Week, a film will be shown which focuses on the poet and her return visit to her childhood home. The film is entitled, 'A Portrait of Maya Angelou.'

Most of the authors' works reflect what Chester Himes calls 'the age of truth for the black writer. It is not an age of ambiguity or assimilation, but the age of the truth that allows black writers to verbalize their fears, anger and frustration.'

The requirements of this course are a short paper on a subject in consultation with the instructor and two or three essay tests. Mrs. Hardin stated that this is the first time to her knowledge that a course of this nature has been offered at Valdosta State College.

Frozen pipes burst all around campus

By MIKE MCKNIGHT
Spectator Staff Writer

Like many parts of the country, Valdosta suffered from record low temperatures over the Christmas weekend.

At the college, those sub-freezing temperatures caused numerous pipes to freeze and some to consequently burst. Many water and heating pipes on main campus, north campus and in the college-owned house burst.

Mack Riggs, assistant director of maintenance, believes that most of the pipes broke on Christmas Day when temperatures fell as low as nine degrees.

However those pipes that had burst were not discovered until Monday or Tuesday when the water in the pipes began to melt.

Bailey embarks on region speaking tour

By PHYLLIS McCOY
Spectator Editor

Valdosta State College President Hugh C. Bailey has embarked on a speaking tour of the southern region of Georgia to "inform the people of the current situation at VSC and prospects for the future."

Dr. Bailey said he will be speaking to service and civic clubs through spring quarter.

This tour is part of the plan for future growth at VSC. Dr. Bailey said a feasibility study will be conducted spring quarter to determine if VSC should undertake a capital campaign to raise funds for the college.

"I talked to the Valdosta Rotary Club on January 4, and I have speeches lined up in Tifton, Waycross, Quitman, and St. Mary's," Dr. Bailey said.

"We wish as many as possible informed about conditions at the college. The tour will be concentrated in the southern region, but I hope to get into Macon, Atlanta, Jacksonville, and Savannah," he said. "I'd be delighted to fill the speaking engagements of any group."

Dr. Bailey said he talks to the groups about the different aspects of where have you gone Johnny Chastain? The above may be the lament of some as the Cats dropped their second consecutive game, 16-14 to the resurgent Reade Yankees in the Pepsi Bowl.

Pepsi Bowl

YANKEES PROVE THEIR RANKING IS REAL

Chastain had led Wesley to 10-straight wins and a No. 2 BAC ranking before he defected, allegedly over a dispute about playing time at the up slot. Without him the Cats are aimless.

The main reason for the loss in this game, however, may have been a Reade Yankee outfit that came to play. Behind a 25-yard Steve Snipes 16-yard TD pass from Stacy Bell to Jerry Shelton, Reade went up 10-0. The Cats countered with a TD right before the half, on a 60-yard bomb QB Murphy Head to Keith Mitchell.

Wesley took the lead in the second stanza, as Head threw 4-yards to Jeff Peavy. Trailing 16-10, the Cats drove 63-yards, and scored as Bel Darren Frances with a 13-yard strike with 1:07 remaining.

Wesley took the ensuing KO, moved down the field as Head threw receivers Bobby Scott and Mitchell. With 0:23 on the clock, Tom Carter tried a 39-yard FG, but 6-6 Al Williams, of the Yankees, got a hand on it, and Reade had won the ever Pepsi Bowl.

Herry Jo Parker (Pepsi) and Dick Rockey (The Spectator) were on hand for the game, and said delight in their selections, said that they would be back in Wesley.

CRUTCHFIELD KICK PROPELLS KA

Tommy Crutchfield booted a 27-yard field goal to lead the Ka's to a sudden-death overtime to lead Alpha to a 17-14 win over stubborn Peterson in the first Sports Locker finished 5-6-0.

The Ka's, second in the Fraternity League, ended their season 8-1-1 victory, while the American League finished 5-6-0.

In an earlier, regular season, KA had pummeled SW 27-8, but this time Southerners were lucky to come out with a 6-6 tie. They jumped to a 14-0 lead as Charles three 6-yards to Willie Strickland, and Bruce Frick ran an errand SW pass 33-yards out.

SW was not to be denied, however. Indians tied the count at 14, as Coop hit All-BAC receiver Kris Cooper a 26-yard scoring strike, and on the play of the first-half Coop delivered a yarder to Frank Shea. Shea's catch in the end zone was the winning BAC this season.

Both teams battled in the second half, but neither could score. Coleman's FC was off to the right as regular ended. The ball was placed on the sudden death, and SW saw Gary Wynn repared. He is expected to be in the end of the basketball season.

On the KA's third play from the Sweat three incomplete, and Crutchfield was called upon to win it.

The BAC's only major injury of the year happened in this game, as Steve David broke his leg after a play to two KA receivers on a Sweet rush to Frank Shea, where he was repared. He is expected to be in the end of the basketball season.
